Hello FA Officers, I need your attention and assistance on this matter!

A student came in today inquiring about when she will be able to get her COL check. To my surprise, she knew exactly how much she was eligible for ($2200.00 in loan money she claimed).

I thought we were suppose to be giving out according to need basis, not by how much they can get in loans. Since COL checks has put our campus's 90/10 at a huge disadvantage, is there any way we could NOT discuss with the student on how much money he or she is eligible for in loans?

We had a record high of approximately 92% Title IV funding this past year and that is a record I do not want to repeat. I know we cannot say no to stipends because they are necessary sometimes to help students get through a rough spot, but we can strongly discourage borrowing. I would truly appreciate your help on this.

And yes, this will also help Redacted b out tremendously with his year end evaluation and department goals 😊

Let me know if you have any suggestions and thank you in advance,
