APPENDIX 37

I. Introduction

In March 2026, Senator Bill Cassidy, M.D. led Senators Steve Daines, James Lankford, Cindy Hyde-Smith, and Lindsey Graham in an investigation into the three Food and Drug Administration (FDA)-approved sponsors of the chemical abortion drug, mifepristone.[1] The investigation sought to uncover information about the companies' business practices and the adequacy of their implementation of federally mandated requirements governing the marketing, distribution, and prescription of this dangerous drug. Chemical abortion drug sponsors profit off killing innocent unborn children; however, mifepristone also has the potential to cause serious adverse events in pregnant women who take it.[2] According to the pro-abortion Guttmacher Institute, chemical abortions accounted for 63 percent of all abortions in the United States in 2023.[3] FDA estimates that approximately 7.5 million women have used mifepristone in the United States for chemical abortions from its approval in 2000 through 2024.[4] It is therefore imperative for policymakers and the public to better understand the extent to which the mifepristone sponsors are complying with their obligations under federal law and the steps they are taking to mitigate the risks of harm caused by their drug.

The investigation also sought to elicit information from the mifepristone sponsors about the steps they are taking to ensure the health and safety of women, specifically when mifepristone is prescribed online and dispensed through the mail. Because FDA removed the in-person dispensing requirement for mifepristone in 2023, patients can now order mifepristone from online websites and receive the drug in the mail without any face-to-face interaction with a health care provider. Since the 2023 change, the number of mail-order chemical abortions has grown precipitously. The most comprehensive data on what percentage of chemical abortions are provided without an in-person visit comes from the pro-abortion Society for Family Planning. That organization estimates

[2] In April 2025, the Ethics and Public Policy Center released a study finding that serious adverse events from mifepristone occur in 10.93 percent of women within 45 days of taking the drug for an abortion. These serious adverse events include sepsis, infection, hemorrhaging, or another life-threatening adverse event. Importantly, this adverse event rate is 22 times higher than the FDA currently recognizes on the mifepristone drug label. The study is the largest-ever study of the chemical abortion drugs and is based on an analysis of an all-payer health insurance claims database that includes 865,727 prescribed mifepristone abortions from 2017 to 2023. that the online prescription of chemical abortion drugs now accounts for 28 percent of all abortions in the United States (about 300,000 abortions in 2025), which is up from seven percent in 2022.[5] The prevalence of this method of prescribing chemical abortion drugs, along with the inherent increased risks to the health of women and of coercion, leads to serious concerns over whether the mifepristone sponsors are taking necessary steps to protect women and conduct adequate oversight of prescribers.

This report presents the investigatory findings of the majority staff of the U.S. Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions under Chairman Cassidy. The report provides background on the history of mifepristone approval and marketing in the United States, the historical development of the Mifepristone Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategies (REMS) Program, and the current Mifepristone REMS Program requirements. It then provides background on the three mifepristone sponsors before outlining the findings of the investigation into the sponsors' business practices and the adequacy of their oversight and implementation of the REMS requirements governing the marketing, distribution, and prescription of mifepristone. The report closes with conclusions that highlight the flaws in the current Mifepristone REMS Program that must be addressed to ensure the health and safety of pregnant women in the United States.

II. Background on Mifepristone's Mechanism of Action and Approval in the United States

Chemical abortion is typically conducted through the two-drug regimen of mifepristone and misoprostol. The first drug in this regimen, mifepristone, blocks the release of progesterone, a hormone that supports the development of the uterine lining to nourish the developing child. Taking mifepristone deteriorates the uterine lining, thereby causing the unborn child's death. The second drug, misoprostol, is taken 24-48 hours after mifepristone to induce uterine contractions intended to expel the remaining fetal tissue from the pregnant woman's body. Mifepristone is approved by the FDA to be used in combination with misoprostol to end an intrauterine pregnancy through 10 weeks (70 days) gestation.[6]

Currently, there are three sponsors approved by FDA to market mifepristone for the medical termination of pregnancy—Danco Laboratories, LLC (Danco)[7]; GenBioPro, Inc. (GBP)[8]; and Evita Solutions, LLC (Evita).[9] Danco's Mifeprex is the brand name version of mifepristone used for the termination of pregnancy and was first approved by FDA on September 28, 2000.[10] FDA subsequently approved GBP's generic mifepristone on April 11, 2019,[11] and Evita's generic mifepristone on September 30, 2025.[12] When this investigation began in March 2026, Danco and GBP were actively marketing their mifepristone products, while Evita had not yet launched its mifepristone product for sale in the United States. In its responses, Evita would not provide the HELP Committee with a date as to when it would launch its product.[13] However, according to a press release on its website, Evita began distributing its generic mifepristone product on August 21, 2026.[14]

III. Background on Mifepristone Safety Requirements

A. Historical Development of the Mifepristone REMS Program

When Mifeprex was originally approved in 2000, the approval included several restrictions to reduce safety risks:

(1) it could only be used within the first seven weeks (49 days) of pregnancy;
(2) it had to be administered in-person at a clinic, medical office, or hospital by a certified prescriber (i.e., a licensed physician with the ability to assess the duration of pregnancy, diagnose ectopic pregnancies, and provide surgical intervention in the case of incomplete abortion or severe bleeding);
(3) patients were required to have an in-person follow-up visit approximately 14 days after taking the abortion drug regimen to confirm the abortion's status via clinical examination or ultrasound;
(4) adverse events had to be reported to FDA; and
(5) the patient had to sign an FDA-approved Patient Agreement Form before a clinician could dispense the drug.[15]

In 2007, Congress authorized FDA to require REMS, which establish additional requirements that must be followed in the prescribing and dispensing of certain drugs when FDA determines that such requirements are "necessary to ensure that the benefits of the drug outweigh the risks."[16] In 2011, Mifeprex's original post-market restrictions were converted to a REMS.[17]

However, FDA under recent Democrat administrations has scaled back the required elements to assure safe use of the Mifepristone REMS Program. In March 2016, FDA under then-President Obama approved changes to both the mifepristone REMS and the product labeling, weakening safeguards that protected women from harm. These Obama-era changes included (1) extending the indication for use of the drug from seven weeks to 10 weeks gestation; (2) reducing the number of required in-person clinic visits from three to one (leaving the in-person dispensing requirement in place but changing the wording of the follow-up visit requirement in the Patient Agreement Form from "will" to "should"); (3) expanding the definition of "certified prescriber" to include not only physicians but also "health care providers" who did not need to have the ability to treat a patient with complications (these could include advance practice nurses or physician assistants where permitted under state law); and (4) eliminating the requirement for prescribers to report serious adverse events to the mifepristone sponsor, except for cases of death.[18]

In May 2020, the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (ACOG) and the American Civil Liberties Union, among others, filed a lawsuit demanding that FDA suspend enforcement of the in-person dispensing requirement for the duration of the COVID-19 pandemic.[19] In July 2020, a federal judge in Maryland granted a preliminary injunction suspending the in-person dispensing requirement.[20] FDA under President Trump's first term appealed the injunction, and in January 2021, the U.S. Supreme Court stayed the preliminary injunction, which effectively reinstated the in-person dispensing requirement.[21]

In April 2021, under the guise of the COVID-19 pandemic, the FDA under then-President Biden informed ACOG that it intended to "exercise enforcement discretion," temporarily halting enforcement of the in-person dispensing requirement and allowing pharmacists to dispense the drug.[22] FDA made these changes permanent in January 2023, formally lifting the in-person dispensing requirement and allowing certified retail and mail pharmacies to dispense the drug when prescribed by a certified prescriber.[23] As a result, mifepristone may now be prescribed online and dispensed through the mail.

B. Current Mifepristone REMS Program Requirements

In April 2019, upon the approval of GBP's Abbreviated New Drug Application (ANDA) for generic mifepristone, the Mifepristone REMS Program was modified to establish a Single Shared System (SSS) REMS, creating one common set of elements to assure safe use and a single implementation system for both Mifeprex and its generics.[24] This 2019 modification did not substantively change the REMS requirements. Evita's generic mifepristone product was added to the SSS REMS when its ANDA was approved in September 2025.[25]

The goal of the current SSS REMS for mifepristone, last approved in September 2025, is to "mitigate the risk of serious complications associated with mifepristone" by (a) requiring health care providers who prescribe mifepristone to be certified, (b) ensuring that mifepristone is only dispensed by or under the supervision of certified prescribers, or by certified pharmacies on prescriptions issued by certified prescribers, and (c) informing patients about the risk of serious complications associated with mifepristone.[26] Accordingly, the Mifepristone REMS Program has three primary elements: (1) Elements to Assure Safe Use (ETASU); (2) Implementation System; and (3) Timetable for Submission of Assessments.[27]

Under the ETASU for mifepristone, a health care provider must be certified to prescribe mifepristone.[28] To become certified, a health care provider must sign a Prescriber Agreement Form agreeing that they have the ability to: (1) assess the duration of pregnancy accurately; (2) diagnose ectopic pregnancies; (3) provide surgical intervention in cases of incomplete abortion or severe bleeding, or have made plans to provide such care through others; and (4) assure patient access to medical facilities equipped to provide blood transfusions and resuscitation, if necessary.[29] Certified prescribers must also agree that they will follow the guidelines for use of mifepristone.[30] These guidelines, which are a condition of certification, include (1) ensuring the Patient Agreement Form is reviewed with the patient, the risks of the mifepristone treatment regimen are fully explained, and questions the patient may have prior to receiving mifepristone are answered; (2) ensuring both the health care provider and the patient sign the Patient Agreement Form; (3) ensuring the patient is provided with a copy of the Patient Agreement Form and Medication Guide; (4) ensuring that the signed Patient Agreement Form is placed in the patient's medical record; and (5) ensuring that any deaths are reported to the mifepristone sponsor that provided the mifepristone, identifying the patient by a non-identifiable reference, and including the National Drug Code (NDC) and lot number from the package of mifepristone that was dispensed to the patient.[31]

When mifepristone is being dispensed by a certified pharmacy, certified prescribers must:

(1) provide the certified pharmacy a signed Prescriber Agreement Form;

(2) assess the appropriateness of dispensing mifepristone when contacted by a certified pharmacy about patients who will receive mifepristone more than four calendar days after the prescription was received by the certified pharmacy; and

(3) obtain the NDC and lot number of the package of mifepristone the patient received in the event the prescriber becomes aware of the death of the patient.[32]

When mifepristone is being dispensed by the certified prescriber, the certified prescriber must:

(1) provide an authorized distributor with a signed Prescriber Agreement Form;

(2) ensure that the NDC and lot number from each package of mifepristone dispensed are recorded in the patient's record; and

(3) ensure that health care providers under their supervision follow the guidelines.[33]

ETASU REQUIREMENTS FOR MIFEPRISTONE

KEY RESPONSIBILITIES FOR CERTIFIED PRESCRIBERS

1 BECOME CERTIFIED TO PRESCRIBE

To become certified, a health care provider must sign a Prescriber Agreement Form agreeing that they have the ability to:

Health care providers must sign a Prescriber Agreement Form.

1. Assess the duration of pregnancy accurately.

2. Diagnose ectopic pregnancies.

3. Provide surgical intervention in cases of incomplete abortion or severe bleeding, or have made plans to provide such care through others.

4. Assure patient access to medical facilities equipped to provide blood transfusions and resuscitation, if necessary.

Certified prescribers must also agree that they will follow the guidelines for use of mifepristone.

Ensure the Patient Agreement Form is reviewed with the patient, the risks of the mifepristone treatment regimen are fully explained, and questions the patient may have prior to receiving mifepristone are answered.

2.

Ensure both the health care provider and the patient sign the Patient Agreement Form.

3.

5.

Ensure that any deaths are reported to the mifepristone sponsor that provided the mifepristone, identifying the patient by a non-identifiable reference, and including the NDC and lot number from the package of mifepristone that was dispensed to the patient.

3A WHEN MIFEPRISTONE IS DISPENSED BY A CERTIFIED PHARMACY

Certified prescribers must:

Provide the certified pharmacy a signed Prescriber Agreement form.

2.

Assess the appropriateness of dispensing mifepristone when contacted by a certified pharmacy about patients who will receive mifepristone more than four calendar days after the prescription was received by the certified pharmacy.

3.

Obtain the NDC and lot number of the package of mifepristone the patient received in the event the prescriber becomes aware of the death of the patient.

3B WHEN MIFEPRISTONE IS DISPENSED BY THE CERTIFIED PRESCRIBER

Provide an authorized distributor with a signed Prescriber Agreement Form.

2.

Ensure that the NDC and lot number from each package of mifepristone dispensed are recorded in the patient's record.

3.

Ensure that health care providers under their supervision follow the guidelines.

In turn, the mifepristone sponsors must (1) ensure that health care providers who prescribe the sponsor's mifepristone are certified in accordance with the requirements described above and decertify health care providers who do not maintain compliance with certification requirements; (2) ensure that health care providers can complete the certification process by email or fax to an authorized distributor and/or certified pharmacy; (3) provide the Prescribing Information and their Prescriber Agreement Form to health care providers who inquire about how to become certified; and (4) ensure annually with each certified prescriber that their locations for receiving mifepristone are up to date.[34]

Finally, the REMS states that "[m]ifepristone must be dispensed to patients with evidence or other documentation of safe use conditions as ensured by the certified prescriber in signing the Prescriber Agreement Form."[35] Before signing a Patient Agreement Form, a patient must have (1) received, read, and been provided a copy of the Patient Agreement Form and (2) received counseling from the health care provider regarding the risk of serious complications associated with mifepristone.[36]

Under the current Trump administration, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) and FDA have acknowledged that the previous REMS changes approved by Democrat administrations had a "lack of adequate consideration" and committed to "conduct a study of the safety of the current REMS, in order to determine whether modifications are necessary."[37] However, as of the time of this report, it is unclear when this study will be completed, thus making it imperative to understand how the mifepristone sponsors are ensuring the current REMS requirements are being met to protect women from harm.

IV. Background on Danco, GBP, and Evita

All three mifepristone sponsors have little information publicly available about their operations and FDA has gone to unprecedented lengths to shield information about not only these manufacturers but also details of the regulatory review of mifepristone itself. During the initial approval process in the 1990s, then-Clinton FDA Commissioner Jane E. Henney said "the agency broke with precedent" by not publishing the names of the experts who reviewed the new drug application (NDA) for mifepristone.[38] FDA also broke with precedent when "it did not publish the name or location of the company that will manufacture the drug."[39] To this day, FDA continues to redact mifepristone-related records in an unprecedented manner. This lack of transparency has led to unanswered questions and has given the mifepristone sponsors the opportunity to avoid scrutiny from the public and policymakers.

While privately held companies like Danco, GBP, and Evita generally withhold more commercial information from the public than publicly traded companies, the three mifepristone sponsors are uniquely obscure. Specifically, key aspects of Danco, GBP, and Evita's corporate structures and leadership are not publicly disclosed, which is atypical even for private companies that develop or manufacture FDA-regulated products. Many pharmaceutical companies disclose the members of their leadership teams and other basic information about their business.

Reporting from the Los Angeles Times characterizes Danco as "all but anonymous," noting that the company has fewer than 20 employees and uses a P.O. Box to avoid disclosing its headquarters' address.[40] Danco does not make any of its sales figures public and operates largely "in obscurity."[41] The Los Angeles Times also notes that Danco "has had to work closely with the FDA to not disclose its address" and that "[a]ll of the documents related to the [2000] approval [of Mifeprex] have been redacted so . . . manufacturer locations don't become public."[42] Danco told the Los Angeles Times that it "wouldn't share the name of the company's current chief executive, board members or investors."[43] The Washington Post once characterized Danco as "[s]ecretive and obscure" and "one of the most enigmatic companies in the pharmaceutical industry."[44] Some of Danco's financial information only recently became public during protracted litigation in 2022 involving private equity-backed investors seeking control of the company.[45] In a sworn declaration in that case, Danco Investors Group, L.P.'s Chief Financial Officer, Angelia Van Vranken, stated that investments in Mifeprex had "been extremely profitable."[46] Court documents show that Danco's investors have had an average return on investment of 452 percent,[47] and that one of Danco's top investors and executive chair of the board of directors, W. Bradley Daniel, had earned over $10.3 million in proxy fees alone.[48]

GBP's CEO, Evan Masingill, has made himself publicly known and has participated in interviews with certain publications.[49] But there are no other employees of GBP that are publicly known. Its investors are also hidden, although court filings reveal that its parent company is Xenia Holdco LLC.[50]

Evita has a very minimal online presence and thus far, no principals or spokespeople for the company have been publicly named. While FDA materials list a P.O. Box address in Roanoke, VA, there is no record of Evita's corporate headquarters.[51] Evita's Articles of Organization listed a different principal office address in Glen Allen, VA,[52] but that appears to be the address of its registered agent, CT Corporation System. Evita changed its principal office address in April 2026 to an address in Vienna, VA,[53] but this appears to be the address of Intelligent Office, a flexible workspace company. Publicly available documents do not provide clarity on the company's leadership team or employees.

V. Findings From the Investigation into Danco, GBP, and Evita

Despite the lack of public information, the oversight efforts led by Senator Cassidy revealed new information and raised concerns about Danco, GBP, and Evita's operations and their compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program requirements. The mifepristone sponsors' responses to Senator Cassidy's inquiries are summarized in this section and grouped by topic. The full written responses are included in the Appendix of this report.

A. Location of Mifepristone Manufacturing Facilities and FDA Inspections

According to a 2021 lawsuit alleging violations of the False Claims Act, Danco previously manufactured its active pharmaceutical ingredient (API) for Mifeprex in China from 2002 through at least 2019.[54] Danco's FDA-approved drug label states that Mifeprex is currently manufactured in Spain.[55] In its response to Senator Cassidy's inquiry, Danco confirmed that its API for Mifeprex is currently manufactured at an FDA-registered facility in Spain and that its finished drug product is manufactured at another FDA-registered facility elsewhere in Europe.[56] Danco states that its API is imported into the United States after its manufacture in Spain, stored at a third-party logistics facility, and then exported back to Europe for finished product manufacturing and final release testing before the finished drug product is imported back into the United States.[57] Despite a follow-up question asking Danco for the country in Europe where the finished drug product is manufactured,[58] Danco refused to provide additional information, citing commercial sensitivity and security concerns.[59]

GBP's FDA-approved drug label states that the product is manufactured in India.[60] In response to Senator Cassidy's inquiry, GBP confirmed that its API for generic mifepristone is manufactured in India and that the name and address of the API manufacturing facility has been reported to FDA, but refused to provide more specific information about its manufacturing location or locations.[61] GBP further refused to provide any information relating to the supply chain for its API and finished drug product.[62] Like Danco, GBP cited commercial sensitivity and security concerns in refusing to answer these questions.[63]

Evita's FDA-approved drug label states that its generic mifepristone is currently manufactured in India.[64] In response to Senator Cassidy's inquiry, Evita confirmed that it planned to import the finished drug product from a contract manufacturing organization (CMO) in India.[65] Evita refused to provide information about where its API will be manufactured or further information about its supply chain, citing commercial sensitivity and security concerns.[66] However, despite refusing to provide this information, Evita's FDA-approved drug label states that its manufacturing establishment is Naari Pharma Private Limited,[67] an Indian-based generic API manufacturer.[68]

All three mifepristone sponsors were asked to provide the dates, final classifications, and related findings of all FDA inspections of their manufacturing facilities. Danco represented that there "are no active or outstanding quality issues related to the manufacturing of Mifeprex, and no inspections related to Mifeprex manufacturing have resulted in an 'Official Action Indicated' designation."[69] It further represented that it uses CMOs to manufacture its API and finished drug product, and that it "does not have full visibility" into the inspections at these facilities, other than any issued FDA

Form 483 observations related to the manufacturing of Mifeprex.[70] Danco declined to provide any additional information, such as inspection dates and results, due to its concern that this information could be used to discover the identities and locations of its manufacturers.[71] It did note, however, that since 2016, FDA has not issued any inspectional observations to Danco's CMOs. Because Danco used different CMOs prior to 2016, it was unable to provide information about the pre-2016 inspection history of its current facilities.[72]

GBP provided the results of the following five inspections conducted by FDA at the contract manufacturing facilities it uses for mifepristone:[73]

Year of Inspection	Classification
2019	No Action Indicated
2019	Voluntary Action Indicated
2023	No Action Indicated
2025	No Action Indicated
2025	No Action Indicated

When asked about the details relating to the Voluntary Action Indicated finding in 2019, GBP said the same facility underwent an inspection in 2025 and received a No Action Indicated classification, but said it did not have any other information regarding the 2019 inspection and did not produce a copy of the FDA Form 483 for this inspection.[74] It further represented that it was not aware of any FDA findings related to the manufacturing of GBP's mifepristone in the 2019 inspection or otherwise. GBP stated that it only receives summaries of FDA inspection results from its CMOs when the inspection results directly pertain to the manufacturing of GBP's products.[75] These representations imply that the 2019 FDA finding was related to the CMO's manufacturing of a different product, not GBP's mifepristone.

Evita represented that its CMO facility "has passed multiple FDA inspections, with respect to both Evita's mifepristone ANDA and other products produced at the same facility."[76] It did not provide any additional information, such as any records documenting FDA inspections of manufacturing facilities or FDA's final classifications of such inspections.[77]

B. Mifepristone Distributors

All three mifepristone sponsors refused to identify their distributors, citing commercial sensitivity and security concerns. However, they did each provide the number of distributors they are contracted with to distribute mifepristone:[78]

Mifepristone Sponsor	Number of Distributors
Danco	4
GBP	7

C. Third-Party REMS Administrators

A third-party REMS administrator is a vendor that can be hired by application holders of NDAs and ANDAs that are subject to a REMS to help implement and manage the program requirements.[79] Third-party REMS administrators can perform a variety of functions for the REMS program, including building and operating a centralized database for patient enrollment, prescriber and pharmacy certifications, and wholesaler enrollments.[80] Danco, GBP, and Evita all represented that they have not engaged any third-party vendors to administer the Mifepristone REMS Program.[81] Evita noted that it "has built its own REMS administration function."[82]

Senator Cassidy subsequently sought confirmation from the three mifepristone sponsors, given that they had no third-party REMS administrators, that they themselves were solely responsible for ensuring prescriber, pharmacy, and distributor compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program. In response, Danco highlighted that its distributors also play a key role in administering the REMS, such as by establishing systems to ensure all Mifeprex shipments are made only to certified prescribers or pharmacies, collecting and maintaining executed prescriber and pharmacy agreement forms, maintaining distribution records, notifying prescribers and pharmacies when they have been certified, and providing information to non-certified prescribers if they attempt to order Mifeprex or inquire about how to become certified.[83] Danco also noted that "as a condition of participation/certification in the REMS, its distributors and pharmacies are obligated to implement and maintain their own processes to support REMS compliance."[84]

GBP, on the other hand, simply stated that it "is responsible for complying with the sponsor obligations set forth in the REMS."[85] Similarly, Evita only reiterated that it had "not engaged with any third-party vendor to administer the Mifepristone REMS Program to date."[86]

D. Certified Prescribers and Pharmacies

As noted above, in order to prescribe mifepristone, a prescriber must be certified. To become certified, a prescriber must sign a Prescriber Agreement Form attesting that they meet the requirements outlined in the Mifepristone REMS Program and its ETASU.[87] Danco and GBP provided the number of certified prescribers they had as of September 2025,[88] while Evita stated that it had not yet certified any prescribers.[89] GBP noted that the number of certified prescribers it provided may include duplicate forms and thus may overstate the number of unique prescribers.[90]

Mifepristone Sponsor	Number of Certified Prescribers
Danco	5,250

Similarly, in order to dispense mifepristone, a pharmacy must become certified by submitting a Pharmacy Agreement Form where a pharmacy agrees to put processes and procedures in place to ensure the REMS requirements are met.[91] On their respective websites, both Danco and GBP provide a list of select certified pharmacies that have consented to disclosure, but these are not comprehensive lists of all certified pharmacies.[92] In order to get a more complete picture of the number and locations of certified pharmacies, both sponsors were asked for additional information. Danco provided its total number of certified pharmacies as of September 2025, and produced a state-by-state breakdown, including how many certified pharmacies in each state provided a mail-order option.[93] GBP did not provide a total number of certified pharmacies, but did provide a state-by-state breakdown, noting that some of the certified pharmacies listed in a state may also have [a] Danco declined to provide the exact number of certified prescribers in states where there are greater than zero but fewer than 10 certified prescribers out of concern that such data could be used to identify individual prescribers.

[b] The states with between 10 and 14 Danco certified prescribers have had their numbers identified as >9 but <15 at the demand of the HELP Committee minority staff, which the HELP Committee majority staff agreed to in good faith.

[c] Danco stated that in addition to the number of certified prescribers listed in the above chart, it has 1,131 additional certified prescribers from multi-state health care systems and pharmacy chains, but that Danco does not have a geographical breakdown of this set of certified prescribers. Collectively, the certified prescribers from multi-state health care systems and pharmacy chains are located in AK, AZ, CA, CO, CT, DE, HI, IL, KS, MA, MD, ME, MI, MN, MT, NH, NJ, NM, NV, NY, OH, OR, PA, RI, VA, VT, WA, and DC.

[d] Danco stated that in addition to the number of certified pharmacies listed in the above chart, one multi-state pharmacy chain has 4,941 certified pharmacy locations across the United States, but that Danco does not have a geographical breakdown of its locations. Collectively, the multi-state pharmacy chain has certified pharmacy locations in CA, CO, CT, DE, HI, IL, MA, MD, ME, MI, MN, NH, NJ, NM, NV, NY, OR, PA, RI, VA, VT, WA, and DC. While Danco did not identify the multi-state pharmacy chain it was referring to in its response, the states listed on Danco's website where CVS Pharmacy dispenses Mifeprex are identical to the states the "multi-state pharmacy chain" Danco referred to dispense Mifeprex. Therefore, it is safe to assume that Danco is referring to CVS Pharmacy here.

[e] GBP's data indicate whether or not it has certified prescribers in each state based on its sales data but does not include specific numbers of prescribers because GBP represented that it "does not possess information that would allow it to provide an accurate state-by-state breakdown of all certified prescribers" since its Prescriber Agreement Forms are routed to the appropriate distributor or certified pharmacy, not GBP.

[f] GBP's data on certified pharmacies are an undercount of the total number of certified pharmacies in each state because a certified pharmacy with multiple dispensing locations across multiple states (such as CVS, Honeybee Health, or ArioRx) is only listed once.

[g] GBP stated that the REMS does not require it to systematically track whether each certified pharmacy offers mail-order services and thus did not provide this information.

[h] Evita's data include only the number of certified pharmacies it currently has by state because it does not currently have any certified prescribers.

E. Mifepristone Sponsor Audits of Pharmacies and Distributors

Under the current REMS requirements, mifepristone sponsors must audit new distributors within 90 calendar days of authorizing the distributor and annually thereafter.[96] They must also audit their certified pharmacies within 180 calendar days after the pharmacy places its first order of mifepristone, and annually thereafter audit certified pharmacies that have ordered mifepristone in the previous 12 months.[97] These audits are meant to ensure that necessary processes and procedures are in place and functioning to support compliance with the requirements of the Mifepristone REMS Program.[98] Audits of certified pharmacies have only been required under the REMS since January 2023, when the REMS was modified to permit dispensing by certified pharmacies.[99] The distributor audit requirements have existed since 2016,[100] and there were similar requirements to assess the performance of distributors in the 2011 REMS.[101]

Both Danco and GBP were asked to produce a list of audits they have conducted on their distributors and certified pharmacies, to include the results of each audit, and to produce a copy of the audit rubric they use for each type of audit.[102] Danco provided a template of its audit questionnaire for authorized distributors,[103] but did not provide one for certified pharmacies. GBP did not provide audit rubrics for distributors or certified pharmacies. However, both sponsors provided a high-level summary of observations of noncompliance identified in distributor and pharmacy audits (Danco's distributor audits date back to 2011, while GBP's date back to 2023).[104] Both sponsors also included a generalized overview of their audit processes, but without requested details.

Danco

Danco represented that its processes for auditing its authorized distributors include "remote review of sample distribution records, completion of detailed questionnaires that cover all aspects of REMS compliance," and that when needed, "Danco conducts additional audit activities via tele- or video-conferences."[105] The distributor audit questionnaire lays out all of the activities Danco reviews for compliance, including completing the prescriber and pharmacy certification process, documenting serial numbers of packages being shipped, obtaining proof of delivery, providing Medication Guides with each shipment, storing Mifeprex in a secure area, and ensuring shipping records are maintained in a secure and confidential manner, among others.[106]

Danco explained that its processes for auditing its certified pharmacies include "completion of detailed questionnaires that cover all aspects of REMS compliance" and that when needed, "Danco conducts additional audit activities via tele- or video-conferences."[107] Danco did not provide any more specifics as to its pharmacy audit process.

Danco reported three observations of pharmacy noncompliance since January 2023, and the remedial actions taken for each. All three instances of noncompliance were certified pharmacies dispensing Mifeprex to a patient of a prescriber for whom a Prescriber Agreement Form was not on file.[108] The remedial actions were retraining and adding additional procedural safeguards and technical workflow solutions to ensure the noncompliance was not repeated.[109] Danco stated that in two out of the three instances of pharmacy noncompliance, it discovered the noncompliance during its REMS audits.[110] In the other instance, the noncompliance was reported by the certified pharmacy to Danco after the pharmacy conducted its own internal audit for REMS compliance, which occurred before Danco's audit for the period.[111]

GBP

GBP explained that its processes for auditing certified distributors and pharmacies include a "review of REMS policies and procedures, training documentation, certification records, dispensing data, deviation reports, and CAPAs [corrective and preventive action plans]."[112] GBP did not provide further details about its distributor or pharmacy audit processes and did not disclose its audit rubrics.

GBP reported two observations of pharmacy noncompliance since January 2023, and the remedial actions taken for each. Both instances relate to the pharmacy filling prescriptions more than four days after the receipt of the prescription without prescriber approval of the delay. Under the REMS requirements, certified pharmacies must dispense mifepristone such that it is available to the patient within four calendar days of the date the pharmacy receives the prescription, except when a prescriber confirms with the pharmacy that it is appropriate for the patient to receive the drug after four days, and the prescriber's decision is documented.[113] In one instance, two prescriptions were filled more than four days after receipt of the prescription without prescriber approval, and in the second instance, one prescription was filled more than four days after receipt without prescriber approval.[114] The remedial action in the first instance was "[p]ersonnel reeducated on the REMS and to more closely monitor prescription pick-up."[115] The remedial action in the second instance was "[t]he pharmacy will more closely follow the pickup and shipment of prescriptions to avoid the scenario from reoccurring."[116]

F. Decertification of Prescribers and Pharmacies

The REMS requires mifepristone sponsors to decertify health care providers and pharmacies that "do not maintain compliance with certification requirements."[117] Danco has decertified two pharmacies, both between October 2024 and September 2025—the authorized representative for one pharmacy did not participate in a required audit and requested decertification, and the other pharmacy was determined to be an in-patient facility whose activities should be conducted under an individual prescriber certification and not a pharmacy certification, so that account was put on hold until the Prescriber Agreement Form was completed and received.[118] GBP has never decertified any pharmacies.[119] GBP further stated that all instances of pharmacy noncompliance found through audits were able to be resolved through corrective actions.[120]

Notably, Danco and GBP both reported that neither has ever decertified a certified prescriber.[121] GBP further stated that it has never identified any certified prescriber noncompliance with the REMS certification requirements.[122] Danco did not address whether it has ever identified any certified prescriber noncompliance with the REMS. If GBP has never observed any noncompliance with the REMS requirements among its thousands of certified prescribers, this may indicate a lack of visibility into the prescribing patterns of certified prescribers to verify compliance.

G. Example of Mifepristone Sponsors' Potential Lack of Insight into Their Supply Chains and Minimal Oversight of Prescriber Compliance with the REMS

Buried in its Terms of Use, Aid Access acknowledges that "[t]he online consultation and email counseling service is not a substitute for in person medical advice," however, Aid Access facilitates the prescription of chemical abortion drugs nonetheless.

The seeming inability of mifepristone sponsors to properly monitor their supply chains and ensure certified prescriber compliance with the REMS requirements was illustrated in a recent video published by Dr. Christina Francis of the American Association of Pro-Life OBGYNs (AAPLOG). In the video, Dr. Francis orders mifepristone online from the website Aid Access, an online-only chemical abortion seller, and demonstrates how multiple REMS requirements were likely violated by Aid Access's participating prescribers.[123] While Aid Access itself is not a certified prescriber, the website collects information from patients seeking to be prescribed mifepristone through an online intake form and then provides the information to a "licensed doctor" to prescribe the drug, all without the patient ever having any direct contact with the prescriber.[124] Notably, buried in its Terms of Use, Aid Access acknowledges that "[t]he online consultation and email counseling service is not a substitute for in person medical advice,"[125] however, Aid Access facilitates the prescription of chemical abortion drugs nonetheless.

Aid Access does not state whether its doctors are certified prescribers or whether they prescribe FDA-approved versions of mifepristone, but the mifepristone that Dr. Francis received in the mail upon ordering it from Aid Access was GBP's generic mifepristone product.[126] Furthermore, Plan

C, a website which is designed to connect patients with online sellers of mifepristone, reports that Aid Access provides "FDA-approved medications."[127]

While it is ambiguous whether the provider who prescribed Dr. Francis GBP's mifepristone was certified in the Mifepristone REMS Program, Aid Access's prescribing and dispensing process raised a number of red flags. If the prescriber involved in the transaction was certified, the way in which Dr. Francis was able to order mifepristone indicates numerous instances of what appear to be clear violations of the REMS outlined below. If, on the other hand, the prescriber was not certified, the prescribing and dispensing of GBP's mifepristone would themselves be violations of the REMS because the drug was accessed outside certified channels. If this is the case, it indicates either that GBP does not have adequate insight into the supply chain and prescribing of its drug or, perhaps even more concerningly, that it may be aware of these types of arrangements and complicit in them.

If this is the case, it indicates either that GBP does not have adequate insight into the supply chain and prescribing of its drug or, perhaps even more concerningly, that it may be aware of these types of arrangements and complicit in them.

In the video, Dr. Francis was able to obtain a mifepristone prescription even though, for the purposes of illustrating the lack of medical oversight in prescribing mifepristone, she stated that she was 13 years old, had an intrauterine device in place (which leads to higher risk of having an ectopic pregnancy), had anemia (low blood count), took blood pressure medication, took blood thinning medication, had three caesarean sections (last one two years ago), and had an ectopic pregnancy one year ago. There was no follow-up by a prescriber asking any additional questions about these serious complications. Instead, within "two minutes" of submitting the online form, Dr. Francis got an email saying she would be prescribed the pills once she emailed back a screenshot of the payment confirmation. AAPLOG then reported that within one week, GBP's generic mifepristone, along with 12 misoprostol pills from an unknown manufacturer, arrived by mail to Dr. Francis.[128]

While mifepristone is only FDA approved through 10 weeks gestation, Aid Access openly advertises prescribing the drug through 14 weeks gestation.[129] The REMS and the Prescriber Agreement Form require certified prescribers to be able to "assess the duration of pregnancy accurately,"[130] however, Dr. Francis was only required to make a "best guess" of the first day of her last regular period, which was presumably used to determine the gestational age.[131] This would not appear to fulfill the REMS requirement that a certified prescriber be able to "assess the duration of pregnancy accurately." Notably, ACOG reports that nearly half of women will be wrong about how far along their pregnancy is when basing it on the date of their last period, and ACOG says that any pregnancy under 22 weeks not dated with an ultrasound should be considered "suboptimally dated."[132]

Before prescribing mifepristone, Aid Access required Dr. Francis to sign a "Patient Agreement Form," but the form required her to attest to things that conflicted with the information Dr. Francis provided through the online intake form or were not possible based on Aid Access's care model. Notably, Aid Access's "Patient Agreement Form" differs from the FDA-approved version of the Patient Agreement Form in the REMS, calling into question whether the Patient Agreement Form required to be signed by the patient was ever actually signed prior to the prescription of the drug. The prescribing process included no medical oversight or direct contact with a health care provider to deconflict and ensure the patient was an appropriate candidate for the drug. Relevant attestations from the Aid Access "Patient Agreement Form" included:

- "My healthcare provider has talked with me about the risks, including: heavy bleeding [and] infection"[133] – the online intake form did not discuss serious risks of infection and only included brief warnings that heavy bleeding could occur after taking the chemical abortion drugs.
- "I will contact the clinic/office/provider right away if in the days after treatment I have: [symptoms of fever, heavy bleeding, severe stomach pain, weakness, nausea, vomiting, or diarrhea]"[134] – the intake form did not include specific contact information for a clinic or provider.
- "If I need a surgical procedure because the medicines did not end my pregnancy or to stop heavy bleeding, my healthcare provider has told me whether they will do the procedure or refer me to another healthcare provider who will"[135] – the intake form did not include contact information or a referral to another health care provider for surgical procedures.
- "I have the Medication Guide for mifepristone"[136] – no medication guide is ever provided to the patient prior to signing the "Patient Agreement Form."
- "My healthcare provider has answered all my questions"[137] – the Aid Access prescribing process does not include an opportunity to ask questions of a provider prior to signing the "Patient Agreement Form" or receiving the chemical abortion drugs.

While this is just one example, it shows that prescribers, especially online-only prescribers, may not always comply with the REMS requirements they agreed to when signing the Prescriber Agreement Form. Many other websites use the same prescribing process without direct medical oversight. It is highly likely that Danco and GBP are aware of the existence of these types of websites, but do not conduct oversight into whether these websites operate outside of the certified prescriber process or, if they do rely on certified prescribers, if those individuals are actually complying with the requirements of the REMS and Prescriber Agreement Form. These findings together demonstrate that once a prescriber submits a Prescriber Agreement Form to a mifepristone sponsor, instances of noncompliance with REMS requirements (beyond completion of required paperwork) are unlikely to be identified unless the prescriber self-reports the violation. The fact that no prescriber has ever been decertified underscores this point further. Regardless, the representation of mifepristone provided through Aid Access and similar websites as "FDA approved" provides a false sense of security to patients and denies them the protections mandated by the REMS to ensure the drug is being prescribed in a way that minimizes the risk of adverse events.

H. REMS Assessments

Drug sponsors that are subject to REMS requirements must periodically submit REMS Assessment reports to FDA to ensure compliance with legal and regulatory requirements. These assessments are submitted according to intervals set forth in the approved REMS. Under the SSS REMS for mifepristone, the three mifepristone sponsors must submit a joint REMS Assessment to FDA one year from the date of approval of the modified REMS and annually thereafter.[138] Further, the SSS REMS for mifepristone requires each sponsor to annually submit a sponsor-specific REMS Assessment containing information regarding the respective distribution of its product.[139] Given that the annual REMS Assessments provide the most comprehensive review of prescriber, pharmacy, and distributor compliance with the REMS requirements, Senator Cassidy requested that Danco and GBP provide copies of all REMS Assessments they have submitted to FDA. After initially refusing to provide the assessments, citing concerns about sharing confidential commercial information,[140] both Danco and GBP subsequently agreed to produce their most recent sponsor-specific REMS Assessments with confidential commercial information redacted.[141] The sponsors also each produced the most recent Joint REMS Assessment submitted to FDA.[142]

The Joint REMS Assessment, covering the period October 1, 2024, through September 30, 2025, was submitted jointly to FDA by Danco, GBP, and Evita. In the Joint Assessment, all three mifepristone sponsors agreed that "the goal of the SSS REMS for mifepristone is being met."[143] The three sponsors also agreed that no proposed modifications or additions to the REMS were needed.[144]

The sponsor-specific REMS Assessments produced by Danco and GBP are heavily redacted, and in some cases, redact information that the sponsor produced in narrative form in response to questions. For example, Danco redacted the number of certified prescribers, certified pharmacies, and authorized distributors despite providing those numbers in its other responses to Senator Cassidy.[145] While GBP left its total number of certified prescribers and authorized distributors unredacted, it did redact its number of certified pharmacies despite providing those numbers in its responses.[146] Danco also redacted the entirety of the information regarding its audits of authorized distributors and certified pharmacies, despite providing summary information in its responses.[147] GBP kept marginally more information about its audits unredacted, but still redacted most information regarding pharmacy and distributor noncompliance with the REMS requirements.[148] Despite the significant redactions, both sponsor-specific REMS Assessments illustrate the types of information FDA is looking at when overseeing the sponsors' and other stakeholders' compliance with the REMS requirements. These discrepancies and contradictions between the information Danco and GBP were willing to provide in different rounds of responses to Senator Cassidy's inquiry raise questions about the validity of purported security and commercial concerns used to justify the redactions. The sponsor-specific REMS Assessments, as produced by Danco and GBP, are included in the report's Appendix at pages 54-67 (Danco) and 111-123 (GBP).

I. Adverse Events and Deaths

In response to Senator Cassidy's requests for detailed information relating to fatal and non-fatal adverse events resulting from the use of their drugs, both Danco and GBP pointed to FDA's Adverse Event Monitoring System (AEMS) database and FDA's Mifepristone U.S. Post-Marketing Adverse Events Summary reports.[149] Danco disclosed that from Mifeprex's approval in 2000 through February 28, 2026, it had reported 4,172 non-fatal adverse events in its periodic reports to FDA.[150] Danco also identified 29 instances of death among women who had taken Mifeprex, but notes that not all of these deaths were causally attributed to Mifeprex.[151] GBP did not disclose the number of non-fatal adverse events reported from the use of its generic mifepristone, but reported nine deaths associated with the use of the drug since its approval.[152] Both Danco and GBP also reiterated that they are required to report to FDA all fatal and non-fatal adverse events reported to them pursuant to FDA regulations; however, as discussed below, prescribers are no longer required to report non-fatal adverse events to the mifepristone sponsors.

Up until 2016, certified prescribers were required to "report any hospitalization, transfusion or other serious event [which includes deaths]" to the drug sponsor (only Danco at the time) which was then required to report these adverse events to FDA.[153] However, in 2016, the Obama FDA removed the requirement for certified prescribers to report non-fatal adverse events to the drug sponsor, and certified prescribers have subsequently only been required to report deaths to the manufacturer.[154]

In court documents, Danco and GBP have claimed the non-fatal adverse event reporting requirement was unnecessary, but have also pointed to the lack of reported adverse events following the 2016 REMS change in attempting to justify FDA's decision to remove the in-person dispensing requirement for mifepristone.[155] The United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit characterized the elimination of the adverse event reporting requirement and the subsequent reliance on the absence of non-fatal adverse event reports to demonstrate mifepristone's safety as a "deeply troubling" "ostrich's-head-in-the-sand approach."[156]

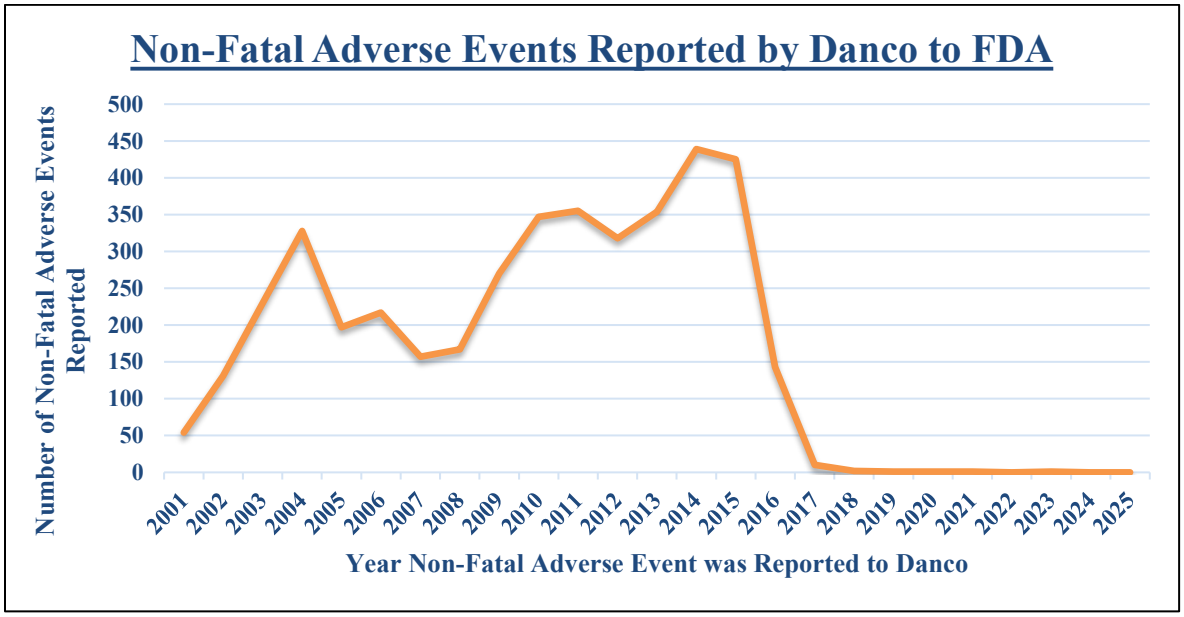

In court documents, Danco and GBP have claimed the non-fatal adverse event reporting requirement was unnecessary, but have also pointed to the lack of reported adverse events following the 2016 REMS change in attempting to justify FDA's decision to remove the in-person dispensing requirement for mifepristone.

A review of FDA's AEMS database shows a stark contrast between the number of non-fatal adverse event reports submitted before and after the 2016 REMS change removing the reporting requirement. Up until the March 29, 2016 change, Danco had reported about 4,000 non-fatal adverse events associated with the use of Mifeprex.[157] However, since this change, Danco has only reported about 150 non-fatal adverse events over the last 10 years.[158] GBP's generic mifepristone product was approved in April 2019, after the 2016 REMS change, but in the seven years since its approval, GBP has only reported about 10 non-fatal adverse events, along with the nine aforementioned deaths it has reported.[159] The graph below illustrates the sharp decline in the number of non-fatal adverse events reported by Danco to FDA since the March 2016 REMS change.[160]

FDA's Mifepristone U.S. Post-Marketing Adverse Events Summary reports confirm this trend. In these summary reports, FDA provides the total number of cases with any adverse event for women who used mifepristone for chemical abortions, organized by date ranges. The most recent report shows that from September 2000 through October 2012, there were 2,740 cases with an adverse event.[161] From November 2012 through December 2024 (an identical length of time), there were 1,512 cases with an adverse event.[162] While it is uncertain from the summary report how many of the 1,512 adverse events in the second period were reported after the non-fatal adverse event reporting requirement was ended in March 2016, this is a marked decrease in non-fatal adverse events reported. Comparing different versions of the report reveals additional detail: when comparing the June 2021 version of the report[163] with the December 2018 version,[164] the data show that only 12 adverse events were reported from January 1, 2019, through June 30, 2021.

When comparing the December 2024 version[165] with the June 2021 version,[166] only 45 adverse events were reported from July 1, 2021, through December 31, 2024.

In another illuminating example from these summary reports, there were 97 ectopic pregnancies reported from September 2000 through December 2018.[167] Notably, this number remained at 97 in the December 2024 report,[168] meaning that zero ectopic pregnancies were reported to FDA during that six-year period where FDA reports 3.8 million women took mifepristone.

This number remained at 97 in the December 2024 report, meaning that zero ectopic pregnancies were reported to FDA during that six-year period where FDA reports 3.8 million women took mifepristone.

These findings raise questions about whether the removal of the requirement for certified prescribers to report non-fatal adverse events had a chilling effect on the number of adverse events reported to the drug sponsors. While the drug sponsors are still required to report non-fatal adverse events they receive to FDA, this requirement does little good if the non-fatal adverse events are not reported to the drug sponsors in the first place. This concern is magnified when you consider that since the 2023 REMS changes, prescribers can now prescribe mifepristone fully anonymously online, making it next to impossible that non-fatal adverse events would be reported to the drug sponsors.

J. Mifepristone Utilization

Due to the dearth of data surrounding the utilization of mifepristone for chemical abortions, Senator Cassidy requested that Danco and GBP provide the number of mifepristone drugs each had sold on a state-by-state and quarterly basis since their respective drugs' date of approval. Danco refused to provide this information, while GBP provided nationally aggregated data on its generic mifepristone utilization.

In response to Senator Cassidy's requests, Danco restated the publicly available figure from FDA that "7.5 million women have used mifepristone (both Mifeprex and generic products) in the United States" for chemical abortions as of December 31, 2024, in all three of its responses.[169] Danco claimed that this information was "highly sensitive, confidential commercial information."[170]

GBP, while also refusing to provide state-by-state and quarterly mifepristone utilization data, reported that it "sold more than 850,000 units of generic mifepristone throughout the United States" between 2019 and 2023.[171] However, GBP states that "[p]roviding information regarding the number of mifepristone tablets sold per quarter or by state would disclose nonpublic, commercially sensitive business information."[172] GBP further said that it has "maintained the confidentiality of its sales data and market share information since the launch of GBP's generic mifepristone in 2019, including in litigation proceedings," and that "federal courts have agreed that disclosure of such information would cause harm to GBP's business operations."[173] However, the federal court order GBP cites to in support of this proposition dealt only with granting a motion to redact market share percentages from a hearing transcript; it did not address aggregated sales data.[174]

In its amicus briefs filed with the U.S. Supreme Court in 2023 in the FDA v. Alliance for Hippocratic Medicine litigation, GBP stated that it supplies two-thirds of the current domestic market for mifepristone used for chemical abortions.[175] Notably, GBP responded to Senator Cassidy's questions by simply saying that "its sales constitute a majority of the U.S. mifepristone market."[176] It is unclear whether this difference is due to a decline in GBP's market share since 2023, or whether GBP chose to be less precise in its response to this inquiry. Regardless, market share data was never requested in this inquiry.

K. Revenue

While Danco and GBP are private companies, Senator Cassidy requested information as to the revenues and profits the companies are making from the sale of their chemical abortion drugs that are intended to kill unborn children. Both sponsors declined to provide specific information as to their financials, but Danco did share some high-level insights. Danco reported that its "[a]nnual revenue varies, but is less than $20 million per year."[177] When asked for more details, Danco stated that since Mifeprex's approval in 2000, "annual total sales revenue has ranged from $1 million to $26 million with an average of $16 million," but that "[i]n each of the past five years, annual sales revenue has not exceeded $20 million."[178] GBP, on the other hand, refused to provide any revenue information other than initially stating that its "sales of mifepristone account for the majority of its revenue."[179] When pressed for more information, GBP subsequently stated that its "sales of mifepristone account for approximately 95% of its revenue."[180] GBP refused to provide any information as to how much money it makes from the sale of chemical abortion drugs.

L. Third-Party Websites

Both Danco and GBP have links on their respective websites directing consumers to third-party websites to locate a mifepristone provider, each of which includes sellers that openly advertise selling the drug to women beyond the FDA-approved 10-week limit.[181] When asked why they are directing consumers to sellers of their drug that advertise selling the drug past its window of FDA approval, both Danco and GBP sought to disclaim any responsibility. Evita similarly now links to these third-party websites on its website[182] but was not asked questions on this topic since its website did not include these links when the investigation began.

Danco stated that its website "provides general information to the public on third-party resources designed to help individuals locate reproductive healthcare services."[183] It further said that the resources are simply "informational directories" and that putting them on its website does "not constitute endorsements of or referrals to any specific healthcare provider or organization."[184] Danco also represented that it "does not have any ownership interest, contractual relationship, referral arrangement, or other affiliation with any telemedicine service providers."[185] Notably, since this investigation began, Danco has removed two of the third-party resources it previously listed on its website: Abortion.com and Plan C.[186]

GBP stated that its website "helps patients identify health care providers who can evaluate them for care" and that the organizations listed on its website "provide directories of abortion care providers or are membership organizations for abortion care providers."[187] GBP further said that it "does not control these organizations or the content of those organizations' websites."[188]

Based on these responses, both Danco and GBP were asked whether either had ever pursued any communication with these websites to alert them that they are advertising their drugs in a manner inconsistent with the labeling and approved indication. Danco stated that it "has not had any communications with third-party websites to discuss, direct, or comment upon their content."[189] GBP did not answer the question directly but said it "has no legal obligation under any applicable law, regulations, or the REMS to monitor or correct statements made by independent third parties."[190]

In response to follow-up questions requesting a further explanation of sales practices and why it would direct patients to providers that prescribe Mifeprex outside of its approved indication and labeling, Danco produced all of its promotional materials, which are included in the report's Appendix at pages 68-75. Danco further stated that "[p]urposefully, Danco does not name any individual healthcare providers or otherwise direct website visitors to any particular healthcare provider" and that the resources function as "informational directories" as opposed to "endorsements of or referrals to any specific healthcare provider or organization, or of any use of the drug."[191] Finally, Danco said it "does not include these resources on the Mifeprex website to increase sales of Mifeprex" and that "in fact, the healthcare providers listed on these informational directories do not necessarily prescribe Mifeprex."[192] GBP similarly stated that its promotional activities are "in compliance with applicable laws and FDA requirements" but it did not produce any of its other promotional materials.[193] It also said that it "affirmatively disclaims any control or endorsement of the content of [the] sites [listed on its website]."[194]

While Danco and GBP may not have any financial relationship with any of the third-party websites, it is telling that they still choose to post these "directories" on their websites, where potential consumers will likely use them to purchase mifepristone. And, while not related to the FDA approval itself, many of the websites openly advertise selling mifepristone into states where such a sale is illegal under state law. Justice Alito summarized the scheme aptly in his dissent in the recent Danco v. Louisiana case before the U.S. Supreme Court:

> Some States responded to Dobbs by making it even easier to obtain an abortion than it was before, and that is their prerogative. Other States, including Louisiana, made abortion illegal except in narrow circumstances. But Louisiana's efforts have been thwarted by certain medical providers, private organizations, and States that abhor laws like Louisiana's and seek to undermine their enforcement. These medical providers and private organizations have developed an operation enabling women in Louisiana and other States that restrict abortions to place an online order for a pill called mifepristone that induces abortion. After an order is placed, the drug > is mailed to women in Louisiana. The manufacturers of the drug, including Danco and GenBioPro, are obviously aware of what is going on yet nevertheless supply the drug and reap profits from its felonious use in Louisiana.[195]

While it may not violate any law or regulation for Danco and GBP to list those third-party websites on their own websites, it raises the question of whether the two sponsors are indifferent as to whether their drugs are actually prescribed as approved by FDA and in compliance with state laws.

M. REMS Compliance

While FDA should reinstate the in-person dispensing requirement and other aspects of the REMS that were recklessly removed by Democrat administrations, the mifepristone sponsors may not be currently meeting their legal responsibilities to ensure compliance with even the few remaining REMS requirements, specifically as they relate to online-based mifepristone prescribers.

While FDA should reinstate the in-person dispensing requirement and other aspects of the REMS that were recklessly removed by Democrat administrations, the mifepristone sponsors may not be currently meeting their legal responsibilities to ensure compliance with even the few remaining REMS requirements, specifically as they relate to online-based mifepristone prescribers.

Because many online clinics allow individuals to order these drugs anonymously, it is unclear how prescribers can ensure that the patient is even who they say they are and that the Patient Agreement Form is reviewed with the patient, signed by the patient, and placed in the patient's medical record. A tragic consequence of anonymous prescribing of the chemical abortion drug is evidenced by the numerous cases that have recently come to light of men ordering mifepristone online and coercing pregnant women to take the drug.[196] Further, with an anonymous prescriber-patient relationship, it is unclear how the NDC code and lot number of the drug could be recorded in a patient's record in case adverse events or deaths occur and how those events could be reported to the sponsor and subsequently FDA. It is also unclear how an online prescriber could adequately provide counseling regarding the risk of serious complications associated with mifepristone or ensure any questions the patient may have prior to receiving mifepristone are answered. In terms of patient safety, many online sellers of mifepristone appear to automatically prescribe the drug after an individual fills out a brief intake form, raising questions about whether online prescribers could actually have the ability to accurately assess gestational age or be able to diagnose an ectopic pregnancy—failures that could lead to serious adverse events for the patient.[197] Additionally, it is unclear how online prescribers can satisfy the REMS requirement to provide surgical intervention themselves, or arrange such care through others, if the individual ordering the drug is anonymous and may be located in a different state than the prescriber. Notably, many online prescribers advise patients that they do not have to tell a doctor that they took the chemical abortion drugs if they later seek care for serious adverse events.[198]

Due to these concerns, Senator Cassidy asked Danco and GBP a litany of questions about how they ensure that their certified prescribers, specifically online prescribers, are complying with the aforementioned REMS requirements. Senator Cassidy also asked Evita questions about how it would ensure the REMS requirements were met once its generic mifepristone product was launched. Danco and Evita initially responded by reiterating the mifepristone REMS requirements verbatim without articulating in any way how they ensure online prescriber compliance with these requirements.[199] GBP similarly regurgitated the mifepristone REMS requirements, but noted specifically that the Prescriber Agreement Form provides that "the certified prescriber is 'responsible for overseeing implementation and compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program.'"[200] In other words, the onus is on the certified prescribers to police themselves, not on the mifepristone sponsor. That position seems to contradict FDA's stated position that "[t]he drug manufacturer is responsible for implementing the requirements of the REMS."[201]

In Danco's second response, it similarly disclaimed responsibility for ensuring certified prescribers are actually fulfilling the responsibilities they attested to in the Prescriber Agreement Form. Danco said that under the REMS, its "administration and oversight of the REMS focuses on the distribution chain (i.e., through audits of authorized distributors and certified pharmacies) to ensure Mifeprex reaches patients only pursuant to prescriptions from certified prescribers."[202] It further stated that "[t]he REMS does not require Danco to audit certified prescribers of Mifeprex, independently confirm prescriber attestations, or otherwise oversee individual prescribing decisions."[203] Danco did say that "[w]here noncompliance is identified, Danco pursues corrective and preventive actions and, if necessary, decertification, with reporting to FDA as required."[204] But it is no wonder that Danco has never decertified a single prescriber when it claims to never take steps to confirm that the prescribers are actually meeting the requirements they attest to.

When asked to explain how Danco identifies prescriber noncompliance with REMS requirements if it does not audit prescribers or independently confirm prescriber attestations, Danco simply reiterated its obligations to audit pharmacies and distributors and ensure Mifeprex is shipped only to certified pharmacies and prescribers.[205]

In GBP's second response, it continued to rely on its contentions from its first response, namely that certified prescribers are responsible for overseeing implementation and compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program and that mifepristone "'must be dispensed to patients with evidence or other documentation of safe use conditions as ensured by the certified prescriber in signing' the Prescriber Form."[206] GBP, similarly to Danco, refused to provide any information as to how it monitors prescribers and ensures the attestations made in the Prescriber Agreement Form are correct and complied with on an ongoing basis. In fact, GBP stated that "[p]roviding additional information on the processes that GBP employs to monitor and assess the REMS program would disclose commercially sensitive business information."[207] When asked directly about whether it audits individual certified prescribers or independently confirms prescriber attestations, and if not, how it identifies and addresses prescriber noncompliance with REMS requirements, GBP simply stated that it "complies with its obligations under the REMS" and that "if an actual or suspected instance of prescriber non-compliance were brought to GBP's attention, GBP would investigate and respond appropriately" including potential decertification.[208] However, like Danco, GBP has never decertified a single prescriber in over seven years of having its drug on the market.

Evita, which had not yet launched its generic mifepristone product during the investigation, similarly did not provide insight into how certified prescribers, specifically online ones, would be held accountable in following the REMS requirements. Evita stated that it "has developed robust processes to support adherence to the [Mifepristone REMS] Program's requirements" which "include mechanisms to identify and address potential noncompliance."[209] It shed no light on what these processes and mechanisms are. In response to the question of whether it would audit individual certified prescribers or independently confirm prescriber attestations, Evita simply said "it has not yet shipped any product commercially and has not yet certified any prescribers."[210]

On a related note, Danco, presumably to refute the contention that anonymous prescribing of Mifeprex is occurring, stated that it "is not aware of any state that permits healthcare providers with prescribing capabilities to prescribe Mifeprex without a relationship between a named prescriber and named patient or otherwise permits pharmacies to dispense Mifeprex to an unnamed patient."[211] Despite Danco's assertion, California last September enacted AB 260, a law allowing prescribers and pharmacies to dispense mifepristone without the prescriber's name, the patient's name, or the name and address of the pharmacy.[212] Other states have similar laws that, although not as far-reaching as California's, still allow for prescriber and pharmacy anonymity. For example, Maine, New York, and Washington all have laws allowing prescribers to remove their name from the label for mifepristone prescriptions and include the name of the prescriber's health care facility instead.[213] In Vermont, a mifepristone prescriber and dispensing pharmacists may remove their own names without a requirement to include the health care facility name in their place.[214] By Danco's own count, at least 2,566 certified prescribers (nearly half its total certified prescribers) practice in states where they can anonymously prescribe Mifeprex to patients across the country.

N. Evita's ANDA Approval Process

As noted above, FDA approved Evita's ANDA for generic mifepristone on September 30, 2025—exactly four years after the ANDA was received by FDA for review on October 1, 2021.[215] Section 505(j)(5)(A) of the FDCA (21 U.S.C. § 355(j)(5)(A)) requires FDA to approve or disapprove an ANDA within 180 days after the initial receipt of an application or within an additional period if agreed upon by FDA and the applicant. A four-year approval timeline is twice the median length of time to receive a decision for other ANDAs. Furthermore, Virginia state records indicate that Evita was formed as a limited liability company on June 26, 2024—almost three years after its ANDA was received by FDA.[216] Given this information, Senator Cassidy asked Evita questions about the reasons for the delay in its ANDA approval and its history as a company. He also requested written communications between Evita and FDA regarding the delay, including any agreements between the two.

In response, Evita stated that "[t]he timing for review and approval of Evita's ANDA was the result of common issues for ANDAs, requiring submission of supplemental information and typical amendments to the application."[217] Evita refused to produce any documentation regarding the approval and its communications with FDA. Evita did disclose that it "acquired the ANDA from another company after the product had been in development for several years,"[218] but Evita repeatedly refused to provide the name of that company, claiming that "disclosure of that information could pose risks to the lives or physical safety of individuals."[219]

VI. Conclusion

The findings in this investigation demonstrate a consistent pattern of a lack of transparency regarding the operations of mifepristone sponsors and raise critical questions about the effectiveness of their oversight of the supply chain for their drugs and prescribers to ensure compliance with REMS requirements. Under the current Mifepristone REMS Program, the mifepristone sponsors have the responsibility of ensuring REMS requirements are being complied with. Yet that responsibility, by the sponsors' telling, only extends as far as overseeing distributor and pharmacy behavior and simply making sure certification forms are submitted. Given that these oversight requirements do not extend to the mifepristone prescribing patterns of certified prescribers, the lack of guardrails ensuring a sufficient provider-patient relationship creates accountability gaps for a product that carries risks of significant adverse health outcomes. That not a single prescriber has been decertified in the entire history of the Mifepristone REMS Program solidifies this point.

The fact that none of the three mifepristone sponsors were able to articulate any steps they are taking or will take to address the plethora of online prescribers clearly prescribing their drugs in violation of REMS requirements is startling. Danco and GBP rely on the fact that there is no explicit requirement in the REMS for them to conduct oversight over the prescribers, other than ensuring a Prescriber Agreement Form was filled out. However, Danco, GBP, and Evita all contributed to the development of the SSS REMS for mifepristone, including setting its goals and implementation and evaluation strategies. It is therefore unclear why the sponsors—if they believe it is problematic to have online sellers illegally marketing their products—would not propose the inclusion of guardrails in the REMS to reduce the likelihood of this behavior. To the contrary, there is evidence that Danco repeatedly sought to expand access to its drug and eliminate the REMS for Mifeprex altogether.[220] Similarly, GBP has advocated for the erosion of REMS safeguards, seeking to expand access to chemical abortion and even arguing for the removal of REMS requirements before its generic version of mifepristone was approved by FDA.[221]

Danco, GBP, and Evita all contributed to the development of the SSS REMS for mifepristone, including setting its goals and implementation and evaluation strategies. It is therefore unclear why the sponsors—if they believe it is problematic to have online sellers illegally marketing their products—would not propose the inclusion of guardrails in the REMS to reduce the likelihood of this behavior.

[220] See Carrie N. Baker, Abortion Pills: US History and Politics 80 (2024) (Dr. Mitchell Creinin, a medical consultant for Danco, stated, "Danco fought hard to remove the REMS multiple times, but the FDA made it really clear throughout the whole process the REMS was not going away," and "Danco fought tooth and nail to get rid of the REMS.").

[221] See About GenBioPro, GENBIOPRO, https://genbiopro.com/about-genbiopro/ (last visited Mar. 25, 2026) ("Before coming to market, we advocated for reduced dosage requirements, an expanded treatment window, broader prescriber privileges, and fewer required patient visits.").

It is also an indictment of FDA that the agency would continuously approve a REMS that did not require any sort of oversight into the prescribers, given the well-documented history of mifepristone marketing and access in violation of the REMS. This posture may have been acceptable while the in-person dispensing requirement was still in place, but in the Wild West of mail-order abortion nationwide without a required provider-patient relationship, it is clear that more stringent oversight mechanisms are needed, beginning with the reinstatement of the in-person dispensing requirement.

It is also an indictment of FDA that the agency would continuously approve a REMS that did not require any sort of oversight into the prescribers, given the well-documented history of mifepristone marketing and access in violation of the REMS.

Collectively, these factors underscore substantial gaps in the Mifepristone REMS Program, which the sponsors have consistently demonstrated a lack of willingness to help address. This investigation has exposed challenges with the REMS ETASU framework in instances where a sponsor does not act in good faith to effectively oversee its supply chain and ensure its product is not in circulation outside of REMS-compliant channels. In situations such as these, FDA should step in to institute more stringent REMS requirements that provide sufficient guardrails to discourage inappropriate use of products approved with ETASU. The Department of Justice should also continue to work closely with FDA and other relevant federal agencies to explore legal mechanisms to address instances of willful noncompliance with REMS requirements by prescribers. Failure to do so risks further erosion of public trust in health care and regulatory institutions. Absent immediate FDA action to reestablish the in-person dispensing requirement and other critical protections, Americans will not have certainty that the safety risks of mifepristone have been sufficiently mitigated, and pregnant women will continue to be put in harm's way.

Ms. Long:

We write with deep concern regarding Danco Laboratories, LLC's (Danco) business practices and the adequacy of its oversight and implementation of the Mifepristone Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategy (REMS) Program required for its product's marketing.

Danco is one of three sponsors approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to market the chemical abortion drug, mifepristone, for use in a regimen with misoprostol to terminate a pregnancy through 10 weeks gestation.[1] Danco was approved to sell the brand name version of mifepristone, Mifeprex, in 2000, and has marketed the drug in the U.S. since that time.[2] Mifeprex is Danco's only product, and Danco has stated that it would have to close its business if it was prevented from selling this drug because the company would no longer generate revenue.[3]

Notably, key aspects of Danco's corporate structure and leadership are obscure despite being the sponsor of an FDA-approved drug marketed and sold to hundreds of thousands of Americans. Reporting from the Los Angeles Times characterizes Danco as "all but anonymous," noting that the company has fewer than 20 employees, uses a P.O. Box to avoid disclosing its headquarters' address, and is not listed on any public exchanges.[4] Danco does not make any of its sales figures public and operates largely "in obscurity."[5] The Los Angeles Times also notes that Danco "has had to work closely with the FDA to not disclose its address" and that "[a]ll of the documents related to the [2000] approval [of Mifeprex] have been redacted so . . . manufacturer locations don't become public."[6] Danco told the Los Angeles Times that it "wouldn't share the name of the company's current chief executive, board members or investors."[7] Its drug label states that

Mifeprex is manufactured in Spain but provides no other details.[8] This level of secrecy is unusual given that most pharmaceutical companies are far more transparent, including disclosing where their drugs are manufactured, their sales numbers, their leadership teams, and other basic information about their business. The Washington Post once characterized Danco as "[s]ecretive and obscure" and "one of the most enigmatic companies in the pharmaceutical industry."[9]

Some of Danco's financial information became public during protracted litigation in 2022 involving private equity-backed investors seeking control of the company. In a deposition in that case, Danco's Chief Financial Officer, Angelia Van Vranken, stated that Mifeprex had "been extremely profitable," that Danco's investors had a 452 percent return on investment over 23 years, and that one of Danco's top investors and executive chair of the board of directors, W. Bradley Daniel, had earned over $10.3 million in proxy fees alone.[10] It is concerning that it took a court battle amongst private equity investors to reveal some of Danco's substantial profits.

Danco's chemical abortion drug, Mifeprex, is subject to a shared system REMS program, along with the two approved generic versions, "to mitigate the risk of serious complications associated with mifepristone."[11] The Mifepristone REMS Program has undergone significant changes since it was initially established in 2011, including allowing the drug to be prescribed through 10 weeks gestation (up from seven weeks initially), removing the requirement that prescribers report non-fatal adverse events to the drug manufacturer, and perhaps most concerningly, removing the requirement that the drug be dispensed through an in-person visit with a provider.[12] While we have long urged FDA to reinstate these needed REMS requirements that were recklessly removed by Democrat administrations,[13] we are concerned that Danco is not meeting its legal responsibilities to ensure compliance with even the few remaining REMS requirements.

Under the current Mifepristone REMS Program approved in September 2025, the drug may only be dispensed under the supervision of certified prescribers or by certified pharmacies, on prescriptions issued by certified prescribers, and patients must be informed about the risk of serious complications associated with the drug.[14] In order to become a certified prescriber, a health care provider must, among other requirements, be qualified to (1) assess the duration of pregnancy accurately, (2) diagnose ectopic pregnancies, (3) provide surgical intervention in cases of incomplete abortion or severe bleeding, or have plans to provide such care through others, and (4) assure patient access to medical facilities equipped to provide blood transfusions and resuscitation, if necessary.[15] Certified prescribers must also follow the guidelines for use of mifepristone. These guidelines include ensuring (1) the Patient Agreement Form is reviewed with and signed by the patient, (2) the risks of the mifepristone treatment regimen are fully explained to the patient, (3) the patient is provided with a copy of the Patient Agreement Form and Medication Guide, and (4) the signed Patient Agreement Form is placed in the patient's medical record.[16]

Danco, for its part, must ensure that all prescribers of Mifeprex are specially certified in accordance with these requirements and must de-certify prescribers who do not maintain compliance with certification requirements.[17] Danco must also monitor its distribution data to ensure compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program, ensure that adequate records are maintained to demonstrate that the REMS requirements have been met, and annually audit new pharmacies and distributors.[18] Finally, Danco must report to FDA any deaths associated with Mifeprex, whether or not considered drug-related, within 15 days of receiving the information.[19]

We are concerned that Danco is not ensuring the REMS requirements are met, especially as it pertains to the online prescribing of Mifeprex. On its website, Danco states that women should not take Mifeprex if they have a pregnancy that is more than 10 weeks gestation.[20] However, under the heading "How Do I Get Mifeprex?" Danco directs consumers to six third-party websites to locate a Mifeprex provider, each of which include sellers that openly advertise selling the drug to women beyond the 10-week limit.[21] It seems unlikely that Danco is effectively enforcing compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program when it appears to actively facilitate access to its drug outside of the window for which it is approved by FDA.

Furthermore, because many online clinics allow individuals, including men, to order these drugs anonymously, it is unclear how prescribers can ensure that the Patient Agreement Form is reviewed with the patient, signed by the patient, and placed in the patient's medical record. It is also unclear how an online prescriber could adequately explain the risks of the mifepristone treatment regimen to the patient in accordance with the existing REMS. In terms of patient safety, many online sellers of Mifeprex appear to automatically prescribe the drug after an individual fills out a cursory intake form, raising questions about whether prescribers could accurately assess gestational age or be able to diagnose an ectopic pregnancy—failures that could lead to serious adverse events for the patient.[22] Additionally, it is unclear how online prescribers can satisfy the REMS requirement to provide surgical intervention themselves, or arrange such care through others, if the individual ordering the drug is anonymous and may be located many states away from the prescriber. Finally, patient anonymity and the lack of an adequate doctor-patient relationship raise concerns about whether patient deaths associated with Mifeprex obtained through online prescribers could be reported to Danco, which would again be in violation of the REMS requirements. Notably, many online prescribers advise patients that they do not have to tell a doctor that they took the chemical abortion drugs if they later must seek care for serious adverse events.[23]

There is substantial evidence that women are being harmed not only by serious adverse events associated with your company's drug,[24] but also by coercion and other risks resulting from inadequate implementation of REMS safeguards intended to protect patients.[25] It is also clear that the removal of the requirement to report non-fatal adverse events has significantly downplayed the danger Mifeprex poses to women. Further, the removal of the in-person dispensing requirement has allowed the drug to be widely prescribed with few guardrails to ensure it is being taken safely, without coercion, and with prompt care available for serious complications. Danco has advocated for the erosion of these safeguards, as the company repeatedly sought to expand access to its drug and eliminate the REMS for Mifeprex altogether.[26] But it is extremely concerning that Danco appears to be doing little to nothing to fulfill its legal obligation to implement the few remaining safeguards to protect women from serious harm.

With chemical abortions provided by online clinics now estimated to account for 27 percent of all abortions in the U.S. (about 160,000 abortions in the first half of 2025),[27] Danco must immediately implement the Mifepristone REMS Program requirements and de-certify prescribers who do not

Responses to March 25, 2026 Request

Danco, a small private pharmaceutical company incorporated in Delaware, holds the new drug application (NDA) for Mifeprex® (mifepristone) tablets for use in a regimen with misoprostol for the medical termination of intrauterine pregnancy through 70 days gestation. Both Mifeprex—including the initial U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approval in 2000 and subsequent changes to the product labeling and risk evaluation and mitigation strategy (REMS) program—and Danco have been the subject of close public scrutiny and robust government oversight. For example, FDA's regulation of Mifeprex has been carefully evaluated and documented in two reports by the U.S. Government Accountability Office (GAO).[1] In both instances, GAO concluded that FDA followed standard, lawful processes and appropriately balanced the benefits and risks of the drug in its regulatory decision-making.

Because of the historic and ongoing threat of violence, harassment, and intimidation directed at healthcare providers, patients, and entities providing, obtaining, or involved in reproductive healthcare, Danco has long taken deliberate measures to protect information that could expose relevant individuals (including Danco's employees), entities, and facilities to unnecessary risk. Likewise, FDA elects to maintain certain information regarding the Mifeprex approval in confidence, such as certain individuals' names, because it "has determined that release of certain information may pose a risk of danger to the lives or physical safety of individuals."[2]

These efforts include avoiding public disclosure of information related to the manufacturing and distribution of Mifeprex, REMS-certified prescribers and pharmacies, and patients prescribed Mifeprex. Danco remains committed to cooperating with your inquiries but must ensure that disclosures do not put any individuals or entities at risk. As such, Danco is unable to disclose the names and locations of its manufacturers, authorized distributors, import agents, REMS-certified pharmacies and prescribers; provide patient-specific adverse event information; or provide certain other source documentation and data requested below.

For reference, each numbered request in the March 25, 2026 Response is reproduced in italics, followed by Danco's response.

1. Where does Danco currently manufacture Mifeprex? Please provide the name and address of each facility where Mifeprex is currently manufactured. Please also provide the name and address of any manufacturing facility where Mifeprex has been manufactured since its date of approval in 2000.

The active pharmaceutical ingredient (API) is manufactured at an FDA-registered drug establishment in Spain. The finished drug product is manufactured at an FDA-registered drug establishment elsewhere in Europe. Danco is not able to disclose the names and locations of these manufacturers because the information is highly sensitive and disclosure raises substantial security risks.

2. Please provide the dates, final classifications, and related findings of all FDA inspections of Mifeprex's manufacturing facilities since its date of approval in 2000.

All facilities performing manufacturing activities for Mifeprex are FDA-registered drug establishments.[3] Each facility complies with current good manufacturing practice regulations[4] and is subject to routine regulatory inspections. There are no active or outstanding quality issues related to the manufacturing of Mifeprex, and no inspections related to Mifeprex manufacturing have resulted in an "Official Action Indicated" designation—i.e., a finding by FDA that a facility is in an unacceptable state of compliance.

3. Where does Danco currently import the active pharmaceutical ingredient (API) for Mifeprex? Please provide the name and address of each facility where the API for Mifeprex is currently imported from. Please also provide the name and address of any facility where the API for Mifeprex has been imported from since its date of approval in 2000.

The API is imported into the United States after its manufacture in Spain, stored at a third-party logistics facility, and then exported to Europe for finished product manufacturing and final release testing. The finished drug product is imported back into the United States. All import and export activities are conducted in accordance with applicable laws and regulations.

These activities are overseen by FDA and U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP). As a part of the import verification process, FDA verifies compliance with FDA's standards for quality, safety, and effectiveness.[5] Specifically, among other processes, FDA verifies that (a) the declared manufacturer is properly registered with FDA, (b) the drug product is properly listed with FDA, (c) the foreign manufacturer has identified the declared importer or consignee in its registration, and (d) as needed, the product complies with the NDA approval.[6]

4. Please produce a list of all current and former distributors Danco is or was contracted with to distribute Mifeprex into the U.S. since its date of approval in 2000. Please also include the dates that each contract began (and ended, if applicable).

At this time, Danco has four distributors that distribute Mifeprex. Each is an authorized distributor under the Mifepristone REMS Program. Danco ensures that its authorized distributors distribute only to certified pharmacies or locations identified by certified prescribers, have processes and procedures in place to comply with the REMS, and maintain secure and confidential distribution records.

5. Has Danco engaged any third-party vendors to administer the Mifepristone REMS Program? If so, please identify any such vendors currently engaged, provide the term of these contracts, and describe the functions each vendor performs in support of REMS administration.

No, Danco has not engaged any third-party vendors to administer the Mifepristone REMS Program.

6. How many individuals are currently certified to prescribe Mifeprex in the Mifepristone REMS Program? Please produce an Excel spreadsheet showing how many prescribers are certified in each state.

As of September 30, 2025, there were 5,250 REMS-certified Mifeprex prescribers. Each had submitted a Danco Prescriber Agreement Form to either an authorized distributor or a certified pharmacy.

7. How many pharmacies are currently certified to dispense Mifeprex in the Mifepristone REMS Program? Please produce an Excel spreadsheet showing how many pharmacies are certified in each state. Please also include the name, address, and date of certification for each pharmacy.

As of September 30, 2025, there were 5,927 REMS-certified pharmacies for Mifeprex. Certain pharmacies, including CVS and Walgreens, have agreed to allow Danco to identify them as certified pharmacies for Mifeprex on the Mifeprex website.[7]

8. Please produce a list of all audits Danco has conducted on its certified pharmacies since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000. Please also provide the name and address of each pharmacy, the date of each audit, and the results of each audit.

Historically, Mifeprex was available for dispensing only in healthcare settings (e.g., clinics, medical offices, or hospitals) by or under the supervision of a certified prescriber. In January 2023, FDA modified the REMS to permit dispensing by certified pharmacies. Under the REMS, Danco is required to audit its certified pharmacies within 180 calendar days after the pharmacy places its first order of Mifeprex. Danco must also annually audit all certified pharmacies that have ordered Mifeprex in the previous 12 months. These audits are to ensure that appropriate processes and procedures are in place and functioning to support the requirements of the Mifepristone REMS Program, and Danco is obligated to address any noncompliance identified. To date, Danco has completed all required pharmacy audits under the REMS and addressed all observations of noncompliance in accordance with the REMS.

9. Please produce a list of all audits Danco has conducted on its distributors since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000. Please also provide the name and address of each distributor, the date of each audit, and the results of each audit.

Under the REMS, Danco must audit its new distributors within 90 calendar days. Danco must also annually audit each distributor thereafter. These audits are to ensure that appropriate processes and procedures are in place and function to support the requirements of the Mifepristone REMS Program, and Danco is obligated to address any noncompliance identified. To date, Danco has completed all required distributor audits under the REMS and addressed all observations of noncompliance in accordance with the REMS.

10. Please produce a list of all deaths associated with Mifeprex that Danco has reported to FDA since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000. Please also provide the date of each death, the state each death occurred in, the date each death was reported to Danco, and the date each death was reported to FDA.

More than six million women have received Mifeprex since the drug's approval in 2000; over that same period, Danco has identified 29 instances in which an individual subsequently died after taking Mifeprex. These data include all instances of death in a person who had taken Mifeprex and reflect no determination the death was causally attributed to Mifeprex. For example, several of the deaths resulted from suspected homicide, suicide, or drug abuse/overdose.

Each death was reported to FDA within 15 calendar days from Danco's initial receipt of the information, consistent with Danco's obligations under the REMS and postmarket safety reporting requirements applicable to all NDA holders.[8] In addition, the REMS requires all certified pharmacies and prescribers to report any patient deaths to Danco.

11. Please provide a list of all non-fatal adverse events associated with Mifeprex that Danco reported to FDA from Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000 through 2016 when the requirement to report non-fatal adverse events was removed. Please also provide the date of each adverse event, the state each adverse event occurred in, the date the adverse event was reported to Danco, and the date each adverse event was reported to FDA.

FDA publishes cumulative adverse event information associated with the use of mifepristone, including Mifeprex and generic products. As of the most recent published summary, dated December 31, 2024, FDA reported 4,252 adverse event cases since 2000.[9]

12. Please produce the annual REMS assessments Danco has submitted to FDA since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000.

Danco has submitted all required REMS assessments to FDA. The timetables for these submissions are provided in the current and historic REMS materials.[10] Under the current REMS, Danco submits REMS assessments annually.

13. Please produce all postmarketing studies on fatal and/or non-fatal adverse events that Danco has conducted or is aware of since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000.

Danco complies with its obligation to "promptly review all adverse drug experience information obtained or otherwise received by the applicant from any source, foreign or domestic, including information derived from commercial marketing experience, postmarketing clinical investigations, postmarketing epidemiological/surveillance studies, reports in the scientific literature, and unpublished scientific papers."[11] Danco closely monitors scientific literature and reports and conducts quarterly systematic literature searches to identify adverse drug experience information relevant to Mifeprex. And, as detailed in response to request #27, Danco reports to FDA all adverse events it learns of involving Mifeprex, not just deaths. Although Danco has not conducted any postmarketing studies on fatal and/or non-fatal adverse events since Mifeprex's approval in 2000, Danco promptly investigates all serious and unexpected adverse events, including deaths, consistent with its regulatory obligations.[12] Investigations include promptly requesting detailed case information from the reporter, actively following up with health care providers to obtain relevant medical history and outcomes, and submitting the information to FDA and any new information that may become available. Danco and FDA continue to closely monitor all safety information for any new or worsening safety signals. Since its approval more than two and a half decades ago, Mifeprex's safety profile has been well characterized, thoroughly documented, and consistent; serious adverse events have occurred very rarely.

FDA has reported that approximately 7.5 million women have used mifepristone (both Mifeprex and generic products) in the United States for medical termination of pregnancy as of December 31, 2024.[13]

15. Please produce an Excel spreadsheet that includes the cost, revenue, and profit from the sale of Mifeprex on a quarterly basis since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000.

Danco is a private company and is not able to produce this information as it is highly sensitive confidential commercial information. Annual revenue varies, but is less than $20 million per year.

16. Please produce a list of all prescribers that Danco has de-certified since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000. Please include the date each prescriber was certified, the date each prescriber was de-certified, and the reason each prescriber was de-certified.

Danco has developed and follows noncompliance processes that set forth the procedures for decertification of healthcare providers. For each identified instance of noncompliance, Danco conducts a root cause analysis and develops and implements a corrective and preventative action plan to prevent future occurrences. Danco is obligated to decertify healthcare providers who do not maintain compliance with the REMS certification requirements. Danco is required to report to FDA any instances of prescriber decertification, including the reasons for decertification, and must alert its distributors not to ship to decertified prescribers.

17. Please produce a list of all pharmacies (including their addresses) that Danco has decertified since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000. Please include the date each pharmacy was certified, the date each pharmacy was de-certified, and the reason each pharmacy was de-certified.

As with prescribers, for identified instances of noncompliance, Danco conducts a root cause analysis and develops and implements a corrective and preventative action plan to prevent future occurrences. Danco is obligated to decertify pharmacies that do not maintain compliance with the REMS certification requirements. Danco has developed and follows noncompliance processes that set forth the procedures for decertification of pharmacies. Danco is required to report to FDA any instances of pharmacy decertification, including the reasons for decertification, and must alert its distributors not to ship to decertified pharmacies. In addition, as described in response to request #8, Danco conducts regular audits of its pharmacies.

18. Please explain why Danco directs consumers on its website to online prescribers that advertise prescribing Mifeprex after 10 weeks gestation when FDA only approves Mifeprex for use within the first 10 weeks of pregnancy.

The Mifeprex website provides general information to the public on third-party resources designed to help individuals locate reproductive healthcare services. These resources function as informational directories and do not constitute endorsements of or referrals to any specific healthcare provider or organization. Danco does not have any ownership interest, contractual relationship, referral arrangement, or other affiliation with any telemedicine service providers. Danco does not endorse, and also does not control, the content of third-party websites or the medical judgment of independent healthcare providers listed on telemedicine platforms.

Danco promotes the use of Mifeprex only in accordance with its FDA-approved indication: the medical termination of intrauterine pregnancy through 70 days gestation.

19. Please explain how Danco ensures that online prescribers of Mifeprex review the Patient Agreement Form with patients and fully explain the risks of the mifepristone treatment regimen.

See response to request #26.

20. Please explain how Danco ensures that online prescribers of Mifeprex consistently require patients to sign the Patient Agreement Form.

See response to request #26.

21. Please explain how Danco ensures that online prescribers of Mifeprex consistently put the signed Patient Agreement Form into each patient's medical record.

See response to request #26.

22. Please explain how Danco ensures that online prescribers of Mifeprex have the ability to assess the duration of pregnancy accurately.

See response to request #26.

23. Please explain how Danco ensures that online prescribers of Mifeprex have the ability to diagnose ectopic pregnancies.

See response to request #26.

24. Please explain how Danco ensures that online prescribers of Mifeprex have the ability to provide surgical intervention in cases of incomplete abortion or severe bleeding, or make plans to provide such care through others.

See response to request #26.

25. Please explain how Danco ensures that online prescribers of Mifeprex assure patient access to medical facilities equipped to provide blood transfusions and resuscitation, if necessary.

See response to request #26.

26. Please explain how Danco ensures that all deaths associated with Mifeprex are reported to it, especially for Mifeprex prescribed by an online prescriber.

For requests #19-26, Danco follows the REMS program requirements to monitor and oversee certified prescriber compliance with the REMS.

As a part of the certification process, prescribers must attest or agree that they:

- Have the ability to assess the duration of pregnancy accurately.
- Have the ability to diagnose ectopic pregnancies.
- Have the ability to provide surgical intervention in cases of incomplete abortion or severe bleeding, or have made plans to provide such care through others, and be able to assure patient access to medical facilities equipped to provide blood transfusions and resuscitation, if necessary.
- Have read and understood the Prescribing Information for Mifeprex.
- Will ensure that the Patient Agreement Form is reviewed with the patient and the risks of the mifepristone treatment regimen are fully explained.
- Will ensure any questions the patient may have prior to receiving mifepristone are answered.
- Will ensure the healthcare provider and patient sign the Patient Agreement Form.
- Will ensure that the patient is provided with a copy of the Patient Agreement Form and Medication Guide.
- Will ensure that the signed Patient Agreement Form is placed in the patient's medical record.
- Will ensure that any deaths of patients who received Mifeprex are reported to Danco Laboratories, LLC, identifying the patient by a non-identifiable reference and including the national drug code (NDC) and lot number from the package of Mifeprex that was dispensed to the patient.
- Will ensure that any healthcare providers under their supervision follow the REMS requirements.

- For Mifeprex dispensed through a certified pharmacy, will obtain the NDC and lot number of the package of Mifeprex the patient received in the event the prescriber becomes aware of the death of a patient and will assess appropriateness of dispensing Mifeprex when contacted by a certified pharmacy about patients who will receive Mifeprex more than 4 calendar days after the prescription was received by the certified pharmacy.

- For Mifeprex dispensed by them or healthcare providers under their supervision, will ensure the NDC and lot number from each package of Mifeprex are recorded in the patient's record.

Danco's certified pharmacies and authorized distributors have processes and procedures in place to ensure that only certified prescribers can obtain or otherwise provide their patients access to Mifeprex. Before dispensing Mifeprex to a patient, certified pharmacies must verify that the prescriber is certified by confirming their completed Prescriber Agreement Form was received with the prescription or is on file with the pharmacy. Authorized distributors are permitted to ship Mifeprex only to certified pharmacies or locations identified by certified prescribers. Danco must also annually confirm with each certified prescriber that its locations for receiving Mifeprex are up to date.

Further, Danco audits its authorized distributors and certified pharmacies annually to, among other objectives, ensure that Mifeprex was distributed only to certified prescribers and dispensed only pursuant to prescriptions from certified prescribers. The authorized distributors and certified pharmacies are also required to maintain adequate records to demonstrate that the Mifepristone REMS Program requirements have been met.

27. Please describe whether and how Danco continually monitors non-fatal adverse events associated with Mifeprex and reports them to FDA.

Danco follows FDA regulatory requirements for monitoring and reporting adverse event information. As noted above, Danco must "promptly review all adverse drug experience information obtained or otherwise received by the applicant from any source," including, for example, reports from healthcare providers, pharmacies, or patients, scientific literature, or postmarketing studies.[14]

The FDA-approved labeling for Mifeprex provides clear instructions to healthcare providers and patients on how to report adverse events. The current FDA-approved Prescribing Information[15] for Mifeprex includes the following instructions:

> To report SUSPECTED ADVERSE REACTIONS, contact Danco Laboratories, LLC at 1-877-432-7596 or [14] 21 CFR 314.80(b).

[15] National Library of Medicine, DailyMed, Mifeprex (mifepristone) Labeling (Danco_SC-HELP_000527–Danco_SC-HELP_000539).

> medicaldirector@earlyoptionpill.com or FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088 or www.fda.gov/medwatch.

The current Medication Guide,[16] which is part of the FDA-approved labeling for Mifeprex, and the Mifeprex website (https://www.earlyoptionpill.com) include the following instructions:

> Call your healthcare provider for medical advice about any side effects that bother you or do not go away. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

Danco promptly reviews all adverse event information received or otherwise discovered from all sources as required under 21 CFR 314.80(b). Upon receipt or discovery, Danco analyzes whether the patient was administered Mifeprex, the severity of the event, and whether the event was expected or unexpected. Danco reports all deaths and adverse events that are both "serious" and "unexpected" as defined 21 CFR 314.80(a) within 15 calendar days of initial receipt of the information. All other adverse events are included in Danco's annual reports to FDA. For clarity, Danco reports to FDA all Mifeprex adverse events of which the company becomes aware.

Subject: RE: Danco Response to March 25 Letter
Date: Wednesday, April 29, 2026 4:59:00 PM

[redacted]

While we appreciate Danco's initial response by the requested deadline, we find the substance of the response to be wholly insufficient. Danco provided few details in response to the questions asked and explicitly or implicitly ignored parts of many questions. To that end, please see a list of follow-up questions and requests for Danco below. We again reiterate our expectation that Danco complies with these requests and answers the questions in a complete manner. We request answers to the below by Monday, May 11th at 5pm. Given that the questions and requests are substantively the same as the original letter, we expect the responses in a timely manner.

1. Understanding Danco is unwilling to provide the name and address of the manufacturing facilities (see response to question 1), please provide the country or countries in Europe where the finished drug product is manufactured.
2. Understanding that Danco represents that there are no active or outstanding quality issues related to the manufacturing of Mifeprex, and no inspections have led to an "Official Action Indicated" designation (see response to question 2), please answer the following:
    a. Since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000, have there ever been quality issues related to the manufacturing of Mifeprex found by FDA or any regulatory or licensing body? If yes, please explain.
    b. Please provide the dates and results of each of FDA's inspections related to Mifeprex manufacturing since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000, regardless of the designation given. You may redact facility names, addresses, and other identifying information for privacy purposes.
3. Please confirm that Danco is itself solely responsible for ensuring prescriber, pharmacy, and distributor compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program, given it does not engage any third-party vendors to administer the Mifepristone REMS Program (see response to question 5).
4. As a follow-up on prescriber compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program, please explain (1) whether prescribers in states where abortion is prohibited by law (with few exceptions) are automatically decertified when such a law takes effect; (2) whether Danco decertifies prescribers based on federal or state prosecutions that find their actions were not compliant with REMS requirements; and (3) how long a prescriber certification is valid and the renewal process (for example, whether a prescriber must be recertified annually or on any other time interval).

5. Please provide a state-by-state breakdown of the 5,250 REMS-certified Mifeprex prescribers as of September 30, 2025 (see response to question 6). To be clear, no identifying information is requested and the response can be along the lines of: State A: 123 prescribers; State B: 234 prescribers; etc.
6. Please provide a state-by-state breakdown, including how many provide a mail-order option, of the 5,927 REMS-certified pharmacies for Mifeprex as of September 30, 2025 (see response to question 7). To be clear, no identifying information is requested and the response can be along the lines of: State A: 123 pharmacies (32 provide mail order); State B: 234 pharmacies (73 provide mail order); etc.
7. Understanding that Danco represents it has completed all required pharmacy audits under the REMS and addressed all observations of noncompliance (see response to question 8), please provide a list of all observations of noncompliance by certified pharmacies since January 2023. This list should include the date of the observation, an explanation of the noncompliance, and the remedial action taken. To be clear, no identifying information is requested. Please also include a copy of the audit rubric Danco uses for pharmacies and explain the process by which audits are conducted (for example, by phone or video calls, physical visits, self-attestation, etc.).
8. Understanding that Danco represents it has completed all required distributor audits under the REMS and addressed all observations of noncompliance (see response to question 9), please provide a list of all observations of noncompliance by certified distributors since Mifeprex's date of approval 2000. This list should include the date of the observation, an explanation of the noncompliance, and the remedial action taken. To be clear, no identifying information is requested. Please also include a copy of the audit rubric Danco uses for distributors and explain the process by which audits are conducted (for example, by phone or video calls, physical visits, self-attestation, etc.).
9. Please provide the total number of all non-fatal adverse events associated with Mifeprex (and not generic products) from Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000 through February 28, 2026 (see response to question 11).
10. Understanding that Danco represents that it has submitted all required REMS assessments to FDA (see response to question 12), please provide those REMS assessments. You may redact identifying information.
11. Understanding that FDA reported approximately 7.5 million women have used mifepristone (Mifeprex and generics) as of December 31, 2024 (see response to question 14), please produce an Excel spreadsheet that includes the number of Mifeprex drugs (not generics) sold on a quarterly basis since its date of approval in 2000. Please include a breakdown of the number of Mifeprex drugs sold by state in this spreadsheet.

12. Given Danco's willingness to provide a generalized revenue total, but unwillingness to provide more sensitive cost and profit information (see response to question 15), please provide Danco's revenue from the sale of Mifeprex, on an annual basis, since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000.
13. Understanding Danco has developed and follows processes for both prescriber and pharmacy noncompliance and reports instances of decertification (see responses to question 16 and 17), please provide a list of all prescriber and pharmacy decertifications since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000. This list should include the date of decertification and the reason for decertification. To be clear, no identifying information is requested. Please also provide a complete explanation of the processes Danco has developed and follows, including producing any rubrics used, for investigating prescriber and pharmacy noncompliance.
14. Understanding Danco does not endorse or control the content of the third-party websites it lists on its own website (see response to question 18), has Danco ever pursued any communication with these websites to alert them they are advertising its drug in a manner that is not consistent with its label and approval? If yes, please explain the communications. If no, why not?
15. In response to questions 19 through 26, Danco reproduced and summarized the publicly available Mifepristone REMS Program requirements (see responses to question 19–26). We again request documents and narrative explanation from Danco about how the company ensures compliance with each of the REMS requirements listed in questions 19 through 26. Each explanation should include the specific process by which Danco monitors prescribers, ensures the attestations made in the Prescriber Agreement Form are correct, ensures ongoing compliance with these requirements, handles instances of noncompliance, and engages with individual prescribers to ensure the requirements are met. Further, each explanation should include, with specificity, how compliance is ensured for online-based prescribers who have no in-person interaction with the patient and often prescribe the drug completely anonymously.

Thanks,

Responses to April 29, 2026 Request

Each numbered request in the April 29, 2026 Request is reproduced in italics, followed by Danco's response.

1. Understanding Danco is unwilling to provide the name and address of the manufacturing facilities (see response to question 1), please provide the country or countries in Europe where the finished drug product is manufactured.

As detailed in the April 17, 2026 Response, Danco is not able to disclose the names and locations of its manufacturers because such information is highly sensitive and disclosure raises substantial security risks. Danco also cannot reveal information that could be used to infer or speculate about the identities of its manufacturers. Because identifying the country where the finished drug product manufacturing is performed could foreseeably be used for such purposes, Danco is unable to supplement its previous disclosure that the finished drug product is manufactured at an FDA-registered drug establishment in Europe.

2. Understanding that Danco represents that there are no active or outstanding quality issues related to the manufacturing of Mifeprex, and no inspections have led to an "Official Action Indicated" designation (see response to question 2), please answer the following:

    a. Since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000, have there ever been quality issues related to the manufacturing of Mifeprex found by FDA or any regulatory or licensing body? If yes, please explain.

We are not aware of any quality issues related to the manufacturing of Mifeprex found by FDA or any regulatory or licensing body since the product's approval.

    b. Please provide the dates and results of each of FDA's inspections related to Mifeprex manufacturing since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000, regardless of the designation given. You may redact facility names, addresses, and other identifying information for privacy purposes.

Danco's manufacturers are subject to frequent routine inspections by FDA and other applicable regulatory bodies, and inspection results are shared under mutual recognition agreements. Like many new drug application (NDA) holders, Danco utilizes contract manufacturing organizations (CMOs). CMOs are operated independently and may work on multiple products for different marketing application holders. As such, Danco does not have full visibility into the inspections at the facilities manufacturing mifepristone active pharmaceutical ingredient and Mifeprex tablets, other than any issued Form FDA 483 observations related to these manufacturing activities. Further, providing additional specific information, such as inspection dates, could also be used to infer or speculate about the identities of Danco's manufacturers. Each of Danco's CMOs has been inspected by FDA. Since 2016, FDA has not issued any inspectional observations to Danco's CMOs.

Danco utilized different CMOs before 2016. Danco is in the process of verifying the inspectional history for these facilities. Danco will supplement this response with any additional relevant information it is able to obtain.

3. Please confirm that Danco is itself solely responsible for ensuring prescriber, pharmacy, and distributor compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program, given it does not engage any third-party vendors to administer the Mifepristone REMS Program (see response to question 5).

Danco is responsible for fulfilling its obligations as a "Mifepristone Sponsor" under the Mifepristone REMS Program.[1] Danco's distributors also play an important role in administering the REMS. As provided in the REMS and Danco's written agreements with its distributors, Danco's authorized distributors facilitate the administration and oversight of the REMS by:

- Establishing systems to ensure that shipments of Mifeprex are made only to certified pharmacies or locations identified by certified prescribers;
- Collecting and maintaining executed Mifeprex Prescriber Agreement Forms and Pharmacy Agreement Forms;
- Maintaining distribution records;
- Notifying healthcare providers and pharmacies when they have been certified by the Mifepristone REMS Program; and
- Providing information to healthcare providers who (a) attempt to order Mifeprex and are not certified, or (b) inquire about how to become certified.

Further, as a condition of participation/certification in the REMS, Danco's distributors and pharmacies are obligated to implement and maintain their own processes to support REMS compliance.

4. As a follow-up on prescriber compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program, please explain (1) whether prescribers in states where abortion is prohibited by law (with few exceptions) are automatically decertified when such a law takes effect; (2) whether Danco decertifies prescribers based on federal or state prosecutions that find their actions were not compliant with REMS requirements; and (3) how long a prescriber certification is valid and the renewal process (for example, whether a prescriber must be recertified annually or on any other time interval).

Danco does not automatically decertify prescribers in states where abortion is severely restricted by state law. Such automatic decertification is not contemplated under the REMS, and the REMS does not operate as a mechanism to interpret or enforce state or federal criminal or civil laws.

[1] FDA, Mifepristone Shared REMS (2025) (Danco_SC-HELP_000510–Danco_SC-HELP_000526).

Danco's distributors, healthcare providers certified to prescribe Mifeprex, and pharmacies certified to dispense Mifeprex have independent professional obligations to comply with applicable state and local laws.

In accordance with its REMS obligations as approved by FDA, Danco will decertify a prescriber if Danco becomes aware, and agrees, that the healthcare provider has failed to maintain compliance with the certification requirements for prescribing Mifeprex.

Although prescriber certification does not require formal renewal, each certification is reviewed and updated annually, as required by the REMS. Specifically, Danco must annually verify that each certified prescriber's location(s) for receiving mifepristone is up to date, and Danco fulfills this obligation with support from its distributors. Additionally, Danco's authorized distributors and certified pharmacies are responsible for verifying prescribers' current professional licensure.

5. Please provide a state-by-state breakdown of the 5,250 REMS-certified Mifeprex prescribers as of September 30, 2025 (see response to question 6). To be clear, no identifying information is requested and the response can be along the lines of: State A: 123 prescribers; State B: 234 prescribers; etc.

FDA has reviewed and approved Danco's processes for conducting audits of certified pharmacies. Audits require completion of detailed questionnaires that cover all aspects of REMS compliance and, as needed, Danco conducts additional audit activities via tele- or video-conferences. Danco also has processes to monitor and address noncompliance with the REMS requirements and to decertify pharmacies as necessary. A root cause analysis is conducted for each identified instance of noncompliance, and Danco works with the pharmacy on a corrective and preventative action plan to prevent future occurrences. Danco is obligated to decertify pharmacies who do not maintain compliance with the REMS requirements, report to FDA any instances of pharmacy detailed questionnaires that cover all aspects of REMS compliance and, as needed, Danco conducts additional audit activities via tele- or video-conferences. Danco also has processes to monitor and address noncompliance with the REMS requirements. A root cause analysis is conducted for each identified instance of noncompliance, and Danco works with the distributor on a corrective and preventative action plan to prevent future occurrences.

8. Understanding that Danco represents it has completed all required distributor audits under the REMS and addressed all observations of noncompliance (see response to question 9), please provide a list of all observations of noncompliance by certified distributors since Mifeprex's date of approval 2000. This list should include the date of the observation, an explanation of the noncompliance, and the remedial action taken. To be clear, no identifying information is requested. Please also include a copy of the audit rubric Danco uses for distributors and explain the process by which audits are conducted (for example, by phone or video calls, physical visits, self-attestation, etc.).

The below table includes a summary of the audit observations and remedial actions taken. These events are catalogued by REMS reporting period,[3] not by date of the observation.

9. Please provide the total number of all non-fatal adverse events associated with Mifeprex (and not generic products) from Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000 through February 28, 2026 (see response to question 11).

From approval in 2000 to February 28, 2026, Danco has reported 4,172 non-fatal adverse events on a Danco-specific MedWatch Form (Form FDA 3500A)[4] in its periodic reports to FDA, in compliance with applicable regulations.[5]

10. Understanding that Danco represents that it has submitted all required REMS assessments to FDA (see response to question 12), please provide those REMS assessments. You may redact identifying information.

Because the REMS assessments contain highly sensitive and confidential commercial information, Danco is not able to provide copies of these documents. FDA has full access to these submissions and evaluates them to assess the ongoing effectiveness of and compliance with the REMS, along with the agency's other oversight mechanisms, including regulatory inspections.

11. Understanding that FDA reported approximately 7.5 million women have used mifepristone (Mifeprex and generics) as of December 31, 2024 (see response to question 14), please produce an Excel spreadsheet that includes the number of Mifeprex drugs (not generics) sold on a quarterly basis since its date of approval in 2000. Please include a breakdown of the number of Mifeprex drugs sold by state in this spreadsheet.

Danco is not able to provide quarterly sales information, because it is highly sensitive and confidential commercial information. As provided in the April 17, 2026 Response, FDA has reported that approximately 7.5 million women have used mifepristone (both Mifeprex and generic products) in the United States for medical termination of pregnancy as of December 31, 2024.[6]

12. Given Danco's willingness to provide a generalized revenue total, but unwillingness to provide more sensitive cost and profit information (see response to question 15), please provide

Danco's revenue from the sale of Mifeprex, on an annual basis, since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000.

Since approval in 2000, annual total sales revenue has ranged from $1 million to $26 million with an average of $16 million. In each of the past five years, annual sales revenue has not exceeded $20 million.

13. Understanding Danco has developed and follows processes for both prescriber and pharmacy noncompliance and reports instances of decertification (see responses to question 16 and 17), please provide a list of all prescriber and pharmacy decertifications since Mifeprex's date of approval in 2000. This list should include the date of decertification and the reason for decertification. To be clear, no identifying information is requested. Please also provide a complete explanation of the processes Danco has developed and follows, including producing any rubrics used, for investigating prescriber and pharmacy noncompliance.

To date, no healthcare providers have been decertified from the REMS, and two pharmacies were decertified during the REMS assessment period of October 1, 2024 to September 30, 2025. The authorized representative for one pharmacy did not participate in the required audit and requested decertification. Another pharmacy was decertified after it was determined that the pharmacy was an in-patient pharmacy, and therefore its activities should be conducted under an individual prescriber certification, and not a pharmacy certification. The pharmacy account was placed on hold until a Prescriber Agreement Form was completed and received.

14. Understanding Danco does not endorse or control the content of the third-party websites it lists on its own website (see response to question 18), has Danco ever pursued any communication with these websites to alert them they are advertising its drug in a manner that is not consistent with its label and approval? If yes, please explain the communications. If no, why not?

No. Danco has not had any communications with third-party websites to discuss, direct, or comment upon their content. Danco does not endorse or control the content of third-party websites. Consistent with the federal law applicable to all drug sponsors, Danco promotes the use of Mifeprex only in accordance with its FDA-approved indication and labeling.

15. In response to questions 19 through 26, Danco reproduced and summarized the publicly available Mifepristone REMS Program requirements (see responses to question 19–26). We again request documents and narrative explanation from Danco about how the company ensures compliance with each of the REMS requirements listed in questions 19 through 26. Each explanation should include the specific process by which Danco monitors prescribers, ensures the attestations made in the Prescriber Agreement Form are correct, ensures ongoing compliance with these requirements, handles instances of noncompliance, and engages with individual prescribers to ensure the requirements are met. Further, each explanation should include, with specificity, how compliance is ensured for online-based prescribers who have no in-person interaction with the patient and often prescribe the drug completely anonymously.

Danco reiterates our responses to questions 19–26 in the April 17, 2026 Response. Danco is responsible for fulfilling its specific obligations as a "Mifepristone Sponsor" under the Mifepristone REMS Program.[7] As contemplated by the REMS, Danco's administration and oversight of the REMS focuses on the distribution chain (i.e., through audits of authorized distributors and certified pharmacies) to ensure Mifeprex reaches patients only pursuant to prescriptions from certified prescribers. The REMS does not require Danco to audit certified prescribers of Mifeprex, independently confirm prescriber attestations, or otherwise oversee individual prescribing decisions. Where noncompliance is identified, Danco pursues corrective and preventive actions and, if necessary, decertification, with reporting to FDA as required.

Online-based prescribers are subject to the same prescriber certification requirements as in-person prescribers. State law further governs the requirements for establishing a patient-prescriber relationship. Danco is not aware of any state that permits healthcare providers with prescribing capabilities to prescribe Mifeprex without a relationship between a named prescriber and named patient or otherwise permits pharmacies to dispense Mifeprex to an unnamed patient.

Subject: RE: Danco Response to Follow-up April 29 Request
Date: Thursday, May 14, 2026 3:57:00 PM

[redacted]

Please see a list of further follow up questions and requests for Danco below. We request a complete response to these questions and requests by Thursday, May 21 at 5pm. [redacted] The references to questions and responses in parentheses below refer to the April 29, 2026, email and Danco's responses in its second response letter on May 11, 2026. Thank you.

1. We reiterate our request for the number of certified prescribers broken down by state. We do not agree that providing the number of certified prescribers in each state with no identifying information would "present substantial security concerns" (see response to question 5).
2. In the chart breaking down certified pharmacies by state, some of the states have 0 certified pharmacies (see response to question 6). However, some states are not listed at all (Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Dakota, and South Dakota). Can Danco please confirm that these five states have no certified pharmacies?
3. For the instances of pharmacy noncompliance (see response to question 7), can Danco please explain how it became aware of such issues of noncompliance? Did the pharmacy in each instance self-report the noncompliance or did Danco discover it on its own, and if so, how?
4. Please provide a copy of the "detailed questionnaire[] that cover[s] all aspects of REMS compliance" that Danco sends to its authorized distributors (see response to question 8).
5. Understanding that Danco represents that producing completed REMS assessment reports would reveal confidential commercial information (see response to question 10), please provide the most recent REMS assessment report Danco submitted to FDA with confidential commercial information redacted. We see this request as a good faith compromise to be able to understand the type of information Danco provides to FDA through such annual assessments without revealing confidential commercial information.
6. We reiterate our request for a quarterly and state-by-state breakdown of the number of Mifeprex drugs (not generics) sold since its U.S. market launch in 2000 (see question 11).

7. Please explain how Danco promotes the use of Mifeprex in accordance with its FDA-approved indication and labeling (see response to question 14). Given Danco promotes providers on its website that openly advertise prescribing Mifeprex outside of its approved indication and labeling, we request a further explanation of Danco's sales practices and how it ensures these sales practices are in accordance with FDA-approved indication and labeling. Further, understanding Danco represents that it does not endorse or control the content of third-party websites (see response to question 14), please explain why the company would want to direct patients to providers that prescribe the drug outside of its approved indication and labeling instead of directing patients to providers that prescribe according to the FDA-approved indication and labeling. Is this done in an effort to increase sales volume of Mifeprex?
8. Understanding that Danco represents that "[t]he REMS does not require Danco to audit certified prescribers of Mifeprex, independently confirm prescriber attestations, or otherwise oversee individual prescribing decisions" (see response to question 15), please explain how Danco identifies prescriber noncompliance with REMS requirements.
9. As the holder of the approved NDA for Mifeprex, Danco has been responsible for the development of the mifepristone REMS since the original 2011 REMS. Please describe Danco's process for developing mifepristone REMS Program goals and implementation and evaluation strategies, including how these goals and strategies have evolved since the 2011 REMS. Specifically, please explain why the REMS does not require independent confirmation of prescriber attestations or other approaches to verify prescriber compliance with REMS requirements, especially for online prescribers, either directly by Danco or via Danco's distributors, certified pharmacies, or other third parties.

Thank you.

Re: Response to Second Follow-up Inquiries to Danco Laboratories, LLC

Dear Senators Cassidy, Daines, Lankford, Hyde-Smith, and Graham:

Danco Laboratories, LLC ("Danco") is in receipt of your email and request for information ("the May 14, 2026 Request"). Enclosed with this letter is Danco's response to the May 14, 2026 Request, including direct responses to the interrogatories posed therein. We also reference your previous letters and requests for information to Danco ("the March 25, 2026 Request" and "the April 29, 2026 Request") and Danco's responses ("the April 17, 2026 Response" and "the May 11, 2026 Response"). The deadline for Danco's response to the May 14, 2026 Request was extended to June 5, 2026 via a May 21, 2026 email from Senate Health, Education, Labor & Pensions (HELP) Committee staff.

The submission of the enclosed materials does not waive, nor is it intended to waive, any rights, privileges, immunities, or objections of Danco with respect to this matter, including any applicable attorney-client privilege, protection provided under the work-product doctrine, or any other privilege, immunity, or objection. Moreover, to the extent that non-responsive information has been disclosed, Danco does not agree to any expansion on the scope of the May 14, 2026 Request.

Danco expressly reserves any applicable privileges, immunities, and/or objections to which it is entitled under applicable law.

This response includes confidential business information and sensitive details regarding Danco's internal business practices and should therefore be kept confidential. Because of the sensitive nature of this information, if your office intends at any time to disclose any of the information contained in this response to any other person or third party not in your office, Danco requests that it be given one week advance notice in order to address the issue with your office.

Responses to May 14, 2026 Request

Each numbered request in the May 14, 2026 Request is reproduced in italics, followed by Danco's response.

1. We reiterate our request for the number of certified prescribers broken down by state. We do not agree that providing the number of certified prescribers in each state with no identifying information would "present substantial security concerns" (see response to question 5).

The below table includes a geographical breakdown of Danco's active certified prescribers, i.e., those who ordered Mifeprex or submitted a Mifeprex prescription during the most recent REMS reporting period (October 2024 to September 2025). Danco notes these data may overstate the number of active certified prescribers, including because an individual certified prescriber may be counted multiple times if the prescriber lawfully practices and prescribes Mifeprex in more than one jurisdiction or has a Prescriber Agreement Form on file with multiple certified pharmacies or authorized distributors.

Further, because of ongoing security concerns, Danco is unable to provide a breakdown for jurisdictions where the number of prescribers is greater than zero but less than 10. Danco has significant concerns that, particularly in jurisdictions with few certified prescribers, such data could be used to infer or speculate about the identities of its certified prescribers.

There were no Danco-certified pharmacies in Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Dakota, and South Dakota as of the most recent REMS reporting period (October 2024 to September 2025). 3. For the instances of pharmacy noncompliance (see response to question 7), can Danco please explain how it became aware of such issues of noncompliance? Did the pharmacy in each instance self-report the noncompliance or did Danco discover it on its own, and if so, how?

In each instance except one, Danco discovered the noncompliance occurrences during its REMS audits. In one instance, the observation of noncompliance was reported by the certified pharmacy to Danco after the pharmacy conducted its own internal audit for REMS compliance, which occurred before Danco's audit for the period.

4. Please provide a copy of the "detailed questionnaire[] that cover[s] all aspects of REMS compliance" that Danco sends to its authorized distributors (see response to question 8).

Copies of the distributor audit questionnaire, as well as additional documentation tools used to facilitate distributor audits, are provided at Danco_SC-HELP_000541–Danco_SC-HELP_000545. Danco has redacted its confidential commercial information from these documents.

5. Understanding that Danco represents that producing completed REMS assessment reports would reveal confidential commercial information (see response to question 10), please provide the most recent REMS assessment report Danco submitted to FDA with confidential commercial information redacted. We see this request as a good faith compromise to be able to understand the type of information Danco provides to FDA through such annual assessments without revealing confidential commercial information.

A copy of the most recent REMS assessment report (reporting period October 2024 to September 2025) is provided at Danco_SC-HELP_000546–Danco_SC-HELP_000560. Danco has redacted its confidential commercial information from the document.

6. We reiterate our request for a quarterly and state-by-state breakdown of the number of Mifeprex drugs (not generics) sold since its U.S. market launch in 2000 (see question 11).

As provided in the May 11, 2026 Response, Danco is not able to provide quarterly sales information, because these data are highly sensitive, confidential commercial information. FDA has reported that, since 2000 market launch and through December 31, 2024, approximately 7.5 million women in the United States have used mifepristone (either Mifeprex or a generic product) for medical termination of pregnancy.[1]

7. Please explain how Danco promotes the use of Mifeprex in accordance with its FDA-approved indication and labeling (see response to question 14). Given Danco promotes providers on its website that openly advertise prescribing Mifeprex outside of its approved indication and labeling, we request a further explanation of Danco's sales practices and how it ensures these sales practices are in accordance with FDA-approved indication and labeling. Further, understanding Danco represents that it does not endorse or control the content of third-party websites (see response to question 14), please explain why the company would want to direct patients to providers that prescribe the drug outside of its approved indication and labeling instead of directing patients to providers that prescribe according to the FDA-approved indication and labeling. Is this done in an effort to increase sales volume of Mifeprex?

Danco promotes the use of Mifeprex only in accordance with the drug's FDA-approved indication: the medical termination of intrauterine pregnancy through 70 days gestation. Further, all promotional materials include a summary of important safety information, including the boxed warning for serious bleeding and infection. Danco submits all promotional materials to FDA at or before the time of initial dissemination or publication in accordance with 21 CFR 314.81(b)(3)(i). These submissions are made to FDA's Office of Prescription Drug Promotion (OPDP) via Form FDA 2253.

Danco's promotional campaign for Mifeprex is limited to the product website,[2] resources available for download on the product website,[3] and exhibit booths at relevant medical conferences.[4] The printed materials disseminated at medical conferences are limited to the information available on the product website; all of these printed materials have been submitted to OPDP.

The Mifeprex website provides general information on third-party resources designed to help individuals locate reproductive healthcare services. Purposefully, Danco does not name any individual healthcare providers or otherwise direct website visitors to any particular healthcare provider. These resources function as informational directories and do not constitute endorsements of or referrals to any specific healthcare provider or organization, or of any use of the drug. Danco does not have any ownership interest, contractual relationship, referral arrangement, or other affiliation with any healthcare providers listed on the Mifeprex website.

Danco does not include these resources on the Mifeprex website to increase sales of Mifeprex; in fact, the healthcare providers listed on these informational directories do not necessarily prescribe Mifeprex.

8. Understanding that Danco represents that "[t]he REMS does not require Danco to audit certified prescribers of Mifeprex, independently confirm prescriber attestations, or otherwise oversee individual prescribing decisions" (see response to question 15), please explain how Danco identifies prescriber noncompliance with REMS requirements.

Danco monitors compliance with the REMS by fulfilling its specific obligations as a "Mifepristone Sponsor" under the Mifepristone REMS Program.[5] As previously explained, Danco's certified pharmacies and authorized distributors maintain processes to ensure that only certified prescribers can access Mifeprex. Pharmacies must verify prescriber certification before dispensing by confirming a completed Prescriber Agreement Form is on file or included with the prescription, and authorized distributors may ship Mifeprex only to certified pharmacies or certified prescriber-designated locations. With assistance from its distributors, Danco annually confirms certified prescriber shipping locations. In addition, Danco's authorized distributors and certified pharmacies are required to maintain records demonstrating compliance with these requirements, and Danco conducts annual audits to ensure compliance.

9. As the holder of the approved NDA for Mifeprex, Danco has been responsible for the development of the mifepristone REMS since the original 2011 REMS. Please describe Danco's process for developing mifepristone REMS Program goals and implementation and evaluation strategies, including how these goals and strategies have evolved since the 2011 REMS. Specifically, please explain why the REMS does not require independent confirmation of prescriber attestations or other approaches to verify prescriber compliance with REMS requirements, especially for online prescribers, either directly by Danco or via Danco's distributors, certified pharmacies, or other third parties.

FDA's September 28, 2000, approval of Mifeprex was conditioned upon imposition of a restricted distribution program under 21 CFR 314.520. FDA's rationale for imposing a restricted distribution program is documented in the review documents for the initial approval; in short, FDA determined that safe use of Mifeprex required restricting distribution to physicians able to date pregnancy, detect ectopic pregnancy, and ensure access to surgical care.[6] Following revisions to the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (FDCA) that established the REMS framework, Mifeprex was deemed to have in effect an approved REMS.[7] FDA approved the original Mifeprex REMS on June 8, 2011, memorializing the restricted distribution program in effect since the product's approval. The goals for that REMS were drawn from FDA's reasons for imposing the initial restricted distribution program.

In 2016, the REMS goals were modified to better mirror the elements to assure safe use (ETASU) contained in the REMS, and the rationale for these modifications is included in FDA's review documents.[8] In 2019, the REMS goals were modified to reflect a shared REMS system brought about by approval of a generic to Mifeprex—namely, by changing references to "Mifeprex" to "mifepristone."

The current REMS goals, modified in 2023, incorporate the pharmacy certification as part of the ETASU.[9] This most recent substantive modification to the REMS was directed by FDA. Acting on its own initiative, the agency in 2021 directed the mifepristone sponsors to submit revisions to the REMS to remove the requirement for in-person dispensing and allow dispensing by pharmacies; although all involved parties agreed on the nature of the changes, it was not until 2023 that FDA approved specific provisions implementing the changes. Here, too, FDA's review documents contain the rationale for these REMS modifications.[10]

Year Implemented	REMS Goals[11]
2011	A. To provide information to patients about the benefits and risks of MIFEPREX before they make a decision whether to take the drug. B. To minimize the risk of serious complications by requiring prescribers to certify that they are qualified to prescribe MIFEPREX and are able to assure patient access to appropriate medical facilities to manage any complications.
2016	The goal of the Mifeprex REMS is to mitigate the risk of serious complications associated with Mifeprex by: a) Requiring healthcare providers who prescribe Mifeprex to be certified in the Mifeprex REMS Program. b) Ensuring that Mifeprex is only dispensed in certain healthcare settings by or under the supervision of a certified prescriber. c) Informing patients about the risk of serious complications associated with Mifeprex

Mifepristone Single Shared System REMS Program
Annual Assessment
Period October 1, 2024 – September 30, 2025

Joint REMS Assessment for Single Shared System REMS for Mifepristone

This mifepristone joint REMS assessment report, submitted pursuant to section 505-1 of the FDCA, is being submitted jointly by Danco Laboratories, LLC (Danco), the sponsor of Mifeprex, NDA 20-687, GenBioPro, Inc. (GenBioPro), the sponsor of mifepristone tablets, ANDA 091178, and Evita Solutions, LLC (Evita), the sponsor of mifepristone tablets, ANDA 216616.

Consistent with the approved Single Shared System REMS (SSS REMS) for mifepristone, each sponsor (Danco, GenBioPro, and Evita) separately will provide a sponsor specific REMS assessment containing the confidential information regarding the respective distribution of their product under the SSS REMS. The information in this joint document and the separate REMS assessment documents provided by the sponsors will constitute the full REMS assessment for the SSS REMS for mifepristone. Each sponsor will provide in their sponsor specific REMS assessment a summary and analysis of any program deviations and corrective actions taken.

The goal of the mifepristone REMS is to mitigate the risk of serious complications associated with mifepristone by:

1. Requiring healthcare providers who prescribe mifepristone to be certified in the Mifepristone REMS program.
2. Ensuring that mifepristone is only dispensed by or under the supervision of certified prescribers, or by certified pharmacies on prescriptions issued by certified prescribers.
3. Informing patients about the risk of serious complications associated with mifepristone

In accordance with the current approved Mifepristone REMS program (01/03/2023), the Sponsors (Danco, GenBioPro, and Evita) have assessed the REMS and evaluated whether the goal of the REMS has been met and whether the goal should be modified. Danco, GenBioPro, and Evita agree that the goal of the SSS REMS for mifepristone is being met. Mifepristone has been on the market for over 25 years and the product has been used safely. Pharmacies are well aware of the dispensing requirements and prescribers are well-versed in the safe use of the product. The sponsors propose no modifications to the REMS as the available data reflected in the sponsor specific assessment documents, as well as the long history of safe use of this product, do not warrant the imposition of modified or additional requirements.

In response to the Agency's Information Request, the Sponsors (Danco, GenBioPro, and Evita) submitted on November, 19, 2025 a revised REMS Assessment Plan to align with the requirements of section 505-1(g)(3) by clarifying the metrics for reporting prescription delivery timelines for certified pharmacies.

Sponsor-Specific REMS Assessment for Single Shared System REMS for Mifepristone

I. Overview

This Sponsor-Specific Mifepristone REMS Assessment is being submitted by Danco Laboratories, LLC (Danco), the sponsor of Mifeprex® (mifepristone) NDA 20-687, pursuant to section 505-1 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act. The reporting interval for this assessment (Danco Assessment #7) is October 1, 2024 to September 30, 2025 (which is within the 90-day allowed cutoff period before the anniversary of the Single Shared System (SSS) Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategy (REMS) approval on January 3, 2023).

Consistent with the approved SSS REMS for mifepristone, each Sponsor (Danco, GenBioPro, Inc. (GenBioPro) and Evita Solutions, LLC (Evita)) must provide a Sponsor-specific REMS Assessment containing confidential information regarding the respective distribution of its product under the SSS REMS, as well as a joint REMS assessment. The joint REMS Assessment was submitted jointly by the Sponsors on January 3, 2026. The Sponsor-Specific REMS Assessments and the joint REMS Assessment constitute the full REMS assessment for the SSS REMS.

Danco's Sponsor-Specific REMS Assessment Report for Mifeprex includes data for Mifeprex in the reporting categories included in the SSS REMS Supporting Document submitted to the Agency on July 25, 2025 ( ) and covers the reporting period October 1, 2024 through September 30, 2025. Danco's Sponsor-Specific REMS Assessment Report provides a summary and analysis of any program deviations and corrective action taken following audits of authorized distributors and certified pharmacy stakeholders. As agreed with the Agency, GenBioPro and Evita will separately provide their data regarding the distribution of their products.

II. Goal of the REMS

The goal of the REMS for mifepristone is to mitigate the risk of serious complications associated with mifepristone through the efforts set out below, consistent with the approved REMS Document. As discussed throughout, this REMS Assessment demonstrates that the goal is currently being satisfied.

A. Requiring healthcare providers who prescribe mifepristone to be certified in the Mifepristone REMS Program

The Danco audit of our authorized distributors shows that Mifeprex is provided only to certified prescribers who have signed the Prescriber Agreement Form. Danco's audit of certified pharmacies identified [redacted] prescriptions that were dispensed without a Prescriber Agreement Form; these instances of non-compliance have been addressed as described below.

B. Ensuring that mifepristone is only dispensed by or under the supervision of certified prescribers, or by certified pharmacies on prescriptions issued by certified prescribers

The Danco audit of our authorized distributors shows that Mifeprex is being shipped only to certified pharmacies identified by authorized representatives in the Pharmacy Agreement Form or to locations identified by certified prescribers in signed Prescriber Agreement Forms. As noted above, the Danco audit of certified pharmacies shows that Mifeprex was dispensed only from certified pharmacies and [redacted] prescriptions were issued without a signed Prescriber Agreement on file at the pharmacy; these instances of non-compliance have been addressed as described in the table below.

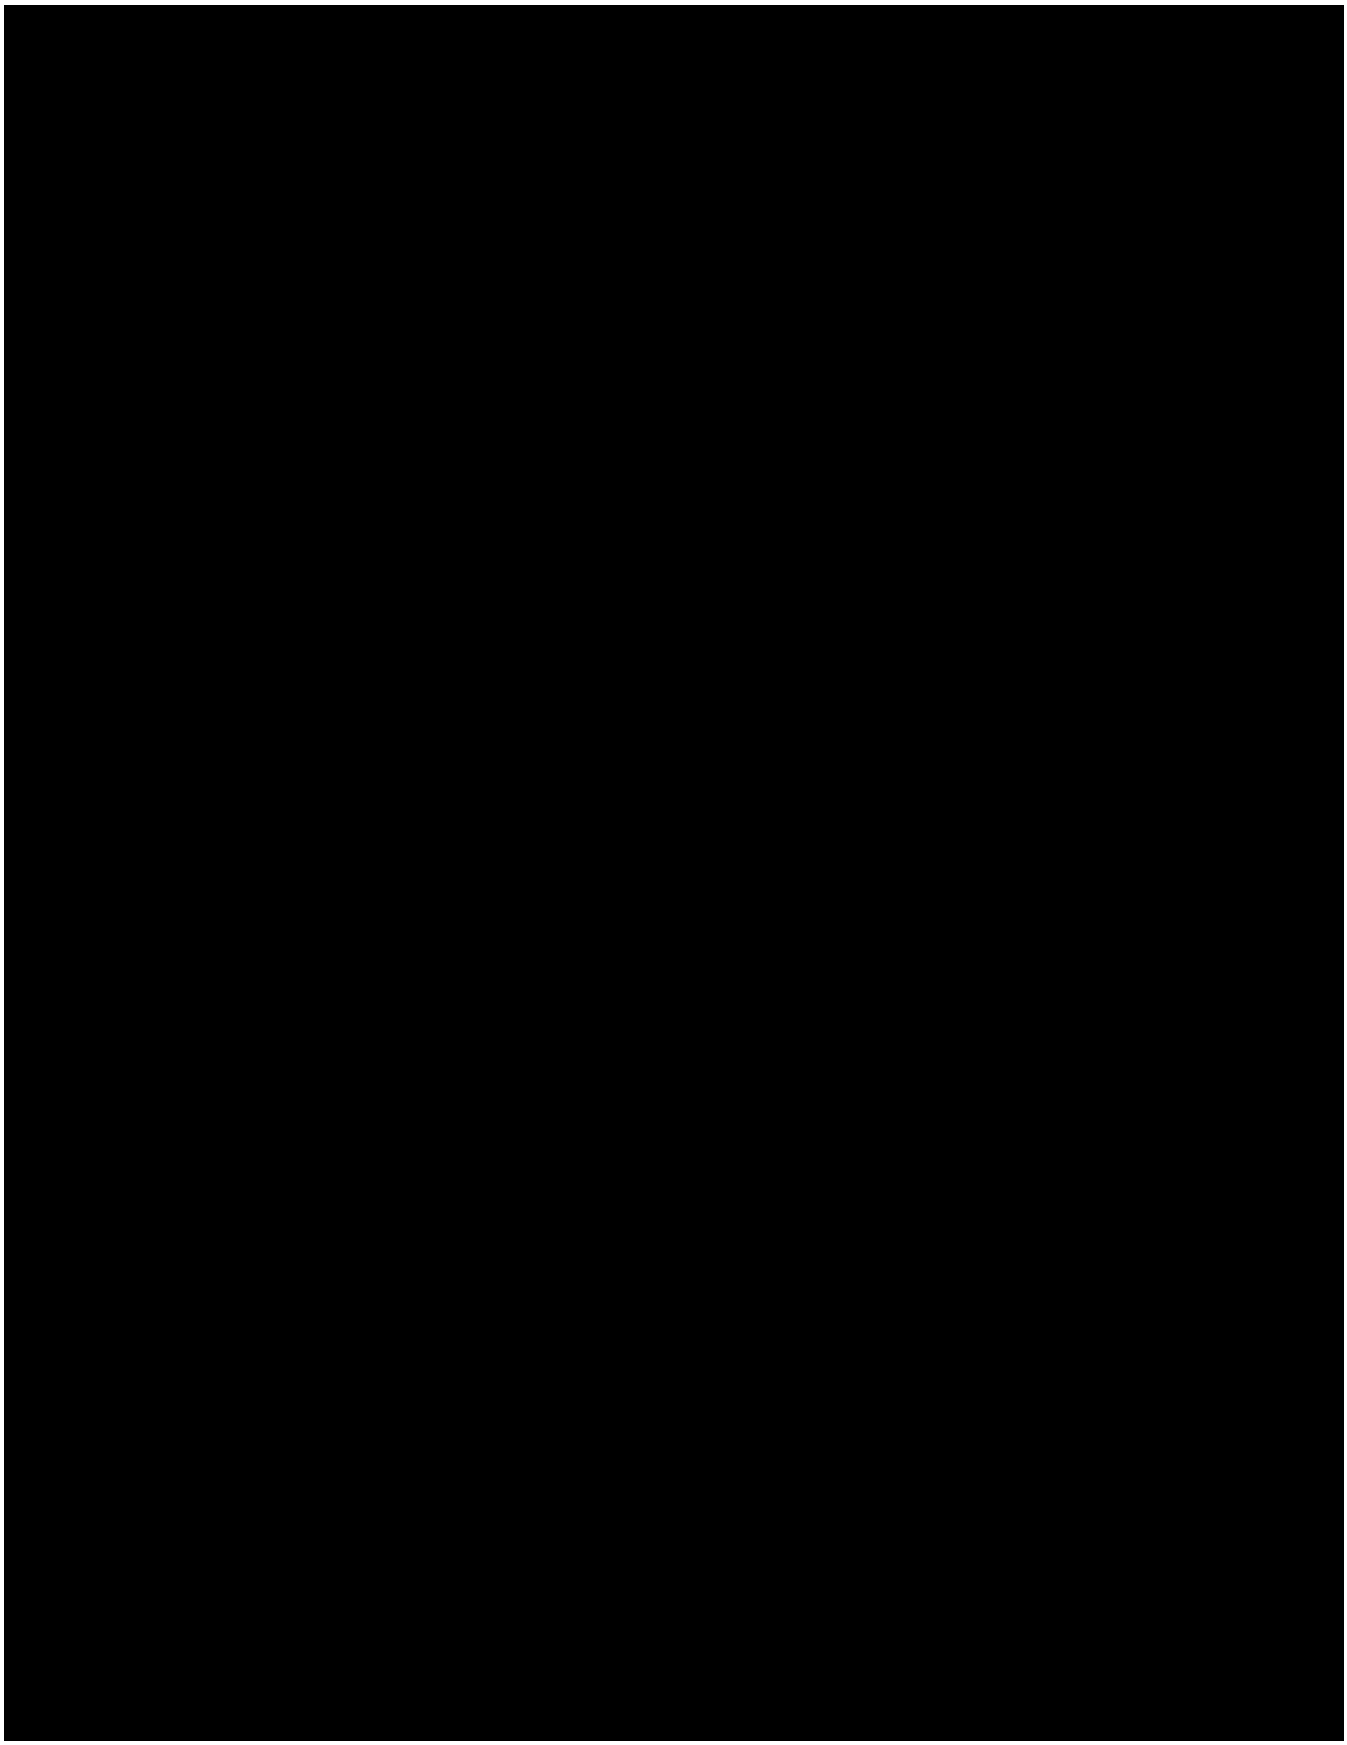

C. Informing patients about the risk of serious complications associated with mifepristone

The Medication Guide and Patient Agreement Form provide the patient with information about the benefits and risks of the mifepristone treatment regimen. The Danco audit of our authorized distributors confirmed that copies of the Medication Guide are sent with each shipment of Mifeprex to certified prescribers and to certified pharmacies, and the Patient Agreement Form is sent to each new certified prescriber and thereafter upon request.

III. Assessment Data

A. Summary audit of authorized distributors

For the reporting period of this REMS Assessment, Danco audited each of its [redacted] authorized distributors, which have been designated as [redacted]. The audit and evaluation results for [redacted] utilized the Mifeprex Authorized Distributor Audit Plan ([redacted]) submitted to the Agency on January 3, 2025 ([redacted]). On October 6, 2025, Danco sent its Certified Pharmacy Audit Questionnaire for Mifeprex (as submitted to the Agency on June 14, 2024, [redacted]) and questions relevant to the REMS Assessment (from the SSS REMS Supporting Document) to [redacted] authorized representatives of [redacted] certified pharmacy locations who were identified by our authorized distributors as being active (i.e., they purchased and were shipped at least one package of Mifeprex) during the reporting period of October 1, 2024 through September 30, 2025. For the period of the audit [redacted] certified pharmacy locations dispensed at least one Mifeprex prescription during the reporting period.

MIFEPREX allows you to act early- up to 70 days (10 weeks) of pregnancy, and cannot be used in cases of confirmed or suspected ectopic pregnancy (a pregnancy outside the uterus) as MIFEPREX is not effective for terminating those pregnancies. If you are using an IUD (intrauterine device or system), it must be taken out before you take MIFEPREX. Talk to your healthcare provider about whether MIFEPREX is the right choice for you. And be sure to tell your provider if you're taking any other medications. For a full list of reasons why MIFEPREX may not be right for you, please review the accompanying Medication Guide.

REIMBURSEMENT INFORMATION FOR Mifeprex® (Mifepristone)
Tablets, 200 mg

Most of the commercial payers and the state Medicaid programs across the country have reimbursement policies for MIFEPREX*. In general, if surgical abortions are covered, the payer is also covering MIFEPREX.

There is no bundled CPT code for the MIFEPREX regimen. As a result, most payers are reimbursing for each component separately.

Almost all the payers are now using the S codes, S0190 for MIFEPREX and S0191 for misoprostol, to reimburse for the drugs. Payment is generally a pass through based on the actual invoice cost of the drug.

For most payers, the charge for the three office visits should be submitted using the appropriate E/M code (e.g., 99204 or 99214 for Day 1, 99213 or 99214 for Day 3 and Day 14) as supported by the documentation in the medical record.

While ultrasound is not required as part of the regimen, one or more ultrasounds may be useful to verify the date of pregnancy and to determine if the pregnancy has ended. Most payers have indicated that they will reimburse for ultrasounds in accordance with their normal fee schedules. The appropriate code for an abdominal ultrasound is either 76805 or 76815; the appropriate code for a transvaginal ultrasound is 76830.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

Q: How do I bill for the three office visits associated with the administration of MIFEPREX?

A: Reimbursement policies vary by payer. Most payers, however, are reimbursing based on the submission of Evaluation and Management codes. The office visit level must be supported by documentation in the medical record.

Q: Where can I find reimbursement information specific to my state?

A: Check our state-by-state listing at: http://www.earlyoptionpill.com/ for detailed information. If your payer is not listed, email us at: info@earlyoptionpill.com.

Q: Do I receive any reimbursement for the administration of the drug?

A: There is no separate payment for administration of MIFEPREX. The payer will generally reimburse you for the cost of the drug based on the actual invoice price. The payer will also reimburse you for additional services, such as office visits and ultrasound.

Q: Should I submit each office visit claim at the time of service or should I submit them as a batch when the course of treatment is concluded?

A: Since it is not being reimbursed as a global procedure, you can submit each bill separately as the service occurs.

Q: Can I order and bill for misoprostol in the same way that I do for MIFEPREX?

A: Misoprostol can be ordered directly from Danco's authorized distributor at the same time you place an order for MIFEPREX. Other distributors may also carry misoprostol. Although it varies by insurance company, you can generally bill for misoprostol using the code S0191.

If you have additional questions regarding reimbursement for MIFEPREX, please call us at 1-877-4 Early Option (1-877-432-7596).

Evan Masingill
Chief Executive Officer
GenBioPro, Inc.
P.O. Box 32011
Las Vegas, NV 89103

Mr. Masingill:

We write with deep concern regarding GenBioPro, Inc.'s (GenBioPro) business practices and the adequacy of its oversight and implementation of the Mifepristone Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategy (REMS) Program required for its product's marketing.

GenBioPro is one of three sponsors approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to market the chemical abortion drug, mifepristone, for use in a regimen with misoprostol to terminate a pregnancy through 10 weeks gestation.[1] GenBioPro was approved to sell a generic version of mifepristone in 2019, and has marketed the drug in the U.S. since that time.[2] According to GenBioPro, its generic version of mifepristone accounts for two-thirds of the market.[3] Mifepristone is one of two products sold by GenBioPro (along with generic misoprostol) and the company has stated that "its mifepristone business constitutes approximately 95% of its revenue."[4] GenBioPro has also stated that it would face "catastrophic financial and operational distress [that] puts in question [its] continued viability" if it was prevented from selling the chemical abortion drugs.[5]

GenBioPro's chemical abortion drug, mifepristone, is subject to a shared system REMS program, along with the brand version Mifeprex and the other generic version, "to mitigate the risk of serious complications associated with mifepristone."[6] The Mifepristone REMS Program has undergone significant changes since it was initially established in 2011, including allowing the drug to be prescribed through 10 weeks gestation (up from seven weeks initially), removing the requirement that prescribers report non-fatal adverse events to the drug manufacturer, and perhaps most concerningly, removing the requirement that the drug be dispensed through an in-person visit with a provider.[7] While we have long urged FDA to reinstate these needed REMS requirements that were recklessly removed by Democrat administrations,[8] we are concerned that GenBioPro is not meeting its legal responsibilities to ensure compliance with even the few remaining REMS requirements.

Under the current Mifepristone REMS Program approved in September 2025, the drug may only be dispensed under the supervision of certified prescribers or by certified pharmacies, on prescriptions issued by certified prescribers, and patients must be informed about the risk of serious complications associated with the drug.[9] In order to become a certified prescriber, a health care provider must, among other requirements, be qualified to (1) assess the duration of pregnancy accurately, (2) diagnose ectopic pregnancies, (3) provide surgical intervention in cases of incomplete abortion or severe bleeding, or have plans to provide such care through others, and (4) assure patient access to medical facilities equipped to provide blood transfusions and resuscitation, if necessary.[10] Certified prescribers must also follow the guidelines for use of mifepristone. These guidelines include ensuring (1) the Patient Agreement Form is reviewed with and signed by the patient, (2) the risks of the mifepristone treatment regimen are fully explained to the patient, (3) the patient is provided with a copy of the Patient Agreement Form and Medication Guide, and (4) the signed Patient Agreement Form is placed in the patient's medical record.[11]

GenBioPro, for its part, must ensure that all prescribers of mifepristone are specially certified in accordance with these requirements and must de-certify prescribers who do not maintain compliance with certification requirements.[12] GenBioPro must also monitor its distribution data to ensure compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program, ensure that adequate records are maintained to demonstrate that the REMS requirements have been met, and annually audit new pharmacies and distributors.[13] Finally, GenBioPro must report to FDA any deaths associated with mifepristone, whether or not considered drug-related, within 15 days of receiving the information.[14]

We are concerned that GenBioPro is not ensuring the REMS requirements are met, especially as it pertains to the online prescribing of mifepristone. On its website, GenBioPro states that women should not take mifepristone if they have a pregnancy that is more than 10 weeks gestation.[15] However, under the heading "How Do I Get a Medical Abortion?" GenBioPro directs consumers six third-party websites to locate a mifepristone provider, each of which include sellers that openly advertise selling the drug to women beyond the 10-week limit.[16] It seems unlikely that GenBioPro is effectively enforcing compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program when it appears to actively facilitate access to its drug outside of the window for which it is approved by FDA.

Furthermore, because many online clinics allow individuals, including men, to order the drugs anonymously, it is unclear how prescribers can ensure that the Patient Agreement Form is reviewed with the patient, signed by the patient, and placed in the patient's medical record. It is also unclear how an online prescriber could adequately explain the risks of the mifepristone treatment regimen to the patient in accordance with the existing REMS. In terms of patient safety, many online sellers of mifepristone appear to automatically prescribe the drug after an individual merely fills out a cursory intake form, raising questions about whether prescribers could accurately assess gestational age or be able to diagnose an ectopic pregnancy—failures that could lead to serious adverse events for the patient.[17] Additionally, it is unclear how online prescribers can satisfy the REMS requirement to provide surgical intervention themselves, or arrange such care through others, if the individual ordering the drug is anonymous and may be located many states away from the prescribing clinician. Finally, patient anonymity and the lack of an adequate doctor-patient relationship raise concerns about whether patient deaths associated with mifepristone obtained through online prescribers could be reported to GenBioPro, which would again be in violation of the REMS requirements. Notably, many online prescribers advise patients that they do not have to tell a doctor that they took the chemical abortion drugs if they later must seek care for serious adverse events.[18]

There is substantial evidence that women are being harmed not only by serious adverse events associated with your company's drug,[19] but also by coercion and other risks resulting from inadequate implementation of REMS safeguards intended to protect patients.[20] It is also clear that the removal of the requirement to report non-fatal adverse events has significantly downplayed the danger mifepristone poses to women. Further, the removal of the in-person dispensing requirement has allowed the drug to be widely prescribed with few guardrails to ensure it is being taken safely, without coercion, and with prompt care available for serious complications. GenBioPro has advocated for the erosion of these safeguards, as the company has repeatedly sought to expand access to chemical abortion and even argued for the removal of REMS requirements before its generic version of mifepristone was approved by FDA.[21] But it is extremely concerning that GenBioPro appears to be doing little to nothing to fulfill its legal obligation to implement the few remaining safeguards to protect women from serious harm.

With chemical abortions provided by online clinics now estimated to account for 27 percent of all abortions in the U.S. (about 160,000 abortions in the first half of 2025),[22] GenBioPro must immediately implement the Mifepristone REMS Program requirements and de-certify prescribers who do not comply. By willingly refusing to do so, GenBioPro is putting its profits above the health and safety of women and children.

Given these serious concerns regarding GenBioPro's compliance with its legal obligations under the Mifepristone REMS Program, we request that you answer the following questions, on a question-by-question basis, no later than April 8, 2026. Re: March 25, 2026 Letter Requesting Information About GenBioPro Inc.'s Operations

Dear Chairman Cassidy:

On behalf of our client, GenBioPro, Inc. ("GBP"), this letter (including the attached Appendix) responds to your letter dated March 25, 2026, seeking information about GBP and its compliance with the mifepristone Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategy ("REMS") Program.

Please find enclosed, via the secure email that will immediately follow this letter, an encrypted zip file containing GBP's production of documents. The production, which bears the Bates numbers 26-0000001 – 26-0002001, can be accessed using the password and decryption instructions found in the cover email that accompanies this letter. GBP will supplement this production as additional responsive materials are identified.

GBP's mission is to deliver affordable and safe products for people seeking reproductive health care. Consistent with that mission, GBP markets an FDA-approved generic version of Mifeprex® (mifepristone) 200 mg. Mifepristone was first approved by the FDA as safe and effective for the termination of early pregnancies more than twenty-five years ago. Since then, mifepristone's safety and efficacy have been confirmed time and again through the FDA's review of extensive scientific data and published literature, as well as through the real-world clinical experience of over 7.5 million women in the United States who have safely terminated their pregnancies with the mifepristone regimen.[1] Consistent with this evidentiary record, mifepristone is widely recognized as a safe and effective option for abortion care in clinical practice guidelines issued by professional organizations and reproductive health care experts.[2]

The safety profile of mifepristone as described by the FDA is "well-established by both research and experience," and serious complications are "extremely rare."[3] As the body of evidence supporting mifepristone's safety and effectiveness has grown over time, the FDA has periodically revised the REMS to assure patient access and to minimize the burden on the health care delivery system, as required by federal law.[4] In December 2021, the FDA determined that mifepristone would remain safe and effective without the in-person dispensing requirement, provided that the drug is dispensed by certified prescribers or certified pharmacies.[5] That determination was based on a comprehensive review of adverse event data, the REMS assessment report, and published studies evaluating different methods for dispensing mifepristone. The FDA's decision-making has been validated by a recent study by researchers at Johns Hopkins University showing the agency's determination was based on a comprehensive review of scientific evidence led by staff scientists at the agency and without indication of ideological bias.[6]

GBP takes seriously all of its legal obligations under the mifepristone REMS program, as well as other applicable laws and regulations, including all of its reporting requirements to the FDA.[7] Among its other regulatory requirements, GBP complies with its obligations to ensure that the health care providers who prescribe and the pharmacies that dispense mifepristone are certified in accordance with the REMS and that GBP's mifepristone is only distributed to such certified prescribers and pharmacies. GBP also audits its distributors and the certified pharmacies, in accordance with the specified timelines, to ensure that processes and procedures are in place and functioning to support the requirements of the REMS. Additionally, as part of its post-approval pharmacovigilance, GBP reports to the FDA any deaths associated with mifepristone as required by the REMS, promptly reviews all reports of adverse drug experiences, and collects and submits those data to the FDA within the specified time periods.[8]

Importantly, while GBP is responsible for implementing the REMS, it does not direct prescribers' clinical decision-making about appropriate care for their patients. GBP believes that health care providers and patients are best positioned to determine the appropriate course of treatment, consistent with the requirements of the REMS and any applicable state or federal laws. GBP's goal is to support patients and providers navigating care decisions through the lawful provision of affordable, safe, and effective medication.

GBP is committed to providing information responsive to your inquiry, while protecting the privacy and security of those involved in the manufacturing, distribution, and use of mifepristone, as well as the confidentiality of the company's proprietary business information, including but not limited to commercially sensitive information and/or trade secrets. As the FDA recognizes on its website, given the particular facts and circumstances related to mifepristone, the release of certain information that might normally be appropriate to disclose "may pose a risk of danger to the lives or physical safety of individuals."[9] GBP is likewise necessarily cautious in producing information that could create a security risk.

Response to Question 1: The names and addresses of the facilities that manufacture mifepristone tablets for GenBioPro, Inc. ("GBP") have been reported to the FDA. Additional specificity would implicate well-recognized security and privacy concerns related to identification of specific facilities or individuals involved in the manufacturing, distribution, and use of mifepristone, as well as potentially disclose proprietary business information. As the FDA recognizes on its website, given the particular facts and circumstances related to mifepristone, the release of certain information that might normally be appropriate to disclose "may pose a risk of danger to the lives or physical safety of individuals."[10]

Response to Question 2: The FDA is responsible for performing inspections of establishments in which drugs are manufactured and maintains a public database of such inspections, which contains inspection dates, classifications, citation details, and other information. The facilities manufacturing mifepristone tablets for GBP have undergone FDA inspections and remain approved by the FDA for manufacturing. The disclosure of additional information would give rise to the concerns raised in response to Question 1.

Response to Question 3: The active pharmaceutical ingredient ("API") for mifepristone is manufactured in India. The name and address of the facility at which the API is manufactured has been reported to the FDA. The disclosure of additional information would give rise to the concerns raised in response to Question 1.

Response to Question 4: Consistent with the REMS, GBP ensures that its distributors comply with the Mifepristone REMS Program requirements for distributors. GBP treats the identities of its distributors as confidential information, including pursuant to contractual obligations. Identification of such distributors would implicate the concerns raised in response to Question 1.

Response to Question 5: GBP does not use a third-party vendor to administer the Mifepristone REMS Program.

Response to Question 6: Under the REMS, healthcare providers who prescribe mifepristone must submit Prescriber Forms to the sponsors' distributors and/or certified pharmacies. To the best of GBP's knowledge, as of September 2025, GBP's distributors and certified pharmacies have received approximately 2,950 Prescriber Forms. This figure may reflect duplicate forms submitted to both a distributor and a certified pharmacy, or to multiple pharmacies, and thus overstate the number of unique prescribers. The submission of a Prescriber Form does not indicate whether a prescriber is actively prescribing mifepristone.

[10] See https://www.fda.gov/drugs/postmarket-drug-safety-information-patients-and-providers/mifepristone-mifeprex.

Response to Question 7: GBP publishes on its website a list of pharmacies that have consented to disclosure and are currently certified to dispense GBP mifepristone.[11] This list includes both national and regional pharmacies and is organized by state. The disclosure of additional information would give rise to the concerns raised in response to Question 1.

Response to Questions 8-9: GBP audits certified pharmacies and its distributors as required under the Mifepristone REMS Program and has procedures in place to address noncompliance if needed. GBP reports summaries of its audit activities to the FDA as part of its REMS assessment. The disclosure of the names and addresses of certified pharmacies and distributors would give rise to the concerns raised in response to Question 1, and the disclosure of audit results would reveal commercially sensitive information.

Response to Question 10: Response to follow.

Response to Question 11: GBP's REMS assessments are in the possession of the FDA, and GBP treats those assessments as confidential.

Response to Question 12: GBP's document production contains documents responsive to this request. In particular, the produced Appendix to the GenBioPro Citizen Petition includes published studies evaluating the safety and efficacy of mifepristone as of July 2025.

Response to Questions 13-14: GBP currently is the sole supplier of generic mifepristone in the United States and, upon information and belief, its sales constitute a majority of the U.S. mifepristone market. GBP's sales of mifepristone account for the majority of its revenue. Between FDA approval of the ANDA in 2019 and 2023, GBP sold more than 850,000 units of generic mifepristone throughout the United States.

Response to Questions 15-16: Under the REMS, GBP is required to de-certify healthcare providers and pharmacies that do not maintain compliance with the REMS certification requirements. GBP reports decertification metrics to the FDA in its REMS assessment.

Response to Question 17: The FDA-approved label states that mifepristone is indicated, in a regimen with misoprostol, for the medical termination of intrauterine pregnancy through 70 days gestation. The Medication Guide states that "[s]ome patients should not take Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg. Do not take Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg if you . . . [h]ave a pregnancy that is more than 70 days (10 weeks)." All of GBP's product communications are consistent with the FDA-required labeling.

GBP's website provides factual information about mifepristone, consistent with the FDA-required labeling, and helps patients identify health care providers who can evaluate them for care. To that end, the website states that individuals can "ask your trusted health care provider or find an abortion care service near you." The organizations listed on GBP's website provide directories of abortion care providers or are membership organizations for abortion care providers.[12] GBP does not control these organizations or the content of those organizations' websites. GBP believes that health care providers and patients are best positioned to determine the appropriate course of treatment, consistent with the requirements of the REMS and any applicable state or federal laws.

Response to Question 18: GBP ensures that the providers who prescribe its mifepristone are certified in accordance with the REMS. To become a certified prescriber, a provider must sign and submit the Prescriber Form, under which the provider agrees to "[e]nsure that the Patient Agreement Form is reviewed with the patient and the risks of the mifepristone regimen are fully explained." The Prescriber Form further provides that the certified prescriber is "responsible for overseeing implementation and compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program." The REMS provides that mifepristone "must be dispensed to patients with evidence or other documentation of safe use conditions as ensured by the certified prescriber in signing" the Prescriber Form.[13] All certified prescribers must sign the Prescriber Form, regardless of care delivery setting.

Response to Question 19: Per Question 18, GBP ensures that the providers who prescribe its mifepristone are certified in accordance with the REMS. To become a certified prescriber, a provider must sign and submit the Prescriber Form, under which the provider agrees to "[e]nsure the healthcare provider and patient sign the Patient Agreement Form." All certified prescribers must sign the Prescriber Form, regardless of care delivery setting.

Response to Question 20: Per Question 18, GBP ensures that the providers who prescribe its mifepristone are certified in accordance with the REMS. To become a certified prescriber, a provider must sign and submit the Prescriber Form, under which the provider agrees to "[e]nsure that the signed Patient Agreement Form is placed in the patient's medical record." All certified prescribers must sign the Prescriber Form, regardless of care delivery setting.

Response to Question 21: Per Question 18, GBP ensures that the providers who prescribe its mifepristone are certified in accordance with the REMS. To become a certified prescriber, a provider must sign and submit the Prescriber Form, under which the provider agrees they have the "[a]bility to assess the duration of pregnancy accurately." All certified prescribers must sign the Prescriber Form, regardless of care delivery setting.

Response to Question 22: Per Question 18, GBP ensures that the providers who prescribe its mifepristone are certified in accordance with the REMS. To become a certified prescriber, a provider must sign and submit the Prescriber Form, under which the provider agrees they have the "[a]bility to diagnose ectopic pregnancies." All certified prescribers must sign the Prescriber Form, regardless of care delivery setting.

Response to Questions 23-24: Per Question 18, GBP ensures that the providers who prescribe its mifepristone are certified in accordance with the REMS. To become a certified prescriber, a provider must sign and submit the Prescriber Form, under which the provider agrees they have the "[a]bility to provide surgical intervention in cases of incomplete abortion or severe bleeding, or have made plans to provide such care through others, and be able to assure patient access to medical facilities equipped to provide blood transfusions and resuscitation, if necessary." All certified prescribers must sign the Prescriber Form, regardless of care delivery setting.

Response to Question 25: Per Question 18, GBP ensures that the providers who prescribe its mifepristone are certified in accordance with the REMS. To become a certified prescriber, a provider must sign and submit the Prescriber Form, under which the provider agrees to "[e]nsure that any deaths of patients who received mifepristone are reported to GenBioPro Inc., identifying the patient by a non-identifiable reference and including the NDC and lot number from the package of mifepristone that was dispensed to the patient." All certified prescribers must sign the Prescriber Form, regardless of care delivery setting.

Response to Question 26: GBP promptly reviews all adverse drug experience information—including non-fatal adverse events—obtained or otherwise received from any source, foreign or domestic, including information derived from commercial marketing experience, postmarketing clinical investigations, postmarketing epidemiological/surveillance studies, reports in the scientific literature, and unpublished scientific papers. GBP reports adverse drug experience information to the FDA in postmarketing 15-day "Alert reports" or periodic reports as required by FDA regulations. GBP conducts these activities pursuant to written procedures for the surveillance, receipt, evaluation, and reporting of postmarketing adverse drug experiences.

The FDA-approved label provides the following ways providers and patients can report suspected adverse reactions:

> To report SUSPECTED ADVERSE REACTIONS, contact GenBioPro, Inc. at 1-855-643-3463 or medical@genbiopro.com or www.MIFEINFO.com or FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088 or www.fda.gov/medwatch.

While we appreciate GBP's initial response by the requested deadline, we find the substance of the response to be wholly insufficient. GBP provided few details in response to the questions asked and explicitly or implicitly ignored parts of many questions. To that end, please see a list of follow-up questions and requests for GBP below. We again reiterate our expectation that GBP complies with these requests and answers the questions in a complete manner. We request answers to the below by Monday, May 11th at 5pm. Given that the questions and requests are substantively the same as the original letter, we expect the responses in a timely manner.

1. Understanding GBP is unwilling to provide the name and address of the manufacturing facilities (see response to question 1), please provide the country where the finished drug product is manufactured. Further, is the API imported from India to the United States and then exported to another country for finished product manufacturing and final release testing before the finished product is imported back into the United States, or does the whole manufacturing process occur in one country?
2. Understanding that GBP represents that its manufacturing facilities remain approved by FDA for manufacturing, (see response to question 2), please answer the following:
    a. Since mifepristone's date of approval in 2019, have there ever been quality issues related to the manufacturing of mifepristone found by FDA or any regulatory or licensing body? If yes, please explain.
    b. Please provide the dates and results of each of FDA's inspections related to mifepristone manufacturing since mifepristone's date of approval in 2019, regardless of the designation given. You may redact facility names, addresses, and other identifying information for privacy purposes.
3. Understanding that GBP will not identify individual certified distributors by name (see response to question 4), how many distributors does GBP currently contract with to distribute mifepristone?
4. Please confirm that GBP is itself solely responsible for ensuring prescriber, pharmacy, and distributor compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program, given it does not engage any third-party vendors to administer the Mifepristone REMS Program (see response to question 5).
5. As a follow-up on prescriber compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program, please explain (1) whether prescribers in states where abortion is prohibited by law (with few exceptions) are automatically decertified when such a law takes effect; (2) whether GBP decertifies prescribers based on federal or state prosecutions that find their actions were not compliant with REMS requirements; and (3) how long a prescriber certification is valid and the renewal process (for example, whether a prescriber must be recertified annually or on any other time interval).

6. Please provide a state-by-state breakdown of the 2,950 REMS-certified mifepristone prescribers as of September 2025 (see response to question 6). To be clear, no identifying information is requested and the response can be along the lines of: State A: 123 prescribers; State B: 234 prescribers; etc.
7. Please provide a state-by-state breakdown, including how many provide a mail-order option, of the REMS-certified pharmacies for mifepristone as of September 2025 (see response to question 7). To be clear, no identifying information is requested and the response can be along the lines of: State A: 123 pharmacies (32 provide mail order); State B: 234 pharmacies (73 provide mail order); etc.
8. Understanding that GBP represents it has completed all required pharmacy and distributor audits under the REMS and addressed all observations of noncompliance (see response to questions 8-9), please provide a list of all observations of noncompliance by certified pharmacies and distributors since mifepristone's date of approval in 2019. This list should include the date of the observation, an explanation of the noncompliance, and the remedial action taken. To be clear, no identifying information is requested. Please also include a copy of the audit rubric GBP uses for pharmacies and distributors and explain the process by which audits are conducted (for example, by phone or video calls, physical visits, self-attestation, etc.).
9. Please provide the total number of all non-fatal adverse events associated with GBP's mifepristone generic product from its date of approval in 2019 through February 28, 2026 (see response to question 10).
10. Understanding that GBP represents that it has submitted all required REMS assessments to FDA (see response to question 11), please provide those REMS assessments. You may redact identifying information.
11. Understanding that GBP has sold more than 850,000 units of generic mifepristone throughout the United States (see response to questions 15-16), please produce an Excel spreadsheet that includes the number of mifepristone drugs sold on a quarterly basis since its date of approval in 2019. Please include a breakdown of the number of mifepristone drugs sold by state in this spreadsheet.

12. Please provide GBP's revenue from the sale of mifepristone, on an annual basis, since mifepristone's date of approval in 2019.
13. Understanding GBP is required to decertify prescribers and pharmacies that do not maintain compliance with the REMS requirements (see responses to questions 15-16), please provide a list of all prescriber and pharmacy decertifications since mifepristone's date of approval in 2000. This list should include the date of decertification and the reason for decertification. To be clear, no identifying information is requested. Please also provide a complete explanation of the processes GBP has developed and follows, including producing any rubrics used, for investigating prescriber and pharmacy noncompliance.
14. Understanding GBP does not endorse or control the content of the third-party websites it lists on its own website (see response to question 17), has GBP ever pursued any communication with these websites to alert them they are advertising its drug in a manner that is not consistent with its label and approval? If yes, please explain the communications. If no, why not?
15. In response to questions 18 through 25, GBP reproduced and summarized the publicly available Mifepristone REMS Program requirements (see responses to question 18–25). We again request documents and a narrative explanation from GBP about how the company ensures compliance with each of the REMS requirements listed in questions 18 through 25. Each explanation should include the specific process by which GBP monitors prescribers, ensures the attestations made in the Prescriber Agreement Form are correct, ensures ongoing compliance with these requirements, handles instances of noncompliance, and engages with individual prescribers to ensure the requirements are met. Further, each explanation should include, with specificity, how compliance is ensured for online-based prescribers who have no in-person interaction with the patient and often prescribe the drug completely anonymously.

APPENDIX

Response to Question 1: As stated in the April 17, 2026 response (the "Prior Response"), the names and addresses of the facilities that manufacture mifepristone tablets for GenBioPro, Inc. ("GBP") have been reported to the FDA. Additional specificity about the facilities, including their locations, would implicate well-recognized security and privacy concerns related to identification of entities or individuals involved in the manufacturing, distribution, and use of mifepristone, as described in the Prior Response. Additionally, providing information about the organization of GBP's supply chain, such as the manner in which manufacturing and testing activities are structured across different facilities or jurisdictions, would reveal commercially sensitive business information.

Response to Question 2(a): GBP is not aware of any quality issues related to the manufacturing of its mifepristone found by FDA or any regulatory or licensing body.

Response to Question 2(b): As stated in the Prior Response, the facilities manufacturing mifepristone tablets for GBP have undergone FDA inspections and remain approved by the FDA for manufacturing. The FDA maintains a public database of inspections, which contains inspection dates, classifications, citation details, and other information.[1]

Since April 11, 2019, GBP is aware of the following inspections conducted by FDA at the facilities currently manufacturing mifepristone for GBP:

2019	No Action Indicated
2019	Voluntary Action Indicated
2023	No Action Indicated
2025	No Action Indicated
2025	No Action Indicated

Response to Question 3: GBP currently contracts with seven entities to distribute mifepristone tablets.

Response to Question 4: As stated in the Prior Response, GBP does not use a third-party vendor to administer the Mifepristone REMS Program. GBP is responsible for complying with the sponsor obligations set forth in the REMS.

Response to Question 5:

(1) As stated in the Prior Response, under the REMS, GBP is required to de-certify healthcare providers that do not "maintain compliance with certification requirements." The REMS certification requirements, in turn, require prescribers to agree they (i) have the requisite qualifications and (ii) will follow the guidelines for use of mifepristone set forth in the REMS. The REMS certification requirements do not bar providers based on the state in which they are located. A prescriber's location therefore does not provide a basis for automatic decertification under the REMS. Automatic decertification based on state location would limit access to mifepristone that is legally permitted. For example, as your question recognizes, state abortion laws typically include exceptions, such as when abortion is necessary to protect the life or health of the patient.

[1] https://datadashboard.fda.gov/oii/cd/inspections.htm.

(2) GBP is not aware of any judicial determination that a certified prescriber did not maintain compliance with the REMS.

(3) The REMS does not limit the length of time a prescriber certification is valid or otherwise require a renewal process. As required by the REMS, GBP annually confirms with each certified prescriber who purchases mifepristone from GBP's distributors that their locations for receiving mifepristone are up to date.

Response to Question 6: As stated in the Prior Response, the approximately 2,950 Prescriber Forms received by GBP's distributors and certified pharmacies may reflect duplicate forms submitted to both a distributor and a certified pharmacy, or to multiple pharmacies, and thus may overstate the number of unique prescribers.

GBP does not possess information that would allow it to provide an accurate state-by-state breakdown of all certified prescribers. Under the REMS, healthcare providers who prescribe mifepristone must submit Prescriber Forms—which include information about the provider's practice name and address—to the sponsors' distributors and/or certified pharmacies.[2] To the extent Prescriber Forms are submitted directly to GBP, GBP routes those forms to the appropriate distributor or certified pharmacy, as applicable. If a prescriber submits the Prescriber Form directly to a certified pharmacy, GBP does not have visibility into the content of the form, including the address information.[3]

Based on sales data, GBP understands that since January 2024, there are certified prescribers that receive product deliveries in at least 45 states plus the District of Columbia.

Response to Question 7: As stated in the Prior Response, GBP publishes on its website a list of pharmacies that have consented to disclosure and are currently certified to dispense GBP mifepristone.[4] This list contains pharmacies and/or pharmacy chain locations in the following states: Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, DC, Delaware, Hawai'i, Illinois, Kansas, Massachusetts, Maryland, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Nevada, New Mexico, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, Virginia, Vermont, Washington, and Wisconsin.

[2] For certified prescribers who submit Prescriber Forms to GBP's distributors, GBP is responsible for annually confirming that their locations for receiving mifepristone that are on file with GBP's distributors are up to date.

[3] As part of its REMS assessment, GBP reports to FDA the aggregate number of Prescriber Forms submitted to certified pharmacies.

[4] https://genbiopro.com/products/mifepristone/prescribers/roster/.

Response to Question 8: GBP audits certified pharmacies and its distributors as required under the Mifepristone REMS Program and has procedures in place to address noncompliance if needed, including through the implementation of corrective and preventive action plans ("CAPAs"). The audits assess compliance with the applicable requirements under the REMS, including, but not limited to, review of REMS policies and procedures, training documentation, certification records, dispensing data, deviation reports, and CAPAs. If an audit identifies critical non-compliance events and the pharmacy or distributor fails to promptly implement a CAPA, the pharmacy or distributor will be suspended. If a pharmacy is unable or unwilling to resolve the non-compliance issues, GBP will decertify the pharmacy. Likewise, if a distributor is unable or unwilling to resolve the non-compliance issues, GBP will revoke the distributor's authorization. GBP submits its audit plans for certified pharmacies and distributors to FDA as part of its REMS assessment and incorporates pertinent information from its audits into its REMS assessment. GBP treats those audit plans and REMS assessments as confidential.

We provide below a list of observations of noncompliance identified in pharmacy and distributor audits conducted by GBP since FDA approved the REMS modification in 2023:

Type	Period	Finding	Remedial Action
Distributor	01/01/2023-09/30/2023	• Three SOPs were lacking information related to the 2023 modified REMS Program. Specifically, the SOPs were lacking certain updated information on the pharmacy process and pharmacy agreement forms.	SOPs were revised to incorporate the pharmacy process and agreement form per the 2023 REMS modification. Procedures for control, review and revision of SOPs were updated to implement an immediate assessment of REMS SOPs upon notification of any REMS change and quarterly review and approval process to ensure timely assessment of all procedures for compliance.
Distributor	10/01/2024-09/30/2025	• Corrections that were made to the SOP for security were not completed in accordance with the distributor's SOP for Corrections, Revisions and Signatures on Documents.	The audit observations were not specifically related to the Mifepristone REMS program but were reported as GMP observations.

		• Verification of serialization data upon shipment receipt was not performed in accordance with distributor's SOP and DSCSA requirements.
Pharmacy	10/01/2023-09/30/2024	• Two prescriptions dispensed more than 4 days after receipt of prescription without prescriber approval.	Personnel reeducated on the REMS and to more closely monitor prescription pick-up.
Pharmacy	10/01/2024-09/30/2025	• One prescription delivered more than 4 days after receipt of prescription without prescriber approval.	The pharmacy will more closely follow the pickup and shipment of prescriptions to avoid the scenario from reoccurring.

Response to Question 9: GBP is required to report to FDA all fatal and non-fatal adverse events it receives in accordance with timelines and procedures established by FDA regulation.[5] Fatal and non-fatal adverse events associated with mifepristone reported to FDA are available on the FDA Adverse Event Monitoring System ("AEMS") database.[6]

In response to question 10 in your March 25, 2026 letter, we provide below a list of all deaths associated with the use of mifepristone that GBP has reported to FDA since the date of approval in 2019. All events were reported to FDA consistent with FDA regulations and the REMS.

Code	Date Initially Aware
2020GEN00001	01/06/2020
2021GEN00001	06/23/2021
2021GEN00002	06/29/2021
2022GEN00001	11/01/2022
2022GEN00002	07/01/2022
2023GEN00001	01/17/2023
2023GEN00002	05/04/2023
2023GEN00003	11/02/2023
2025GEN00009	07/08/2025

Response to Question 10: GBP's REMS assessments are in the possession of the FDA, and GBP treats those assessments as confidential. Providing GBP's REMS assessments would disclose commercially sensitive business information.

[5] 21 C.F.R. § 314.80.
[6] https://www.fda.gov/safety/fda-adverse-event-monitoring-system-aems

Response to Question 11: GBP reports to FDA the number of mifepristone tablets shipped by distributors during the reporting period as part of its REMS assessment. Providing information on the number of mifepristone tablets sold per quarter or by state would disclose commercially sensitive business information.

Response to Question 12: As stated in the Prior Response, GBP's sales of mifepristone account for the majority of its revenue. Providing additional information on GBP's annual revenue from the sale of mifepristone would disclose commercially sensitive business information.

Response to Question 13: As stated in the Prior Response, GBP reports decertification metrics to FDA in its REMS assessment. GBP also provides FDA a copy of its certified pharmacy audit and noncompliance plan, which describes GBP's process for evaluating pharmacy noncompliance. Additionally, as required by the REMS, GBP monitors its distribution data and takes reasonable steps to improve implementation of and compliance with the requirements of the REMS based on its monitoring and assessment of the REMS.

Response to Question 14: GBP does not control, influence, or endorse the content of the third-party websites referenced on GBP's website. GBP has no legal obligation under applicable law, regulations, or the REMS to monitor or correct statements made by independent third parties.

Response to Question 15: As stated in the Prior Response, healthcare providers who prescribe GBP's mifepristone must be certified in accordance with the REMS. To become a certified prescriber, a provider must sign and submit the Prescriber Form, under which the provider agrees they (i) have the requisite qualifications and (ii) will follow the guidelines for use of mifepristone. The Prescriber Form further provides that the certified prescriber is "responsible for overseeing implementation and compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program." The REMS provides that mifepristone "must be dispensed to patients with evidence or other documentation of safe use conditions as ensured by the certified prescriber in signing" the Prescriber Form. All certified prescribers must sign the Prescriber Form, regardless of care delivery setting.

As part of its REMS assessment, GBP reports to FDA REMS compliance information, including summaries of its audit activities, a summary report of non-compliance and associated corrective action plans, and a summary and analysis of any program deviations and corrective actions taken with respect to prescriber, pharmacy, and distributor compliance. Providing additional information on the processes that GBP employs to monitor and assess the REMS program would disclose commercially sensitive business information.

Subject: RE: GBP Response to March 25 Letter from Chairman Cassidy
Date: Thursday, May 14, 2026 3:58:00 PM

[redacted]

Please see a list of further follow up questions and requests for GBP below. We request a complete response to these questions and requests by Thursday, May 21 at 5pm. [redacted] The references to questions and responses in parentheses below refer to the April 29, 2026, email and GBP's responses in its second response letter on May 11, 2026. Thank you.

1. GBP represented that an FDA inspection of one of its manufacturing facilities in 2019 resulted in a classification of "Voluntary Action Indicated" (see response to question 2(b)). Please explain what "objectionable conditions or practices" were found and explain what, if any, remedial action the manufacturer took to remediate these concerns. Please provide a copy of any 483s from FDA related to these findings. Identifying information related to the facility or individuals may be redacted.
2. Understanding that GBP represents that it does not have visibility into the state-by-state locations of its certified prescribers, but that based on sales data, there are certified prescribers that receive deliveries in at least 45 states plus DC since January 2024 (see response to question 6), please provide a list identifying the 45 states where mifepristone has been delivered to a certified prescriber since January 2024.
3. We reiterate our request for the state-by-state breakdown of the number of certified pharmacies, including how many provide a mail-order option, as of September 2025 (see question 7). We do not agree that providing the total number of certified pharmacies in each state, along with how many provide a mail-order option, without any other identifying information gives rise to security and/or confidential commercial information concerns. For the avoidance of doubt, this response should include the total number of certified pharmacies, not only the ones who consented to disclosure on GBP's website.
4. Understanding that GBP represents that producing completed REMS assessment reports would reveal "commercially sensitive business information" (see response to question 10), please provide the most recent REMS assessment report GBP submitted to FDA with confidential commercial information redacted. We see this request as a good faith compromise to be able to understand the type of information GBP provides to FDA through such annual assessments without revealing confidential commercial information.

5. We reiterate our request for a quarterly and state-by-state breakdown of the number of GBP's generic mifepristone drugs sold since its date of approval in 2019 (see question 11).
6. We reiterate our request for GBP's annual revenue from the sale of generic mifepristone since its U.S. market launch (see question 12).
7. We reiterate our request for the number of prescribers and pharmacies that have been decertified since GBP's generic mifepristone's U.S. market launch, as well as the date and reason for decertification (see question 13).
8. Please explain how GBP promotes the use of mifepristone in accordance with its FDA-approved indication and labeling (see response to question 14). Given GBP promotes providers on its website that openly advertise prescribing mifepristone outside of its approved indication and labeling, we request a further explanation of GBP's sales practices and how it ensures these sales practices are in accordance with FDA-approved indication and labeling. Further, understanding GBP represents that it does not endorse or control the content of third-party websites (see response to question 14), please explain why the company would want to direct patients to providers that prescribe the drug outside of its approved indication and labeling instead of directing patients to providers that prescribe according to the FDA-approved indication and labeling. Is this done in an effort to increase sales volume of mifepristone?
9. Does GBP audit individual certified prescribers of mifepristone, independently confirm prescriber attestations, and/or oversee prescribing decisions made by certified prescribers to ensure compliance with REMS requirements (see question 15)? If yes, please explain how this monitoring is conducted. If no, how does GBP identify and address prescriber noncompliance with REMS requirements?
10. Please describe GBP's process for contributing to the development of the single, shared system mifepristone REMS Program goals and implementation and evaluation strategies, including how these goals and strategies have evolved since GBP became a party to the REMS after the approval of its ANDA for mifepristone. Specifically, please explain why the REMS does not require independent confirmation of prescriber attestations or other approaches to verify prescriber compliance with REMS requirements, especially for online prescribers, either directly by GBP or via GBP's distributors, certified pharmacies, or other third parties.

Thank you.

APPENDIX

Response to Question 1: The facilities manufacturing mifepristone tablets for GenBioPro, Inc. ("GBP") have undergone FDA inspections and remain approved by the FDA for manufacturing. Per the FDA, a "Voluntary Action Indicated" ("VAI") classification indicates the inspection found objectionable conditions or practices, but the agency has determined the facility can voluntarily correct the deficiencies without the need for further agency action.[1] The facility that received the VAI classification in 2019 underwent another FDA inspection in 2025 and received a No Action Indicated ("NAI") classification. Both inspections were included in our May 11, 2026 response. To the best of GBP's knowledge, the 2019 VAI classification did not relate to the manufacturing of GBP's mifepristone.

GBP has quality agreements with its contract manufacturers that include provisions for communicating FDA inspection observations and findings related to GBP's products, consistent with FDA guidance.[2] Because contract facilities often provide services to multiple companies, GBP receives summaries of FDA inspection results from its contract facilities only if the inspection results directly pertain to the manufacturing of GBP's products. For this reason, GBP does not possess the requested information regarding the 2019 inspection. GBP is not aware of any FDA inspection findings related to the manufacturing of GBP's mifepristone in the 2019 inspection or otherwise.

Response to Question 2: Based on sales data, GBP understands that since January 2024, there have been certified prescribers in the following States: Alaska, Arizona, California, Colorado, Connecticut, District of Columbia, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Iowa, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Massachusetts, Maryland, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, North Carolina, North Dakota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, Nevada, New York, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Vermont, Washington, Wisconsin, West Virginia, and Wyoming. There are lawful uses of mifepristone under the laws of each of these States.

Response to Question 3: A State-by-State breakdown of the number of certified pharmacies with completed Pharmacy Agreement Forms is provided below. The address provided by a certified pharmacy in its Pharmacy Agreement Form was used to tabulate the number of pharmacies in a given State. Some certified pharmacies may have multiple dispensing locations, including across multiple states, and operate pursuant to a single Pharmacy Agreement Form. These pharmacies are included in the table as a single entry. Additionally, GBP is not required by the REMS to systematically track whether each certified pharmacy offers mail order pharmacy services. Brick-and-mortar pharmacies and mail-order pharmacies are subject to the same requirements under the mifepristone REMS.

There are lawful uses of mifepristone under the laws of each of these States.

Response to Question 4: GBP's accompanying document production contains documents responsive to this request.

Response to Question 5: As stated in our prior responses, GBP reports to FDA the number of mifepristone tablets shipped by its distributors during the reporting period as part of its REMS assessment. Providing information regarding the number of mifepristone tablets sold per quarter or by state would disclose nonpublic, commercially sensitive business information. GBP has maintained the confidentiality of its sales data and market share information since the launch of GBP's generic mifepristone in 2019, including in litigation proceedings, and federal courts have agreed that disclosure of such information would cause harm to GBP's business operations. See, e.g., GenBioPro, Inc. v. Dobbs, No. 3:20-cv-00652-HTW-LGI, ECF No. 25 (S.D. Miss. July 2, 2021) (granting motion to redact).

Per the FDA, approximately 7.5 million women used mifepristone in the United States for medical termination of pregnancy through the end of December 2024.[3] [3] https://www.fda.gov/media/185245/download?attachment.

Response to Question 6: GBP's sales of mifepristone account for approximately 95% of its revenue. Providing additional information on GBP's annual revenue from the sale of mifepristone would disclose nonpublic, commercially sensitive business information. As a closely-held private entity, GBP has maintained the confidentiality of its mifepristone revenue information since the launch of GBP's generic mifepristone in 2019.

Response to Question 7: GBP has not had cause to decertify any certified prescriber or certified pharmacy since the launch of GBP's generic mifepristone in 2019. GBP's audits of certified pharmacies have not identified noncompliance with the REMS certification requirements that could not be resolved through corrective actions. Likewise, GBP has not identified noncompliance with the REMS certification requirements among certified prescribers.

Response to Question 8: GBP conducts its promotional activities in compliance with all applicable laws and FDA requirements. To that end, GBP maintains a robust promotional review process under which its promotional materials are reviewed by GBP's medical, legal, and regulatory personnel to ensure the materials are consistent with the FDA-required labeling, are truthful and non-misleading, and present a fair balance of benefits and risks. GBP also submits all promotional labeling and advertising to FDA at the time of first use, as required by FDA regulations.[4]

As stated in our April 17, 2026 response, GBP's website provides factual information about mifepristone, consistent with the FDA-required labeling. On the webpage in question, GBP provides information to help patients understand mifepristone's approved indication, safety information, and what to expect as part of the treatment process. In particular, the webpage informs patients that mifepristone is not approved for ending pregnancies after 10 weeks gestation:

> What is mifepristone tablets, 200mg?
> Mifepristone tablets, 200mg, is used in a regimen with another prescription medicine called misoprostol to end an early pregnancy.
> Early pregnancy means it is 70 days (10 weeks) or less since your last menstrual period began. Mifepristone tablets, 200mg, are not approved for ending pregnancies that are further along. [. . .]
> Who should not take mifepristone tablets, 200mg?
> Some women should not take mifepristone tablets, 200mg. Do not take mifepristone tablets, 200mg, if you:
> - Have a pregnancy that is more than 70 days (10 weeks). Your health care provider may do a clinical examination, an ultrasound examination, or other testing to determine how far along you are in pregnancy. [. . .]

[4] 21 C.F.R. 314.81(b)(3)(i).

> Ask your health care provider if you are not sure about all your medical conditions before taking this medicine to find out if you can take mifepristone tablets, 200mg.

The webpage also states that individuals seeking abortion care can "ask your trusted health care provider or find an abortion care service near you." The organizations listed on GBP's website provide directories of abortion care providers or are membership organizations for abortion care providers. GBP includes links to these resources to help patients identify potential health care providers who may be able to evaluate them for care. When a user clicks on one of these links, they are informed that they are leaving the GBP website, that links to all outside sites are independent sites not operated by GBP, and that any information on the linked site is solely subject to the control of the organization operating the site. GBP thus affirmatively disclaims any control or endorsement of the content of those sites.

Response to Question 9: GBP complies with its obligations under the REMS. If an actual or suspected instance of prescriber non-compliance were brought to GBP's attention, GBP would investigate and respond appropriately, including by decertifying the prescriber if the prescriber will not comply with the REMS certification requirements.

Response to Question 10: GBP's process for contributing to the development of the single, shared system ("SSS") REMS involved coordinating with other application holders and FDA to develop, negotiate, and implement a single set of REMS materials that meet FDA requirements and the standards set forth in 21 U.S.C. § 355-1.

Under 21 U.S.C. § 355-1(i), FDA may require multiple applicants to use a SSS REMS, which uses a single REMS document, supporting document, and REMS materials, agreed to by all applicants and approved as part of each application.

With respect to mifepristone, FDA required GBP and Danco Laboratories, LLC ("Danco") to use a SSS REMS. GBP and Danco submitted a SSS REMS proposal to FDA in 2015. On April 11, 2019, FDA approved GBP's abbreviated new drug application ("ANDA") for mifepristone tablets, 200 mg, along with the 2019 SSS REMS for mifepristone. The 2019 SSS REMS maintained the same goals, elements to assure safe use, and implementation system as the previous REMS, while adding separate Prescriber Agreement Forms for GBP and Danco. In particular, the 2019 SSS REMS maintained the same requirements regarding the decertification of prescribers and the monitoring and assessment of the REMS by sponsors. In May 2021, FDA approved minor edits to clarify language in the Patient Agreement Form.

In December 2021, FDA notified GBP and Danco that the agency had determined the REMS must be modified to minimize the burden on the health care delivery system and to ensure that the benefits of the drug outweigh the risk. Specifically, FDA informed GBP and Danco that the REMS must be modified to remove the in-person dispensing requirement and to require pharmacies dispensing mifepristone to be specially certified. FDA directed the sponsors to submit a proposed REMS modification. GBP and Danco developed changes to the SSS REMS to be proposed, and submitted a proposed REMS modification in June 2022. Throughout the remainder of 2022, the sponsors met with FDA to discuss the proposed REMS modification, including the pharmacy certification requirement and pharmacy distribution model, and submitted several REMS amendments in response to feedback from FDA. On January 3, 2023, FDA approved the SSS REMS modification, which contained the following changes:

- The goals of the REMS were modified to require that mifepristone "is only dispensed by or under the supervision of certified prescribers, or by certified pharmacies on prescriptions issued by certified prescribers."

- The elements to assure safe use were modified to require that pharmacies dispensing mifepristone be specially certified.

- The implementation system was modified to incorporate the pharmacy dispensing model, including by adding a requirement for sponsors to audit certified pharmacies on an annual basis.

- The timetable for REMS assessments was modified to require sponsors to submit REMS assessments every year, rather than every three years.

The January 2023 SSS REMS maintained the same requirements as the previous REMS regarding the decertification of prescribers. In March 2023, FDA approved minor edits to the Prescriber Agreement Forms, and in September 2025, FDA approved a REMS modification to add a second ANDA holder, Evita Solutions LLC.

Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg
Mifepristone Single Shared System REMS Program
Annual Assessment
Period October 1, 2024 – September 30, 2025

Joint REMS Assessment for Single Shared System REMS for Mifepristone

This mifepristone joint REMS assessment report, submitted pursuant to section 505-1 of the FDCA, is being submitted jointly by Danco Laboratories, LLC (Danco), the sponsor of Mifeprex, NDA 20-687, GenBioPro, Inc. (GenBioPro), the sponsor of mifepristone tablets, ANDA 091178, and Evita Solutions, LLC (Evita), the sponsor of mifepristone tablets, ANDA 216616.

Consistent with the approved Single Shared System REMS (SSS REMS) for mifepristone, each sponsor (Danco, GenBioPro, and Evita) separately will provide a sponsor specific REMS assessment containing the confidential information regarding the respective distribution of their product under the SSS REMS. The information in this joint document and the separate REMS assessment documents provided by the sponsors will constitute the full REMS assessment for the SSS REMS for mifepristone. Each sponsor will provide in their sponsor specific REMS assessment a summary and analysis of any program deviations and corrective actions taken.

The goal of the mifepristone REMS is to mitigate the risk of serious complications associated with mifepristone by:

1. Requiring healthcare providers who prescribe mifepristone to be certified in the Mifepristone REMS program.
2. Ensuring that mifepristone is only dispensed by or under the supervision of certified prescribers, or by certified pharmacies on prescriptions issued by certified prescribers.
3. Informing patients about the risk of serious complications associated with mifepristone

In accordance with the current approved Mifepristone REMS program (01/03/2023), the Sponsors (Danco, GenBioPro, and Evita) have assessed the REMS and evaluated whether the goal of the REMS has been met and whether the goal should be modified. Danco, GenBioPro, and Evita agree that the goal of the SSS REMS for mifepristone is being met. Mifepristone has been on the market for over 25 years and the product has been used safely. Pharmacies are well aware of the dispensing requirements and prescribers are well-versed in the safe use of the product. The sponsors propose no modifications to the REMS as the available data reflected in the sponsor specific assessment documents, as well as the long history of safe use of this product, do not warrant the imposition of modified or additional requirements.

In response to the Agency's Information Request, the Sponsors (Danco, GenBioPro, and Evita) submitted on November 19, 2025 a revised REMS Assessment Plan to align with the requirements of section 505-1(g)(3) by clarifying the metrics for reporting prescription delivery timelines for certified pharmacies.

Mifepristone REMS Program Assessment Requirements

In accordance with the Mifepristone REMS program (01/03/2023), each Sponsor is responsible for providing FDA a report of their respective assessment of REMS compliance data for each of their stakeholders (i.e., Certified Pharmacies, Certified Distributors, and Certified Prescribers). In addition, the Sponsors (Danco, GenBioPro, and Evita) will confer and provide a joint assessment report of the REMS effectiveness with respect to each goal included in the strategy, an assessment of the extent to which the approved strategy, including each element of the strategy, is meeting the goal or whether one or more such goals or such elements should be modified.

1. Sponsor Specific REMS Assessment

The following Sponsor specific Mifepristone REMS assessment has been prepared by GenBioPro (GBP) in accordance with the Mifepristone REMS program (01/03/2023) covering the period 10/01/2024 through 09/30/2025. The data provided in this assessment contains proprietary and confidential information specific to GenBioPro's distribution of mifepristone under the Mifepristone SSS REMS, including their Certified Pharmacies, Certified Distributors and Certified Prescribers.

A. Summary of REMS Audits

Audits of GBP's Distributors

GBP conducts audits of its authorized distributors, initially within 90 calendar days of authorization and annually thereafter, to assess compliance and take appropriate actions, as necessary, to ensure the obligations of the Mifepristone REMS Program are met. In accordance with GBP's Distributor Audit and Non-Compliance Plan, GBP conducted audits of its seven (7) distributors in 2025.

The audits of GBP's distributors covered all areas that pertain to mifepristone distribution including training documentation, standard operating procedures (SOPs), deviations, and error reports. REMS compliance was verified for all of GBP's distributors.

The audits concluded that all distributors were operating in full compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program requirements. No findings of non-compliance with the Mifepristone REMS were observed during the audits. All applicable requirements were met with thoroughly documented processes and procedures in place.

One GMP and one DSCSA documentation deficiency were found at a GBP distribution site, as detailed below.

The audit observations were not specifically related to the Mifepristone REMS program but are being reported as GMP observations.

Audits of GBP's Certified Pharmacies

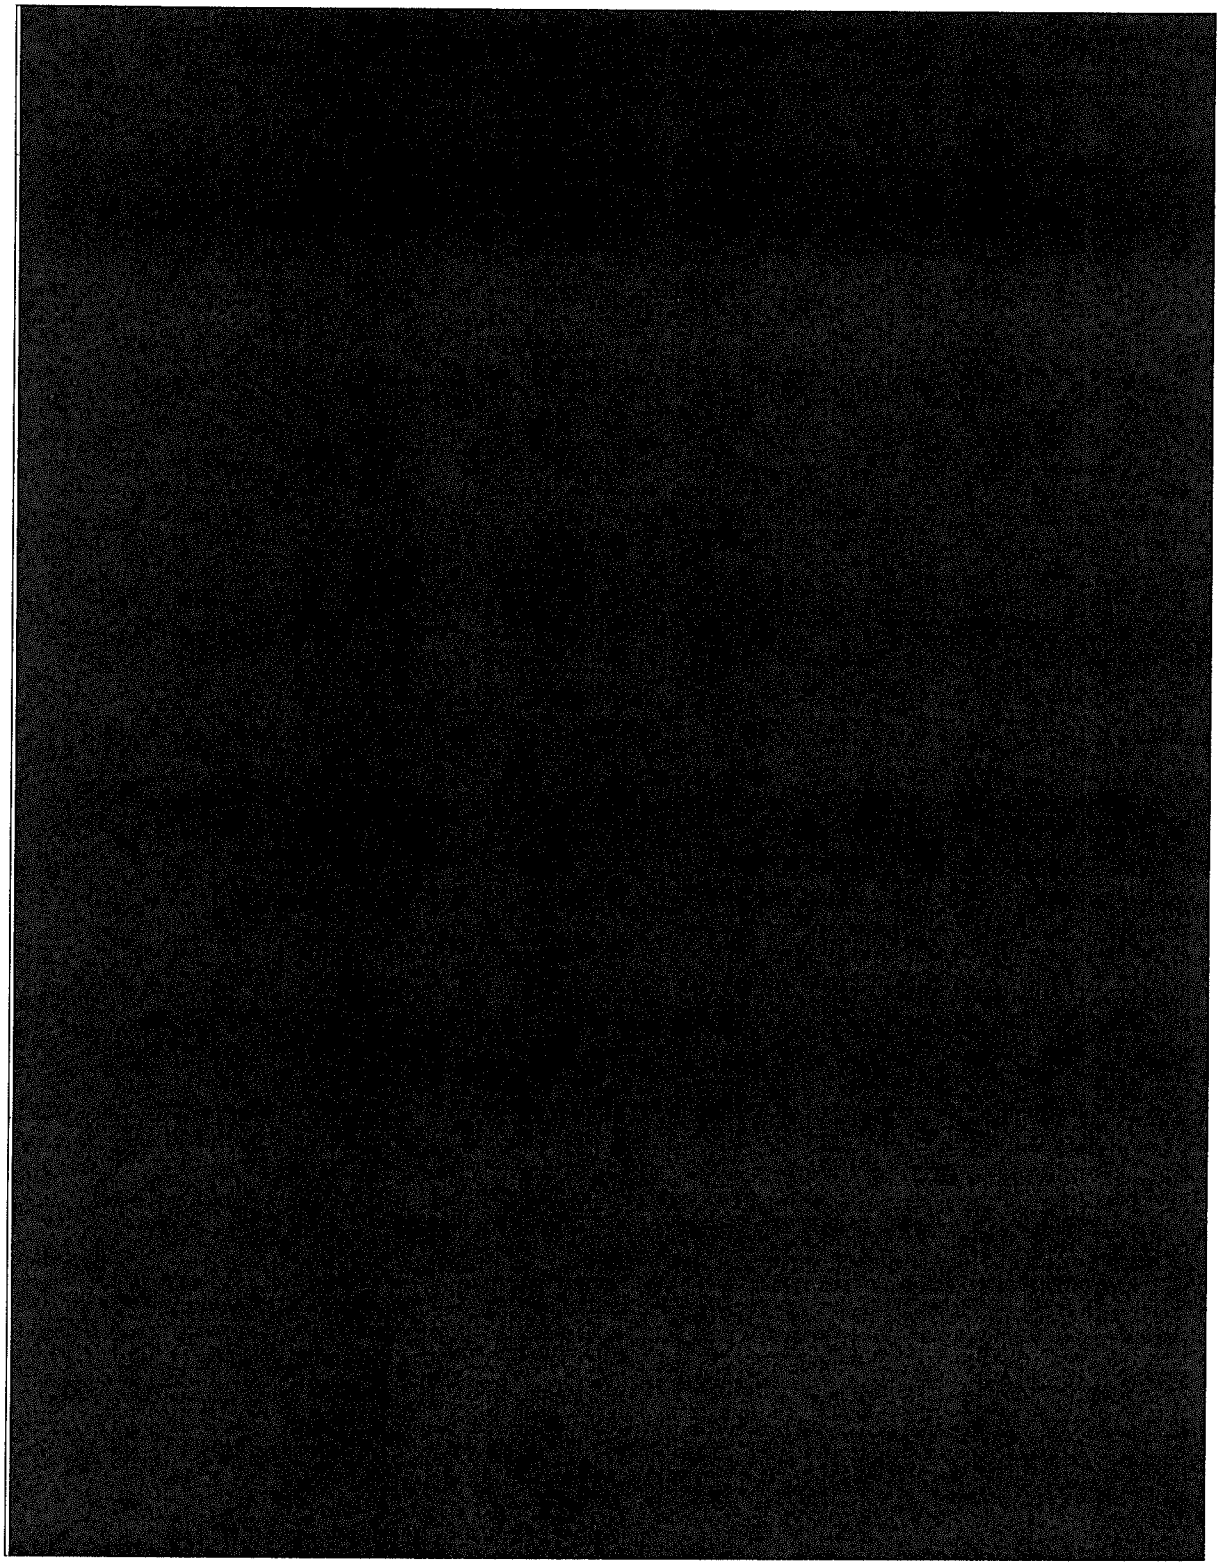

GBP conducts audits of its Certified Pharmacies within 180 days after the pharmacy places its first order of mifepristone and annually thereafter, if the pharmacy has placed an order in the last 12 months.

GBP conducted audits of its active Certified Pharmacies in accordance with the Mifepristone REMS Program Shared Certified Pharmacy Audit and Non-Compliance Plan.

One non-conformance event was identified at one certified pharmacy location [redacted] The pharmacy will more closely follow the pickup and shipment of mifepristone prescriptions to avoid the scenario from reoccurring.

Additionally, to assist with the assessment of pharmacy compliance with REMS requirements, a summary of all prescriptions that were delivered to patients after 4 calendar days with confirmation of the prescriber's decision confirming the appropriateness of dispensing mifepristone is provided in the table below.

GBP's audits of its active Certified Pharmacies were classified as passing.

To Whom It May Concern:

We write with deep concern regarding how Evita Solutions, LLC (Evita) intends to ensure compliance with the Mifepristone Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategy (REMS) Program, as well as with questions surrounding Evita's business practices and transparency prior to the launch of its recently approved generic mifepristone product.

Evita is one of three sponsors approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to market the chemical abortion drug, mifepristone, for use in a regimen with misoprostol to terminate a pregnancy through 10 weeks gestation.[2] Evita was approved to sell a generic version of mifepristone in 2025,[3] but it does not appear to have begun marketing and selling the drug as of the date of this letter.[4] Mifepristone appears to be Evita's only product.[5]

Notably, key aspects of Evita's corporate structure and leadership are obscure despite being the sponsor of an FDA-approved drug that will be marketed and sold to Americans. The company has a very minimal online presence and thus far, no principals or spokespeople for the company have been publicly named. While FDA's materials list a P.O. Box address in Roanoke, VA,[6] there is no record of Evita's corporate headquarters. Evita's Articles of Organization list a different address in Glen Allen, VA,[7] but that appears to be the address of its registered agent, CT Corporation System. Publicly available documents do not provide clarity on the company's leadership team or any employees at all. Further, there is no information on Evita's product label about where its mifepristone product is or will be manufactured other than that it is (or will be) made in India.[8] This level of secrecy is unusual given that most pharmaceutical companies are far more transparent, including disclosing where their drugs are manufactured, their leadership teams, and other basic information about their business.

Evita's chemical abortion drug, mifepristone, is subject to a shared system REMS program, along with the brand version Mifeprex and the other generic version, "to mitigate the risk of serious complications associated with mifepristone."[9] The Mifepristone REMS Program has undergone significant changes since it was initially established in 2011, including allowing the drug to be prescribed through 10 weeks gestation (up from seven weeks initially), removing the requirement that prescribers report non-fatal adverse events to the drug manufacturer, and perhaps most concerningly, removing the requirement that the drug be dispensed through an in-person visit with a provider.[10] While we have long urged FDA to reinstate these needed REMS requirements that were recklessly removed by Democrat administrations,[11] we are concerned that Evita will not meet its legal responsibilities to ensure compliance with even the few remaining REMS requirements.

Under the current Mifepristone REMS Program approved in September 2025, the drug may only be dispensed under the supervision of certified prescribers or by certified pharmacies, on prescriptions issued by certified prescribers, and patients must be informed about the risk of serious complications associated with the drug.[12] In order to become a certified prescriber, a health care provider must, among other requirements, be qualified to (1) assess the duration of pregnancy accurately, (2) diagnose ectopic pregnancies, (3) provide surgical intervention in cases of incomplete abortion or severe bleeding, or have plans to provide such care through others, and (4) assure patient access to medical facilities equipped to provide blood transfusions and resuscitation, if necessary.[13] Certified prescribers must also follow the guidelines for use of mifepristone. These guidelines include ensuring (1) the Patient Agreement Form is reviewed with and signed by the patient, (2) the risks of the mifepristone treatment regimen are fully explained to the patient, (3) the patient is provided with a copy of the Patient Agreement Form and Medication Guide, and (4) the signed Patient Agreement Form is placed in the patient's medical record.[14]

Evita, for its part, must ensure that all prescribers of mifepristone are specially certified in accordance with these requirements and must de-certify prescribers who do not maintain compliance with certification requirements.[15] Evita must also monitor its distribution data to ensure compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program, ensure that adequate records are maintained to demonstrate that the REMS requirements have been met, and annually audit new pharmacies and distributors annually.[16] Finally, Evita must report to FDA any deaths associated with mifepristone, whether or not considered drug-related, within 15 days of receiving the information.[17]

We are concerned that Evita will not be able to ensure the REMS requirements are met, especially as it pertains to the online prescribing of mifepristone. Furthermore, because many online clinics allow individuals, including men, to order the drugs anonymously, it is unclear how prescribers can ensure that the Patient Agreement Form is reviewed with the patient, signed by the patient, and placed in the patient's medical record. It is also unclear how an online prescriber could adequately explain the risks of the mifepristone treatment regimen to the patient in accordance with the existing REMS. In terms of patient safety, many online sellers of mifepristone appear to automatically prescribe the drug after an individual merely fills out a cursory intake form, raising questions about whether prescribers could accurately assess gestational age or be able to diagnose an ectopic pregnancy—failures that could lead to serious adverse events for the patient.[18] Additionally, it is unclear how online prescribers can satisfy the REMS requirement to provide surgical intervention themselves, or arrange such care through others, if the individual ordering the drug is anonymous and may be located many states away from the prescriber. Finally, patient anonymity and the lack of an adequate doctor-patient relationship raise concerns about whether patient deaths associated with mifepristone obtained through online prescribers could be reported to Evita, which would again be in violation of the REMS requirements. Notably, many online prescribers advise patients that they do not have to tell a doctor that they took the chemical abortion drugs if they later must seek care for serious adverse events.[19]

There is substantial evidence that women are being harmed not only by serious adverse events associated with chemical abortion drugs,[20] but also by coercion and other risks resulting from inadequate implementation of REMS safeguards intended to protect patients.[21] It is also clear that the removal of the requirement to report non-fatal adverse events has significantly downplayed the danger mifepristone poses to women. Further, the removal of the in-person dispensing requirement has allowed the drug to be widely prescribed with few guardrails to ensure it is being taken safely, without coercion, and with prompt care available for serious complications. While Evita was just created in 2024[22] and its mifepristone product is not yet being sold, statements on Evita's website create doubts about whether the company will seriously enforce compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program. For example, Evita's website states that "[m]edical abortion care is rife with medically unnecessary restrictions and social stigma in the United States."[23] It also says that its mission is to "destigmatize abortion care" and "commit to making care accessible."[24] It goes without saying that killing unborn children is not health care, but statements like this show that Evita may not fulfill its legal obligations to ensure that the few remaining REMS safeguards are complied with to protect women from serious harm from chemical abortion drugs.

With chemical abortions provided by online clinics now estimated to account for 27 percent of all abortions in the U.S. (about 160,000 abortions in the first half of 2025),[25] Evita must commit to immediately implementing the Mifepristone REMS Program requirements and de-certifying prescribers who do not comply once it begins to sell mifepristone. If it refuses to do so, Evita will be putting its profits above the health and safety of women and children.

Given these serious concerns regarding Evita's ability to comply with its legal obligations under the Mifepristone REMS Program, we request that you answer the following questions, on a question-by-question basis, no later than April 8, 2026. We request that all documents, data, and any other responsive materials be unredacted, produced in electronic form, and Bates stamped.

1. When will Evita begin marketing its generic mifepristone product?
2. Where does Evita currently manufacture mifepristone (or where will it in the future)? Please provide the name and address of each facility where mifepristone is currently manufactured or will be in the future.
3. Please produce records documenting all FDA inspections of your manufacturing facilities, including any pre-approval inspections, and FDA's respective final classifications of such inspections.
4. Where does Evita currently or plan to import the active pharmaceutical ingredient (API) for mifepristone? Please provide the name and address of each facility where the API for mifepristone is currently or planned to be imported from.

18. As you are aware, FDA approved Evita's Abbreviated New Drug Application (ANDA) for mifepristone four years after its filing, well-beyond the 180-day statutory deadline for action on an ANDA. Please produce any written communication between FDA and Evita regarding this delay, including any agreements reached to delay the eventual approval of your product.
19. Virginia state records indicate that Evita was formed as a limited liability company in that state on June 26, 2024. However, in FDA's letter to Evita approving the ANDA for mifepristone, it stated that Evita's application was received on October 1, 2021. Was Evita previously operating as a different company or under a different name at the time it submitted the ANDA for mifepristone?

a. If yes, please produce business records showing the entity name, entity type, dates that it was active, names of entity leadership, entity addresses, and state of registration that account for the period between October 1, 2021, and June 26, 2024. Please also describe why Evita registered as a new entity in Virginia years after submitting its ANDA for mifepristone. Please also explain whether any former entity or entities are still active.
b. If no, please explain how Evita could have submitted the ANDA for mifepristone over two years before it was a registered company.

Re: Response to March 25, 2026, Letter to Evita Solutions

Dear Chairman Cassidy:

I write on behalf of Evita Solutions, LLC ("Evita" or "the Company") in response to your letter dated March 25, 2026. Evita has engaged O'Melveny & Myers LLP to represent the Company in connection with the inquiry described in your letter and our client has asked us to respond on its behalf. Please direct all future correspondence and communications regarding this matter to my attention.

Background on Evita

Evita appreciates the opportunity to provide information regarding the Company's operations. Evita is a small, private, Virginia-headquartered company. Evita was formed in 2024 to address gaps in access to reproductive healthcare. In September 2025, the Company received approval from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration ("FDA") for its abbreviated New Drug Application ("ANDA") for generic mifepristone. Generic mifepristone is Evita's only approved product.

Evita has not yet launched its FDA-approved mifepristone product: no product has been distributed or shipped. The Company is working diligently to prepare for launch, which is anticipated this year. Those preparations include, as your letter notes, standing up a comprehensive Mifepristone Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategy ("Mifepristone REMS") Program. As described further below, Evita is committed to robust implementation of the Mifepristone REMS Program.

September 2025 ANDA Approval

The mifepristone ANDA is Evita's first and only approved ANDA. Evita acquired the ANDA from another company after the product had been in development for several years. FDA approved Evita's ANDA for generic mifepristone on September 30, 2025.

As is common for ANDAs, it took several years to achieve approval. This timeframe is standard for generic drug approvals, which take approximately three years on average from the time the original application was accepted for filing to approval.[1] The timing for review and approval of Evita's ANDA was the result of common issues for ANDAs, requiring submission of supplemental information and typical amendments to the application.

Manufacturing and Distribution

In response to your questions regarding distribution and sales, Evita is not currently commercializing mifepristone, and no Evita mifepristone product has been delivered to any distributor, pharmacy, or patient at this time.

Once Evita launches its mifepristone product, the Company plans to import finished drug products—not active pharmaceutical ingredients ("API")—from a contract manufacturing organization ("CMO") in India. The CMO facility has passed multiple FDA inspections, with respect to both Evita's mifepristone ANDA and other products produced at the same facility.

The Mifepristone REMS

Prescriber Certification

As noted above, Evita has not begun selling its mifepristone product, and it has not yet certified any prescribers. Evita is, however, complying with and intends to continue complying with all requirements of FDA's Mifepristone REMS Program with respect to prescriber certification. Evita has built its own REMS administration function; it has not engaged any third-party vendors to administer the Mifepristone REMS Program.

FDA's Mifepristone REMS Program requires healthcare providers who prescribe mifepristone to be specially certified, i.e., "Certified Prescribers." With respect to prescriber certification, FDA's Mifepristone REMS requires that mifepristone sponsors:

- Ensure that healthcare providers who prescribe their mifepristone are specially certified in accordance with the requirements of the Mifepristone REMS and de-certify healthcare providers who do not maintain compliance with certification requirements;
- Ensure that healthcare providers can complete the certification process by email or fax to an authorized distributor and/or certified pharmacy;
- Provide the Prescribing Information and their Prescriber Agreement Form to healthcare providers who inquire about how to become certified; and
- Ensure annually that each certified prescriber's locations for receiving mifepristone are up to date.

[1] See U.S. Food & Drug Admin., Generic Drugs Program Monthly and Quarterly Activities Report, https://www.fda.gov/industry/generic-drug-user-fee-amendments/generic-drugs-program-monthly-and-quarterly-activities-report (last updated Mar. 23, 2026) (Approval times by Quarter).

Prescriber certification in accordance with the Mifepristone REMS Program requires the healthcare provider to review the Prescribing Information for mifepristone and complete a Prescriber Agreement Form. FDA has reviewed and approved Evita's Prescriber Agreement Form.[2] By signing a Prescriber Agreement Form, prescribers agree, among other things, that they have the following qualifications:

- Ability to assess the duration of pregnancy accurately;
- Ability to diagnose ectopic pregnancies; and
- Ability to provide surgical intervention in cases of incomplete abortion or severe bleeding or to make plans to provide such care through others, and ability to assure patient access to medical facilities equipped to provide blood transfusions and resuscitation, if necessary.

Additionally, as a condition of certification, prescribers must follow the guidelines for use as provided in the Prescriber Agreement Form and ensure that any healthcare provider under their supervision follows the guidelines for use. Among the guidelines for mifepristone use, prescribers must:

- Review the Patient Agreement Form with the patient, ensure that the risks of the mifepristone treatment regimen are fully explained, and answer any questions the patient has prior to receiving mifepristone;
- Ensure the healthcare provider and patient sign the Patient Agreement Form;
- Ensure that the patient is provided with a copy of the Patient Agreement Form and Medication Guide; and
- Ensure that the signed Patient Agreement Form is placed in the patient's medical record.

As a further condition, prescribers also must report any deaths of patients who received mifepristone to Evita (which in turn is required to report to FDA any death associated with mifepristone whether or not considered drug-related, in addition to other required post-marketing reporting under FDA regulations).[3]

Once Evita launches its mifepristone product, it will be distributed only to Certified Prescribers and Certified Pharmacies. As relevant to Certified Prescribers, Evita shall confirm annually that relevant Certified Prescribers' information remains up to date. Evita's Mifepristone REMS Program implementation includes procedures providing for monitoring and assessing data with respect to Certified Prescribers and initiating remediation actions, including de-certification, as needed to address noncompliance.

Pharmacy Certification

As noted above, Evita has not sold or provided any product to any pharmacies. Evita is, however, complying with and intends to continue complying with all requirements of FDA's Mifepristone

[2] Evita Solutions LLC, Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg: Prescriber Agreement Form (Sept. 2025), https://www.accessdata.fda.gov/drugsatfda_docs/rems/Mifepristone_2025_09_30_Prescriber_Agreement_Form_for_Evita_Solutions_LLC.pdf.

REMS Program with respect to pharmacy certification. The Mifepristone REMS Program requires that a pharmacy be certified prior to dispensing, i.e., become a "Certified Pharmacy." To date, Evita has certified two pharmacies, following the certification process established in the Mifepristone REMS Program. In particular, with respect to pharmacy certification, FDA's Mifepristone REMS Program requires that mifepristone sponsors:

- Ensure that pharmacies are specially certified in accordance with the REMS Program requirements described below and de-certify pharmacies that do not maintain compliance with certification requirements;
- Ensure that pharmacies can complete the certification process by email and fax to an authorized distributor; and
- Verify annually that the name and contact information for the pharmacy's authorized representative corresponds to that of the current designated authorized representative for the Certified Pharmacy, and if different, require the pharmacy to recertify with the new authorized representative.

Certification in accordance with the Mifepristone REMS Program requires the pharmacy to review the Prescribing Information for mifepristone and complete a Pharmacy Agreement Form. The pharmacy must also:

- Be able to receive Prescriber Agreement Forms by email and fax;
- Be able to ship mifepristone using a shipping service that provides tracking information;
- Designate an authorized representative to carry out the certification process on behalf of the pharmacy; and
- Ensure the authorized representative oversees implementation and compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program, including by putting into place processes and procedures regarding, among other things:

    - Verifying that the prescriber is certified by confirming their completed Prescriber Agreement Form was received with the prescription or is on file with the pharmacy;
    - Dispensing mifepristone such that it is delivered to the patient within 4 calendar days of the date the pharmacy receives the prescription, except as otherwise provided;
    - Reporting any patient death to the prescriber, providing the National Drug Code ("NDC") and lot number from the package of mifepristone dispensed to the patient and reminding the prescriber of their obligation to report the death to Evita;
    - Notifying Evita that their pharmacy submitted a report of death to the prescriber, including the name and contact information for the prescriber and the NDC and lot number of the dispensed product; and
    - Training all relevant staff on the Mifepristone REMS Program requirements.

Once Evita launches its mifepristone product, it will be distributed only to Certified Prescribers and Certified Pharmacies. As relevant to Certified Pharmacies, Evita will confirm annually that relevant pharmacy and authorized representative information remains up to date. In addition, Evita's Mifepristone REMS Program implementation provides for auditing certified pharmacies, including with respect to patient death notification and reporting processes. As a result of these audits, Evita may initiate remediation actions, including de-certification, as needed to address noncompliance.

Adverse Event Reporting

As with all holders of approved drug applications, Evita is required to assess and report relevant adverse events to FDA.[4] The Mifepristone REMS Program also requires mifepristone sponsors to report to FDA any deaths associated with mifepristone within 15 calendar days of the initial receipt of the information. Evita takes this obligation seriously and has implemented robust processes to facilitate compliance.

Ensuring that all deaths associated with mifepristone are reported to Evita is also accomplished through the Mifepristone REMS Program's requirements for Certified Prescribers and Certified Pharmacies. As stated in the previous section, Certified Pharmacies are required to report any patient deaths to the prescriber and notify Evita that they submitted a report of death to the prescriber. Certified Prescribers are also required to ensure that any deaths are reported to Evita.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. We appreciate the opportunity to address your questions on behalf of Evita.

Sincerely,

Subject: RE: March 25, 2026 Letter to Evita Solutions
Date: Wednesday, April 29, 2026 5:00:00 PM

While we appreciate Evita's initial response by the requested deadline, we find the substance of the response to be insufficient. Evita provided few details in response to the questions asked and explicitly or implicitly ignored parts of many questions. To that end, please see a list of follow-up questions and requests for Evita below. We again reiterate our expectation that Evita complies with these requests and answers the questions in a complete manner. We request answers to the below by Monday, May 11th at 5pm. Given that the questions and requests are substantively the same as the original letter, we expect the responses in a timely manner.

1. Evita noted that it acquired the ANDA from another company after the product had been in development for several years (see response letter at 1). What was the name of the company Evita acquired the ANDA from and what was the date of acquisition?
2. Understanding that the finished drug product will be imported from a CMO in India (see response letter at 2), please explain whether the API will be manufactured in a different country (if so, what country our countries) and then exported to the CMO in India for finished product manufacturing, or whether the same manufacturer in India will manufacture the API and also do the finished product manufacturing.
3. Evita stated that it has certified two pharmacies to date (see response letter at 2). Please provide the states that these pharmacies are in and indicate whether either pharmacy provides a mail-order option. To be clear, no identifying information is requested.
4. Has Evita certified any distributors to distribute mifepristone into the U.S., and if so, how many (see Cassidy et al. letter to Evita, question 5)?
5. Please confirm that Evita will itself be solely responsible for ensuring prescriber, pharmacy, and distributor compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program, given it has not engaged any third-party vendors to administer the Mifepristone REMS Program (see response letter at 2).
6. In response to questions 9 through 16, Evita reproduced and summarized the publicly available Mifepristone REMS Program requirements (see response letter at 2–5). We again request documents and a narrative explanation from Evita about how the company will ensure compliance with each of the REMS requirements listed in questions 9 through 16. Each explanation should include the specific process by which Evita will monitor prescribers, ensure the attestations made in the Prescriber Agreement Form are correct, ensure ongoing compliance with these requirements, handle instances of noncompliance, and engage with individual prescribers to ensure the requirements are met. Further, each explanation should include, with specificity, how compliance will be ensured for online-based prescribers who have no in-person interaction with the patient and often prescribe the drug completely anonymously.

Thanks,

Re: Response to March 25, 2026, Letter to Evita Solutions

Dear Chairman Cassidy:

I write on behalf of Evita Solutions, LLC ("Evita") in further response to your March 25, 2026, letter and Committee staff's April 29, 2026, email requesting additional information.

On April 17, 2026, Evita responded to your March 25 letter. We appreciate the opportunity to respond to the follow-up questions raised in Committee staff's April 29 email.

The April 29 email requests additional information regarding the acquisition and prior development of Evita's abbreviated New Drug Application ("ANDA"), the identity and location of manufacturing entities and other supply-chain participants, and the location and characteristics of certified pharmacies. These requests implicate confidential commercial and trade secret information, and/or personal safety concerns. In particular, manufacturing information—such as the identity and location of manufacturing entities and supply-chain arrangements—is commercially sensitive trade secret information that is protected from public disclosure. In addition, to the extent that Evita is in possession of information concerning the acquisition and prior development of Evita's ANDA, disclosure of that information could pose risks to the lives or physical safety of individuals, risks that the U.S. Food and Drug Administration ("FDA") has recognized as justifying withholding information that may otherwise be made public.[1] Likewise, additional information with respect to certified pharmacies would be identifying information and would raise these same serious concerns.

As noted in our April 17 letter, Evita has not yet launched its FDA-approved mifepristone product. Accordingly, some of the details requested in Committee staff's April 29 email are not yet applicable. Committee staff inquired whether Evita has certified any distributors. It has not because the Mifepristone Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategy ("Mifepristone REMS") Program does not require distributors to be specially certified. Once the product is commercialized, Evita will ensure, as required by the Mifepristone REMS, that its distributor(s) comply with the program requirements for distributors.

Committee staff also requested additional information regarding how Evita will ensure compliance with the Mifepristone REMS requirements. As explained in the April 17 response, Evita takes REMS compliance very seriously and has developed robust processes to support adherence to the Program's requirements. These processes include auditing of certified pharmacies, as well as data collection and reporting to FDA with respect to distributors, certified pharmacies, and certified providers. They also include mechanisms to identify and address potential noncompliance. Where appropriate, Evita's remediation processes may include corrective actions up to and including de-certification. Evita's efforts reflect its commitment to implementing and maintaining compliance with the Mifepristone REMS Program in advance of commercialization. Evita has not engaged any third-party vendor to administer the Mifepristone REMS Program to date.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. We appreciate the opportunity to address questions on behalf of Evita.

Sincerely,

Please see a list of further follow up questions and requests for Evita below. We request a complete response to these questions and requests by Thursday, May 21 at 5pm. [redacted] The references to questions and responses in parentheses below refer to the April 29, 2026, email and Evita's second response letter on May 11, 2026. Thank you.

1. We reiterate our request for the name of the company Evita acquired the ANDA from and the date of the acquisition (see question 1). Evita states that providing such information could result in safety risks and refers to FDA's position that the agency may redact the names of government employees and certain private citizens from FDA records produced pursuant to the FOIA statute (see response letter at 1 and the linked FDA webpage in fn. 1). Besides for the fact that FDA's position refers to information requests under FOIA, of which this immediate inquiry to Evita is not, FDA's position is clear that the exemption applies to individuals' names in this context, not the name of a company. Further, the relevant section of the FOIA statute to which Evita and FDA refer states that the exemption from release of records or information that "could reasonably be expected to endanger the life or physical safety of any individual" applies only to "records or information compiled for law enforcement purposes" 5 U.S.C. § 552(b)(7) (emphasis added). Clearly, none of the requested information was compiled for law enforcement purposes. See also Exemption 7, Dep't of Justice Guide to the Freedom of Information Act, https://www.justice.gov/oip/foia-guide/exemption_7/dl (last visited May 14, 2026).
2. We reiterate our request for Evita to provide the states where the two certified pharmacies are located and whether either provides a mail-order option (see question 3). We do not agree providing the state where each certified pharmacy is located, along with stating whether either provides a mail-order option, without any other identifying information could give rise to security concerns (see response letter at 1).
3. We reiterate our request for Evita to disclose the number of distributors it has contracted with to distribute mifepristone in the U.S., if any (see question 4). For the avoidance of doubt, we understand that the Mifepristone REMS Program does not require distributors to be specially certified (see response letter at 1) but are requesting the number of distributors Evita has contracted with.

4. Will Evita audit individual certified prescribers of mifepristone, independently confirm prescriber attestations, and/or oversee prescribing decisions made by certified prescribers to ensure compliance with REMS requirements (see question 6)? If yes, please explain how this monitoring will be conducted. If no, how will Evita identify and address prescriber noncompliance with REMS requirements?

Thank you.

Previously, Evita's website stated that a new mifepristone generic was "coming soon," but within the last couple of weeks, the website has completely changed and now looks to be actively marketing the product. For example, on the "pharmacies" page, there is a header saying "Start dispensing mifepristone today." And below that, it says "Evita Solutions' generic Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg is now available for certified pharmacies to stock and dispense upon receipt of a prescription from a certified prescriber." On the "providers" page, it says "Start prescribing Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg today." That led us to believe the product has been launched for sale in the U.S., but please tell us if this is not the case.

It has come to our attention that Evita has launched its FDA approved mifepristone product for sale in the U.S. In addition to the questions in our May 14, 2026, email, we request that Evita answer the following by the same deadline of Thursday, May 21 at 5pm:

1. What date did Evita launch its generic mifepristone product for sale in the U.S.?
2. How many individuals are currently certified to prescribe Mifeprex in the Mifepristone REMS Program? Please produce an Excel spreadsheet showing how many prescribers are certified in each state.
3. In addition to providing the states where the two certified pharmacies are located and whether either provides a mail-order option (see question 2 in the May 14, 2026, email), please provide this same information for any additional pharmacies certified by Evita beyond the two mentioned in Evita's April 17, 2026, response letter, if any.

Re: Response to March 25, 2026, Letter to Evita Solutions

Dear Chairman Cassidy:

I write on behalf of Evita Solutions, LLC ("Evita") in further response to your March 25, 2026, letter and Committee staff's May 14 and May 19, 2026, emails. Evita previously provided information in its April 17 and May 11 letters and has endeavored to address your inquiries substantively and in good faith. We appreciate the opportunity to respond to the Committee staff's additional follow-up questions.

As explained in Evita's April 17 and May 11 letters, several of the Committee's requests implicate important safety, privacy, and confidentiality concerns. In particular, information concerning the acquisition and prior development of Evita's abbreviated New Drug Application ("ANDA") is non-public, commercially sensitive, and implicates significant safety and privacy concerns. As noted in Evita's May 11 letter, FDA has recognized that disclosure of certain information relating to mifepristone applications can present serious safety risks. While that recognition was in the context of Freedom of Information Act requests, those same considerations inform Evita's response here.

In addition, disclosure of the identity of a prior ANDA developer is unrelated to Evita's approved ANDA or to Evita's compliance with the Mifepristone Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategy ("Mifepristone REMS") Program. As the current ANDA holder, Evita takes seriously its responsibilities for implementing and maintaining compliance with the Mifepristone REMS and has put in place processes that support such compliance. As described in our prior letters, those processes include procedures governing certified pharmacies, certified prescribers, distributors, data collection and reporting, and remediation of potential noncompliance.

The Committee staff's May 14 email reiterated the Committee's request that Evita identify the states in which it has certified two pharmacies. Although Evita continues to have significant safety concerns regarding disclosure of information concerning certified pharmacies, as a further accommodation to the Committee, Evita confirms that it has certified two pharmacies to date: one located in South Carolina and one located in Montana.

With respect to the Committee staff's question regarding the number of distributors contracted to distribute mifepristone, Evita has contracted with one distributor at this time.

In addition, as previously communicated, Evita has not yet launched its FDA-approved mifepristone product, and therefore certain requested information remains premature. For example, with respect to the Committee staff's question regarding auditing or monitoring of certified prescribers, Evita has explained that it has not yet shipped any product commercially and has not yet certified any prescribers.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. We appreciate the opportunity to address your questions on behalf of Evita. Evita remains committed to maintaining an open and productive dialogue with the Committee as it continues to implement its Mifepristone REMS Program in advance of product launch.

Sincerely,

[redacted]

FULL PRESCRIBING INFORMATION

WARNING: SERIOUS AND SOMETIMES FATAL INFECTIONS OR BLEEDING

Serious and sometimes fatal infections and bleeding occur very rarely following spontaneous, surgical, and medical abortions, including following MIFEPREX use. No causal relationship between the use of MIFEPREX and misoprostol and these events has been established.

- Atypical Presentation of Infection. Patients with serious bacterial infections (e.g.,Clostridium sordellii) and sepsis can present without fever, bacteremia, or significant findings on pelvic examination following an abortion. Very rarely, deaths have been reported in patients who presented without fever, with or without abdominal pain, but with leukocytosis with a marked left shift, tachycardia, hemoconcentration, and general malaise. A high index of suspicion is needed to rule out serious infection and sepsis*[see Warnings and Precautions (5.1)]* .
- Bleeding. Prolonged heavy bleeding may be a sign of incomplete abortion or other complications and prompt medical or surgical intervention may be needed. Advise patients to seek immediate medical attention if they experience prolonged heavy vaginal bleeding*[see Warnings and Precautions (5.2)]* .

Because of the risks of serious complications described above, MIFEPREX is available only through a restricted program under a Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategy (REMS) called the Mifepristone REMS Program*[see Warnings and Precautions (5.3)]* .

Before prescribing MIFEPREX, inform the patient about the risk of these serious events. Ensure that the patient knows whom to call and what to do, including going to an Emergency Room if none of the provided contacts are reachable, if they experience sustained fever, severe abdominal pain, prolonged heavy bleeding, or syncope, or if they experience abdominal pain or discomfort, or general malaise (including weakness, nausea, vomiting, or diarrhea) for more than 24 hours after taking misoprostol.

1 INDICATIONS AND USAGE

2 DOSAGE AND ADMINISTRATION

2.1 Dosing Regimen

For purposes of this treatment, pregnancy is dated from the first day of the last menstrual period. The duration of pregnancy may be determined from menstrual history and clinical examination. Assess the pregnancy by ultrasonographic scan if the duration of pregnancy is uncertain or if ectopic pregnancy is suspected.

Remove any intrauterine device (“IUD”) before treatment with MIFEPREX begins [see

Contraindications (4)].

The dosing regimen for MIFEPREX and misoprostol is:

- MIFEPREX 200 mg orally + misoprostol 800 mcg buccally
  - *Day One:*MIFEPREX Administration
    One 200 mg tablet of MIFEPREX is taken in a single oral dose.
  - *Day Two or Three:*Misoprostol Administration (minimum24-hour interval between MIFEPREX and misoprostol)
    Four 200 mcg tablets (total dose 800 mcg) of misoprostol are taken by the buccal route.

    Tell the patient to place two 200 mcg misoprostol tablets in each cheek pouch (the area between the cheek and gums) for 30 minutes and then swallow any remnants with water or another liquid (see Figure 1).

Patients taking MIFEPREX must take misoprostol within 24 to 48 hours after taking MIFEPREX. The effectiveness of the regimen may be lower if misoprostol is administered less than 24 hours or more than 48 hours after mifepristone administration.

Because most women will expel the pregnancy within 2 to 24 hours of taking misoprostol [see Clinical Studies (14)] , discuss with the patient an appropriate location for them to be when taking the misoprostol, taking into account that expulsion could begin within 2 hours of administration.

2.2 Patient Management Following Misoprostol Administration

During the period immediately following the administration of misoprostol, the patient may need medication for cramps or gastrointestinal symptoms [see Adverse Reactions (6)].

Give the patient:

- Instructions on what to do if significant discomfort, excessive vaginal bleeding or other adverse reactions occur
- A phone number to call if the patient has questions following the administration of the misoprostol
- The name and phone number of the healthcare provider who will be handling emergencies.

2.3 Post-treatment Assessment: Day 7 to 14

Patients should follow-up with their healthcare provider approximately 7 to 14 days after the administration of MIFEPREX. This assessment is very important to confirm that complete termination of pregnancy has occurred and to evaluate the degree of bleeding. Termination can be confirmed by medical history, clinical examination, human Chorionic Gonadotropin (hCG) testing, or ultrasonographic scan. Lack of bleeding following treatment usually indicates failure; however, prolonged or heavy bleeding is not proof of a complete abortion.

The existence of debris in the uterus (e.g., if seen on ultrasonography) following the treatment procedure will not necessarily require surgery for its removal.

Patients should expect to experience vaginal bleeding or spotting for an average of 9 to 16 days. Women report experiencing heavy bleeding for a median duration of 2 days. Up to 8% of women may experience some type of bleeding for more than 30 days. Persistence of heavy or moderate vaginal bleeding at the time of follow-up, however, could indicate an incomplete abortion.

If complete expulsion has not occurred, but the pregnancy is not ongoing, patients may be treated with another dose of misoprostol 800 mcg buccally. There have been rare reports of uterine rupture in women who took MIFEPREX and misoprostol, including women with prior uterine rupture or uterine scar and women who received multiple doses of misoprostol within 24 hours. Patients who choose to use a repeat dose of misoprostol should have a follow-up visit with their healthcare provider in approximately 7 days to assess for complete termination.

Surgical evacuation is recommended to manage ongoing pregnancies after medical abortion [see Use in Specific Populations (8.1)] . Advise the patient whether you will provide such care or will refer them to another provider as part of counseling prior to prescribing MIFEPREX.

2.4 Contact for Consultation

For consultation 24 hours a day, 7 days a week with an expert in mifepristone, call Danco Laboratories at 1-877-4 Early Option (1-877-432-7596).

3 DOSAGE FORMS AND STRENGTHS

Tablets containing 200 mg of mifepristone each, supplied as 1 tablet on one blister card. MIFEPREX tablets are light yellow, cylindrical, and bi-convex tablets, approximately 11 mm in diameter and imprinted on one side with “MF.”

4 CONTRAINDICATIONS

- Administration of MIFEPREX and misoprostol for the termination of pregnancy (the “treatment procedure”) is contraindicated in patients with any of the following conditions:
  - Confirmed or suspected ectopic pregnancy or undiagnosed adnexal mass (the treatment procedure will not be effective to terminate an ectopic pregnancy) [see Warnings and Precautions (5.4)]
  - Chronic adrenal failure (risk of acute adrenal insufficiency)
  - Concurrent long-term corticosteroid therapy (risk of acute adrenal insufficiency)
  - History of allergy to mifepristone, misoprostol, or other prostaglandins (allergic reactions including anaphylaxis, angioedema, rash, hives, and itching have been reported [see Adverse Reactions (6.2)])
  - Hemorrhagic disorders or concurrent anticoagulant therapy (risk of heavy bleeding)
  - Inherited porphyrias (risk of worsening or of precipitation of attacks)

- Use of MIFEPREX and misoprostol for termination of intrauterine pregnancy is contraindicated in patients with an intrauterine device (“IUD”) in place (the IUD might interfere with pregnancy termination). If the IUD is removed, MIFEPREX may be used.

5 WARNINGS AND PRECAUTIONS

5.1 Infection and Sepsis

As with other types of abortion, cases of serious bacterial infection, including very rare cases of fatal septic shock, have been reported following the use of MIFEPREX [see Boxed Warning] . Healthcare providers evaluating a patient who is undergoing a medical abortion should be alert to the possibility of this rare event. A sustained (> 4 hours) fever of 100.4°F or higher, severe abdominal pain, or pelvic tenderness in the days after a medical abortion may be an indication of infection.

A high index of suspicion is needed to rule out sepsis (e.g., from Clostridium sordellii) if a patient reports abdominal pain or discomfort or general malaise (including weakness, nausea, vomiting, or diarrhea) more than 24 hours after taking misoprostol. Very rarely, deaths have been reported in patients who presented without fever, with or without abdominal pain, but with leukocytosis with a marked left shift, tachycardia, hemoconcentration, and general malaise. No causal relationship between MIFEPREX and misoprostol use and an increased risk of infection or death has been established. *Clostridium sordellii*infections have also been reported very rarely following childbirth (vaginal delivery and caesarian section), and in other gynecologic and non-gynecologic conditions.

5.2 Uterine Bleeding

Uterine bleeding occurs in almost all patients during a medical abortion. Prolonged heavy bleeding (soaking through two thick full-size sanitary pads per hour for two consecutive hours) may be a sign of incomplete abortion or other complications, and prompt medical or surgical intervention may be needed to prevent the development of hypovolemic shock. Counsel patients to seek immediate medical attention if they experience prolonged heavy vaginal bleeding following a medical abortion [see Boxed Warning] .

Women should expect to experience vaginal bleeding or spotting for an average of 9 to 16 days. Women report experiencing heavy bleeding for a median duration of 2 days. Up to 8% of all subjects may experience some type of bleeding for 30 days or more. In general, the duration of bleeding and spotting increased as the duration of the pregnancy increased.

Decreases in hemoglobin concentration, hematocrit, and red blood cell count may occur in patients who bleed heavily.

Excessive uterine bleeding usually requires treatment by uterotonics, vasoconstrictor drugs, surgical uterine evacuation, administration of saline infusions, and/or blood transfusions. Based on data from several large clinical trials, vasoconstrictor drugs were used in 4.3% of all subjects, there was a decrease in hemoglobin of more than 2 g/dL in 5.5% of subjects, and blood transfusions were administered to ≤ 0.1% of subjects. Because heavy bleeding requiring surgical uterine evacuation occurs in about 1% of patients, special care should be given to patients with hemostatic disorders, hypocoagulability, or severe anemia.

5.3 Mifepristone REMS Program

MIFEPREX is available only through a restricted program under a REMS called the Mifepristone REMS Program, because of the risks of serious complications [see

Warnings and Precautions (5.1, 5.2)] .

Notable requirements of the Mifepristone REMS Program include the following:

- Prescribers must be certified with the program by completing the Prescriber Agreement Form.
- Patients must sign a Patient Agreement Form.
- MIFEPREX must only be dispensed to patients by or under the supervision of a certified prescriber, or by certified pharmacies on prescriptions issued by certified prescribers.

Further information is available at 1-877-4 Early Option (1-877-432-7596).

5.4 Ectopic Pregnancy

MIFEPREX is contraindicated in patients with a confirmed or suspected ectopic pregnancy because MIFEPREX is not effective for terminating ectopic pregnancies [see Contraindications (4)]. Healthcare providers should remain alert to the possibility that a patient who is undergoing a medical abortion could have an undiagnosed ectopic pregnancy because some of the expected symptoms experienced with a medical abortion (abdominal pain, uterine bleeding) may be similar to those of a ruptured ectopic pregnancy. The presence of an ectopic pregnancy may have been missed even if the patient underwent ultrasonography prior to being prescribed MIFEPREX.

Patients who became pregnant with an IUD in place should be assessed for ectopic pregnancy.

5.5 Rhesus Immunization

The use of MIFEPREX is assumed to require the same preventive measures as those taken prior to and during surgical abortion to prevent rhesus immunization.

6 Adverse Reactions

The following adverse reactions are described in greater detail in other sections:

- Infection and sepsis [see Warnings and Precautions (5.1)]
- Uterine bleeding [see Warnings and Precautions (5.2)]

6.1 Clinical Trials Experience

Because clinical studies are conducted under widely varying conditions, adverse reaction rates observed in the clinical studies of a drug cannot be directly compared to rates in the clinical studies of another drug and may not reflect the rates observed in practice.

Information presented on common adverse reactions relies solely on data from U.S. studies, because rates reported in non-U.S. studies were markedly lower and are not likely generalizable to the U.S. population. In three U.S. clinical studies totaling 1,248 women through 70 days gestation who used mifepristone 200 mg orally followed 24-48 hours later by misoprostol 800 mcg buccally, women reported adverse reactions in diaries and in interviews at the follow-up visit. These studies enrolled generally healthy women of reproductive age without contraindications to mifepristone or misoprostol use according to the MIFEPREX product label. Gestational age was assessed prior to study enrollment using the date of the woman's last menstrual period, clinical evaluation, and/or ultrasound examination.

About 85% of patients report at least one adverse reaction following administration of MIFEPREX and misoprostol, and many can be expected to report more than one such reaction. The most commonly reported adverse reactions (>15%) were nausea, weakness, fever/chills, vomiting, headache, diarrhea, and dizziness (see Table 1). The frequency of adverse reactions varies between studies and may be dependent on many factors, including the patient population and gestational age.

Abdominal pain/cramping is expected in all medical abortion patients and its incidence is not reported in clinical studies. Treatment with MIFEPREX and misoprostol is designed to induce uterine bleeding and cramping to cause termination of an intrauterine pregnancy. Uterine bleeding and cramping are expected consequences of the action of MIFEPREX and misoprostol as used in the treatment procedure. Most patients can expect bleeding more heavily than they do during a heavy menstrual period [see Warnings and Precautions (5.2)] .

Table 1 Adverse Reactions Reported in Women Following Administration of Mifepristone (oral) and Misoprostol (buccal) in U.S. Clinical Studies

Nausea	3	1,248	51-75%	70 days
Weakness	2	630	55-58%	63 days
Fever/chills	1	414	48%	63 days
Vomiting	3	1,248	37-48%	70 days
Headache	2	630	41-44%	63 days
Diarrhea	3	1,248	18-43%	70 days
Dizziness	2	630	39-41%	63 days

One study provided gestational-age stratified adverse reaction rates for women who were 57-63 and 64-70 days; there was little difference in frequency of the reported common adverse reactions by gestational age.

Information on serious adverse reactions was reported in six U.S. and four non-U.S. clinical studies, totaling 30,966 women through 70 days gestation who used mifepristone 200 mg orally followed 24-48 hours later by misoprostol 800 mcg buccally. Serious adverse reaction rates were similar between U.S. and non-U.S. studies, so rates from both U.S. and non-U.S. studies are presented. In the U.S. studies, one studied women through 56 days gestation, four through 63 days gestation, and one through 70 days gestation, while in the non-U.S. studies, two studied women through 63 days gestation, and two through 70 days gestation. Serious adverse reactions were reported in <0.5% of women. Information from the U.S. and non-U.S. studies is presented in Table 2.

6.2 Postmarketing Experience

The following adverse reactions have been identified during postapproval use of MIFEPREX and misoprostol. Because these reactions are reported voluntarily from a population of uncertain size, it is not always possible to reliably estimate their frequency or establish a causal relationship to drug exposure.

*Blood and the lymphatic system disorders:*anemia

*Immune system disorders:*allergic reaction (including anaphylaxis, angioedema, hives, rash, itching)

*Psychiatric disorders:*anxiety

*Cardiac disorders:*tachycardia (including racing pulse, heart palpitations, heart pounding)

*Vascular disorders:*syncope, fainting, loss of consciousness, hypotension (including orthostatic), light-headedness

*Respiratory, thoracic and mediastinal disorders:*shortness of breath

*Gastrointestinal disorders:*dyspepsia

*Musculoskeletal, connective tissue and bone disorders:*back pain, leg pain

7.1 Drugs that May Reduce MIFEPREX Exposure (Effect of CYP 3A4 Inducers on MIFEPREX)

CYP450 3A4 is primarily responsible for the metabolism of mifepristone. CYP3A4 inducers such as rifampin, dexamethasone, St. John's Wort, and certain anticonvulsants (such as phenytoin, phenobarbital, carbamazepine) may induce mifepristone metabolism (lowering serum concentrations of mifepristone). Whether this action has an impact on the efficacy of the dose regimen is unknown. Refer to the follow-up assessment [see Dosage and Administration (2.3)] to verify that treatment has been successful.

7.2 Drugs that May Increase MIFEPREX Exposure (Effect of CYP 3A4

Inhibitors on MIFEPREX)

Although specific drug or food interactions with mifepristone have not been studied, on the basis of this drug's metabolism by CYP 3A4, it is possible that ketoconazole, itraconazole, erythromycin, and grapefruit juice may inhibit its metabolism (increasing serum concentrations of mifepristone). MIFEPREX should be used with caution in patients currently or recently treated with CYP 3A4 inhibitors.

7.3 Effects of MIFEPREX on Other Drugs (Effect of MIFEPREX on CYP 3A4 Substrates)

Based on in vitro inhibition information, coadministration of mifepristone may lead to an increase in serum concentrations of drugs that are CYP 3A4 substrates. Due to the slow elimination of mifepristone from the body, such interaction may be observed for a prolonged period after its administration. Therefore, caution should be exercised when mifepristone is administered with drugs that are CYP 3A4 substrates and have narrow therapeutic range.

8 USE IN SPECIFIC POPULATIONS

8.1 Pregnancy

Risk Summary

MIFEPREX is indicated, in a regimen with misoprostol, for the medical termination of intrauterine pregnancy through 70 days gestation. Risks to pregnant patients are discussed throughout the labeling.

Refer to misoprostol labeling for risks to pregnant patients with the use of misoprostol.

The risk of adverse developmental outcomes with a continued pregnancy after a failed pregnancy termination with MIFEPREX in a regimen with misoprostol is unknown; however, the process of a failed pregnancy termination could disrupt normal embryo-fetal development and result in adverse developmental effects. Birth defects have been reported with a continued pregnancy after a failed pregnancy termination with MIFEPREX in a regimen with misoprostol. In animal reproduction studies, increased fetal losses were observed in mice, rats, and rabbits and skull deformities were observed in rabbits with administration of mifepristone at doses lower than the human exposure level based on body surface area.

Data

Animal Data

In teratology studies in mice, rats and rabbits at doses of 0.25 to 4.0 mg/kg (less than 1/100 to approximately 1/3 the human exposure based on body surface area), because of the antiprogestational activity of mifepristone,fetal losses were much higher than in control animals. Skull deformities were detected in rabbit studies at approximately 1/6 the human exposure, although no teratogenic effects of mifepristone have been observed to date in rats or mice. These deformities were most likely due to the mechanical effects of uterine contractions resulting from inhibition of progesterone action.

8.2 Lactation

MIFEPREX is present in human milk. Limited data demonstrate undetectable to low levels of the drug in human milk with the relative (weight-adjusted) infant dose 0.5% or less as compared to maternal dosing. There is no information on the effects of MIFEPREX in a regimen with misoprostol in a breastfed infant or on milk production. Refer to misoprostol labeling for lactation information with the use of misoprostol. The developmental and health benefits of breast-feeding should be considered along with any potential adverse effects on the breast-fed child from MIFEPREX in a regimen with misoprostol.

8.4 Pediatric Use

Safety and efficacy of MIFEPREX have been established in pregnant females. Data from a clinical study of MIFEPREX that included a subset of 322 females under age 17 demonstrated a safety and efficacy profile similar to that observed in adults.

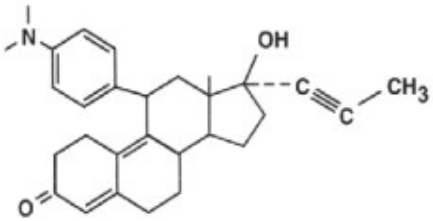

10 OVERDOSAGE

No serious adverse reactions were reported in tolerance studies in healthy non-pregnant female and healthy male subjects where mifepristone was administered in single doses greater than 1800 mg (ninefold the recommended dose for medical abortion). If a patient ingests a massive overdose, the patient should be observed closely for signs of adrenal failure.

11 DESCRIPTION

MIFEPREX tablets each contain 200 mg of mifepristone, a synthetic steroid with antiprogestational effects. The tablets are light yellow in color, cylindrical, and bi-convex, and are intended for oral administration only. The tablets include the inactive ingredients colloidal silica anhydrous, corn starch, povidone, microcrystalline cellulose, and magnesium stearate.

Mifepristone is a substituted 19-nor steroid compound chemically designated as 11ß-[p-(Dimethylamino)phenyl]-17ß-hydroxy-17-(1-propynyl)estra-4,9-dien-3-one. Its empirical formula is $C_{29}H_{35}NO_2$. Its structural formula is:

The compound is a yellow powder with a molecular weight of 429.6 and a melting point of 192-196°C. It is very soluble in methanol, chloroform and acetone and poorly soluble in water, hexane and isopropyl ether.

12 CLINICAL PHARMACOLOGY

12.1 Mechanism of Action

The anti-progestational activity of mifepristone results from competitive interaction with progesterone at progesterone-receptor sites. Based on studies with various oral doses in several animal species (mouse, rat, rabbit, and monkey), the compound inhibits the activity of endogenous or exogenous progesterone, resulting in effects on the uterus and cervix that, when combined with misoprostol, result in termination of an intrauterine pregnancy.

During pregnancy, the compound sensitizes the myometrium to the contraction-inducing activity of prostaglandins.

12.2 Pharmacodynamics

Use of MIFEPREX in a regimen with misoprostol disrupts pregnancy by causing decidual necrosis, myometrial contractions, and cervical softening, leading to the expulsion of the products of conception.

Doses of 1 mg/kg or greater of mifepristone have been shown to antagonize the endometrial and myometrial effects of progesterone in women.

Antiglucocorticoid and antiandrogenic activity: Mifepristone also exhibits antiglucocorticoid and weak antiandrogenic activity. The activity of the glucocorticoid dexamethasone in rats was inhibited following doses of 10 to 25 mg/kg of mifepristone. Doses of 4.5 mg/kg or greater in human beings resulted in a compensatory elevation of adrenocorticotropic hormone (ACTH) and cortisol. Antiandrogenic activity was observed in rats following repeated administration of doses from 10 to 100 mg/kg.

12.3 Pharmacokinetics

Mifepristone is rapidly absorbed after oral ingestion with non-linear pharmacokinetics for Cmax after single oral doses of 200 mg and 600 mg in healthy subjects.

Absorption

The absolute bioavailability of a 20 mg mifepristone oral dose in females of childbearing age is 69%. Following oral administration of a single dose of 600 mg, mifepristone is rapidly absorbed, with a peak plasma concentration of 1.98 ± 1.0 mg/L occurring approximately 90 minutes after ingestion.

Following oral administration of a single dose of 200 mg in healthy men (n=8), mean Cmax was 1.77 ± 0.7 mg/L occurring approximately 45 minutes after ingestion. Mean $AUC_{0-\infty}$ was 25.8 ± 6.2 mg*hr/L.

Distribution

Mifepristone is 98% bound to plasma proteins, albumin, and α_1-acid glycoprotein. Binding to the latter protein is saturable, and the drug displays nonlinear kinetics with respect to plasma concentration and clearance.

Elimination

Following a distribution phase, elimination of mifepristone is slow at first (50% eliminated between 12 and 72 hours) and then becomes more rapid with a terminal elimination half-life of 18 hours.

Metabolism

Metabolism of mifepristone is primarily via pathways involving N-demethylation and terminal hydroxylation of the 17-propynyl chain. In vitro studies have shown that CYP450 3A4 is primarily responsible for the metabolism. The three major metabolites identified in humans are: (1) RU 42 633, the most widely found in plasma, is the N-monodemethylated metabolite; (2) RU 42 848, which results from the loss of two methyl groups from the 4-dimethylaminophenyl in position 11ß; and (3) RU 42 698, which results from terminal hydroxylation of the 17-propynyl chain.

Excretion

By 11 days after a 600 mg dose of tritiated compound, 83% of the drug has been accounted for by the feces and 9% by the urine. Serum concentrations are undetectable by 11 days.

Specific Populations

The effects of age, hepatic disease and renal disease on the safety, efficacy and pharmacokinetics of mifepristone have not been investigated.

13 NONCLINICAL TOXICOLOGY

13.1 Carcinogenesis, Mutagenesis, Impairment of Fertility

Carcinogenesis

No long-term studies to evaluate the carcinogenic potential of mifepristone have been performed.

Mutagenesis

Results from studies conducted in vitro and in animals have revealed no genotoxic potential for mifepristone. Among the tests carried out were: Ames test with and without metabolic activation; gene conversion test in Saccharomyces cerevisiae D4 cells; forward mutation in Schizosaccharomyces pombe P1 cells; induction of unscheduled DNA synthesis in cultured HeLa cells; induction of chromosome aberrations in CHO cells; in vitro test for gene mutation in V79 Chinese hamster lung cells; and micronucleus test in mice.

Impairment of Fertility

In rats, administration of 0.3 mg/kg mifepristone per day caused severe disruption of the estrus cycles for the three weeks of the treatment period. Following resumption of the estrus cycle, animals were mated and no effects on reproductive performance were observed.

14 CLINICAL STUDIES

Safety and efficacy data from clinical studies of mifepristone 200 mg orally followed 24-48 hours later by misoprostol 800 mcg buccally through 70 days gestation are reported below. Success was defined as the complete expulsion of the products of conception without the need for surgical intervention. The overall rates of success and failure, shown by reason for failure based on 22 worldwide clinical studies (including 7 U.S. studies) appear in Table 3.

The demographics of women who participated in the U.S. clinical studies varied depending on study location and represent the racial and ethnic variety of American females. Females of all reproductive ages were represented, including females less than 18 and more than 40 years of age; most were 27 years or younger.

* Reasons for surgical intervention include ongoing pregnancy, medical necessity, persistent or heavy bleeding after treatment, patient request, or incomplete expulsion.
 Ongoing pregnancy is a subcategory of surgical intervention, indicating the percent of women who have surgical intervention due to an ongoing pregnancy.

The results for clinical studies that reported outcomes, including failure rates for ongoing pregnancy, by gestational age are presented in Table 4.

MEDICATION GUIDE

Mifeprex(MIF-eh-prex) (mifepristone tablets, for oral use

Read this information carefully before taking Mifeprex and misoprostol. It will help you understand how the treatment works. This Medication Guide does not take the place of talking with your healthcare provider.

What is the most important information I should know about Mifeprex?
What symptoms should I be concerned with?Although cramping and bleeding are an expected part of ending a pregnancy, rarely, serious and potentially life-threatening bleeding, infections, or other problems can occur following a miscarriage, surgical abortion, medical abortion, or childbirth. Seeking medical attention as soon as possible is needed in these circumstances. Serious infection has resulted in death in a very small number of cases. There is no information that use of Mifeprex and misoprostol caused these deaths. If you have any questions, concerns, or problems, or if you are worried about any side effects or symptoms, you should contact your healthcare provider. You can write down your healthcare provider's telephone number here _____.

Be sure to contact your healthcare provider promptly if you have any of the following:

- Heavy Bleeding. Contact your healthcare provider right away if you bleed enough to soak through two thick full-size sanitary pads per hour for two consecutive hours or if you are concerned about heavy bleeding. In about 1 out of 100 women, bleeding can be so heavy that it requires a surgical procedure (surgical aspiration or D&C).
- Abdominal Pain or "Feeling Sick." If you have abdominal pain or discomfort, or you are "feeling sick," including weakness, nausea, vomiting, or diarrhea, with or without fever, more than 24 hours after taking misoprostol, you should contact your healthcare provider without delay. These symptoms may be a sign of a serious infection or another problem (including an ectopic pregnancy, a pregnancy outside the womb).
- Fever. In the days after treatment, if you have a fever of 100.4°F or higher that lasts for more than 4 hours, you should contact your healthcare provider right away. Fever may be a symptom of a serious infection or another problem.

If you cannot reach your healthcare provider, go to the nearest hospital emergency room.

What to do if you are still pregnant after Mifeprex with misoprostol treatment. If you are still pregnant, your healthcare provider will talk with you about a surgical procedure to end your pregnancy. In many cases, this surgical procedure can be done in the office/clinic. The chance of birth defects if the pregnancy is not ended is unknown.

Talk with your healthcare provider. Before you take Mifeprex, you should read this Medication Guide and you and your healthcare provider should discuss the benefits and risks of your using Mifeprex.

What is Mifeprex?

Mifeprex is used in a regimen with another prescription medicine called misoprostol, to end an early pregnancy. Early pregnancy means it is 70 days (10 weeks) or less since your last menstrual period began. Mifeprex is not approved for ending pregnancies that are further along. Mifeprex blocks a hormone needed for your pregnancy to continue. When you use Mifeprex on Day 1, you also need to take another medicine called misoprostol 24 to 48 hours after you take Mifeprex, to cause the pregnancy to be passed from your uterus.

The pregnancy is likely to be passed from your uterus within 2 to 24 hours after taking Mifeprex and misoprostol. When the pregnancy is passed from the uterus, you will have bleeding and cramping that will likely be heavier than your usual period. About 2 to 7 out of 100 women taking Mifeprex will need a surgical procedure because the pregnancy did not completely pass from the uterus or to stop bleeding.

Who should not take Mifeprex?

Some patients should not take Mifeprex. Do not take Mifeprex if you:

- Have a pregnancy that is more than 70 days (10 weeks). Your healthcare provider may do a clinical examination, an ultrasound examination, or other testing to determine how far along you are in pregnancy.
- Are using an IUD (intrauterine device or system). It must be taken out before you take Mifeprex.
- Have been told by your healthcare provider that you have a pregnancy outside the uterus (ectopic pregnancy).
- Have problems with your adrenal glands (chronic adrenal failure).
- Take a medicine to thin your blood.
- Have a bleeding problem.
- Have porphyria.

- Take certain steroid medicines.
- Are allergic to mifepristone, misoprostol, or medicines that contain misoprostol, such as Cytotec or Arthrotec.

Ask your healthcare provider if you are not sure about all your medical conditions before taking this medicine to find out if you can take Mifeprex.

What should I tell my healthcare provider before taking Mifeprex?
Before you take Mifeprex, tell your healthcare provider if you:

- cannot follow-up within approximately 7 to 14 days of your first visit
- are breastfeeding. Mifeprex can pass into your breast milk. The effect of the Mifeprex and misoprostol regimen on the breastfed infant or on milk production is unknown.
- are taking medicines, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements.
  Mifeprex and certain other medicines may affect each other if they are used together. This can cause side effects.

How should I take Mifeprex?
Mifeprex will be given to you by a healthcare provider or pharmacy.
You and your healthcare provider will plan the most appropriate location for you to take the misoprostol, because it may cause bleeding, cramps, nausea, diarrhea, and other symptoms that usually begin within 2 to 24 hours after taking it.
Most women will pass the pregnancy within 2 to 24 hours after taking the misoprostol tablets.
Follow the instruction below on how to take Mifeprex and misoprostol:
Mifeprex (1 tablet) orally + misoprostol (4 tablets) buccally
Day 1:

- Take 1 Mifeprex tablet by mouth.

24 to 48 hours after taking Mifeprex:
Take 4 misoprostol tablets by placing 2 tablets in each cheek pouch (the area between your teeth and cheek - see Figure A) for 30 minutes and then swallow anything left over with a drink of water or another liquid.
The medicines may not work as well if you take misoprostol sooner than 24 hours after Mifeprex or later than 48 hours after Mifeprex.
Misoprostol often causes cramps, nausea, diarrhea, and other symptoms. Your healthcare provider may send you home with medicines for these symptoms.

Follow-up Assessment at Day 7 to 14:

- This follow-up assessment is very important. You must follow-up with your healthcare provider about 7 to 14 days after you have taken Mifeprex to be sure you are well and that you have had bleeding and the pregnancy has passed from your uterus.
- Your healthcare provider will assess whether your pregnancy has passed from your uterus. If your pregnancy continues, the chance that there may be birth defects is unknown. If you are still pregnant, your healthcare provider will talk with you about a surgical procedure to end your pregnancy.

- If your pregnancy has ended, but has not yet completely passed from your uterus, your provider will talk with you about other choices you have, including waiting, taking another dose of misoprostol, or having a surgical procedure to empty your uterus.

When should I begin birth control?
You can become pregnant again right after your pregnancy ends. If you do not want to become pregnant again, start using birth control as soon as your pregnancy ends or before you start having sexual intercourse again.

What should I avoid while taking Mifeprex and misoprostol?
Do not take any other prescription or over-the-counter medicines (including herbal medicines or supplements) at any time during the treatment period without first asking your healthcare provider about them because they may interfere with the treatment. Ask your healthcare provider about what medicines you can take for pain and other side effects.

What are the possible side effects of Mifeprex and misoprostol?
Mifeprex may cause serious side effects. See " What is the most important information I should know about Mifeprex?"
Cramping and bleeding. Cramping and vaginal bleeding are expected with this treatment. Usually, these symptoms mean that the treatment is working. But sometimes you can get cramping and bleeding and still be pregnant. This is why you must follow-up with your healthcare provider approximately 7 to 14 days after taking Mifeprex. See " How should I take Mifeprex?" for more information on your follow-up assessment. If you are not already bleeding after taking Mifeprex, you probably will begin to bleed once you take misoprostol, the medicine you take 24 to 48 hours after Mifeprex. Bleeding or spotting can be expected for an average of 9 to16 days and may last for up to 30 days. Your bleeding may be similar to, or greater than, a normal heavy period. You may see blood clots and tissue. This is an expected part of passing the pregnancy.
The most common side effects of Mifeprex treatment include: nausea, weakness, fever/chills, vomiting, headache, diarrhea and dizziness. Your provider will tell you how to manage any pain or other side effects. These are not all the possible side effects of Mifeprex.
Call your healthcare provider for medical advice about any side effects that bother you or do not go away. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

WARNING: SERIOUS AND SOMETIMES FATAL INFECTIONS OR BLEEDING

See full prescribing information for complete boxed warning.

Serious and sometimes fatal infections and bleeding occur very rarely following spontaneous, surgical, and medical abortions, including following Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg use.

- Atypical Presentation of Infection. Patients with serious bacterial infections and sepsis can present without fever, bacteremia or significant findings on pelvic examination. A high index of suspicion is needed to rule out serious infection and sepsis. (5.1)
- Bleeding. Prolonged heavy bleeding may be a sign of incomplete abortion or other complications and prompt medical or surgical intervention may be needed. (5.2)

Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg is only available through a restricted program called the Mifepristone REMS Program (5.3).
Before prescribing Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg, inform the patient about these risks. FULL PRESCRIBING INFORMATION

WARNING: SERIOUS AND SOMETIMES FATAL INFECTIONS OR BLEEDING

Serious and sometimes fatal infections and bleeding occur very rarely following spontaneous, surgical, and medical abortions, including following Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg use. No causal relationship between the use of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol and these events has been established.

- Atypical Presentation of Infection. Patients with serious bacterial infections (e.g., Clostridium sordellii) and sepsis can present without fever, bacteremia, or significant findings on pelvic examination following an abortion. Very rarely, deaths have been reported in patients who presented without fever, with or without abdominal pain, but with leukocytosis with a marked left shift, tachycardia, hemoconcentration, and general malaise. A high index of suspicion is needed to rule out serious infection and sepsis [see Warnings and Precautions (5.1)]
- Bleeding. Prolonged heavy bleeding may be a sign of incomplete abortion or other complications and prompt medical or surgical intervention may be needed. Advise patients to seek immediate medical attention if they experience prolonged heavy vaginal bleeding [see Warnings and Precautions (5.2)].

Because of the risks of serious complications described above, Mifepristone tablets, 200mg is available only through a restricted program under a Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategy (REMS) called the Mifepristone REMS Program [see Warnings and Precautions (5.3)].

Before prescribing Mifepristone, inform the patient about the risk of these serious events. Ensure that the patient knows whom to call and what to do, including going to an Emergency Room if none of the provided contacts are reachable, if they experience sustained fever, severe abdominal pain, prolonged heavy bleeding, or syncope, or if they experience abdominal pain or discomfort, or general malaise (including weakness, nausea, vomiting or diarrhea) for more than 24 hours after taking misoprostol.

1 INDICATIONS AND USAGE

2 DOSAGE AND ADMINISTRATION

2.1 Dosing Regimen

For purposes of this treatment, pregnancy is dated from the first day of the last menstrual period. The duration of pregnancy may be determined from menstrual history and clinical examination. Assess the pregnancy by ultrasonographic scan if the duration of pregnancy is uncertain or if ectopic pregnancy is suspected.

Remove any intrauterine device ("IUD") before treatment with Mifepristone tablets, 200mg begins [see Contraindications (4)].

The dosing regimen for Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol is:

Mifepristone 200 mg orally + misoprostol 800 mcg buccally

• Day One: Mifepristone 200 mg Administration

One 200 mg tablet of Mifepristone is taken in a single oral dose.

• Day Two or Three: Misoprostol Administration (minimum 24-hour interval between, Mifepristone and misoprostol)

Four 200 mcg tablets (total dose 800 mcg) of misoprostol are taken by the buccal route.

Tell the patient to place two 200 mcg misoprostol tablets in each cheek pouch (the area between the cheek and gums) for 30 minutes and then swallow any remnants with water or another liquid (see Figure 1).

Patients taking Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg must take misoprostol within 24 to 48 hours after taking Mifepristone. The effectiveness of the regimen may be lower if misoprostol is administered less than 24 hours or more than 48 hours after mifepristone administration.

Because most women will expel the pregnancy within 2 to 24 hours of taking misoprostol [see Clinical Studies (14)] , discuss with the patient an appropriate location for them to be when taking the misoprostol, taking into account that expulsion could begin within 2 hours of administration.

2.2 Patient Management Following Misoprostol Administration

During the period immediately following the administration of misoprostol, the patient may need medication for cramps or gastrointestinal symptoms [see Adverse Reactions (6)] .

Give the patient:

- Instructions on what to do if significant discomfort, excessive vaginal bleeding or other adverse reactions occur
- A phone number to call if the patient has questions following the administration of the misoprostol
- The name and phone number of the healthcare provider who will behandling emergencies.

2.3 Post-treatment Assessment: Day 7 to 14

Patients should follow-up with their healthcare provider approximately 7 to 14 days after the administration of Mifepristone. This assessment is very important to confirm that complete termination of pregnancy has occurred and to evaluate the degree of bleeding. Termination can be confirmed by medical history, clinical examination, human Chorionic Gonadotropin (hCG) testing, or ultrasonographic scan. Lack of bleeding following treatment usually indicates failure; however, prolonged or heavy bleeding is not proof of a complete abortion.

The existence of debris in the uterus (e.g., if seen on ultrasonography) following the treatment procedure will not necessarily require surgery for its removal.

Patients should expect to experience vaginal bleeding or spotting for an average of 9 to 16 days. Women report experiencing heavy bleeding for a median duration of 2 days. Up to 8% of women may experience some type of bleeding for more than 30 days. Persistence of heavy or moderate vaginal bleeding at the time of follow-up, however, could indicate an incomplete abortion.

If complete expulsion has not occurred, but the pregnancy is not ongoing, patients may be treated with another dose of misoprostol 800mcg buccally. There have been rare reports of uterine rupture in women who took mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol, including women with prior uterine rupture or uterine scar and patients who received multiple doses of misoprostol within 24 hours. Patients who choose to use a repeat dose of misoprostol should have a follow-up visit with their healthcare provider in approximately 7 days to assess for complete termination.

Surgical evacuation is recommended to manage ongoing pregnancies after medical abortion [see Use in Specific Populations (8.1)] . Advise the patient whether you will provide such care or will refer her to another provider as part of counseling prior to prescribing Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg.

2.4 Contact for Consultation

For consultation 24 hours a day, 7 days a week with an expert in mifepristone, call GenBioPro, Inc. at 1-855-MIFEINFO (1-855-643-3463).

3 DOSAGE FORMS AND STRENGTHS

Tablets containing 200 mg of mifepristone each, supplied as 1 tablet on one blister card. Mifepristone tablets are light yellow in color, circular, bio-convex tablets, approximately 11mm in diameter and imprinted on one side with “S.”

4 CONTRAINDICATIONS

- Administration of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol for the termination of pregnancy (the “treatment procedure”) is contraindicated in patients with any of the following conditions:
  - Confirmed or suspected ectopic pregnancy or undiagnosed adnexal mass (the treatment procedure will not be effective to terminate an ectopic pregnancy) [see Warnings and Precautions (5.4)]
  - Chronic adrenal failure (risk of acute adrenal insufficiency)
  - Concurrent long-term corticosteroid therapy (risk of acute adrenal insufficiency)
  - History of allergy to mifepristone, misoprostol, or other prostaglandins (allergic reactions including anaphylaxis, angioedema, rash, hives, and itching have been reported [see Adverse Reactions (6.2)])
  - Hemorrhagic disorders or concurrent anticoagulant therapy (risk of heavy bleeding)
  - Inherited porphyrias (risk of worsening or of precipitation of attacks)
- Use of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol for termination of intrauterine pregnancy is contraindicated in patients with an intrauterine device (“IUD”) in place (the IUD might interfere with pregnancy termination). If the IUD is removed, Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg may be used.

5 WARNINGS AND PRECAUTIONS

5.1 Infection and Sepsis

As with other types of abortion, cases of serious bacterial infection, including very rare cases of fatal septic shock, have been reported following the use of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg [see Boxed Warning]. Healthcare providers evaluating a patient who is undergoing a medical abortion should be alert to the possibility of this rare event. A sustained (>4 hours) fever of 100.4°F or higher, severe abdominal pain, or pelvic tenderness in the days after a medical abortion may be an indication of infection.

A high index of suspicion is needed to rule out sepsis (e.g., from Clostridium sordellii) if a patient reports abdominal pain or discomfort or general malaise (including weakness, nausea, vomiting or diarrhea) more than 24 hours after taking misoprostol. Very rarely, deaths have been reported in patients who presented without fever, with or without abdominal pain, but with leukocytosis with a marked left shift, tachycardia, hemoconcentration, and general malaise. No causal relationship between Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol use and an increased risk of infection or death has been established. Clostridium sordellii infections have also been reported very rarely following childbirth (vaginal delivery and caesarian section), and in other gynecologic and non-gynecologic conditions.

5.2 Uterine Bleeding

Uterine bleeding occurs in almost all patients during a medical abortion. Prolonged heavy bleeding (soaking through two thick full-size sanitary pads per hour for two consecutive hours) may be a sign of incomplete abortion or other complications and prompt medical or surgical intervention may be needed to prevent the development of hypovolemic shock. Counsel patients to seek immediate medical attention if they experience prolonged heavy vaginal bleeding following a medical abortion [see Boxed Warning].

Women should expect to experience vaginal bleeding or spotting for an average of 9 to 16 days. Women report experiencing heavy bleeding for a median duration of 2 days.

Up to 8% of all subjects may experience some type of bleeding for 30 days or more. In general, the duration of bleeding and spotting increased as the duration of the pregnancy increased.

Decreases in hemoglobin concentration, hematocrit, and red blood cell count may occur in patients who bleed heavily.

Excessive uterine bleeding usually requires treatment by uterotonics, vasoconstrictor drugs, surgical uterine evacuation, administration of saline infusions, and/or blood transfusions. Based on data from several large clinical trials, vasoconstrictor drugs were used in 4.3% of all subjects, there was a decrease in hemoglobin of more than 2 g/dL in 5.5% of subjects, and blood transfusions were administered to ≤0.1% of subjects. Because heavy bleeding requiring surgical uterine evacuation occurs in about 1% of patients, special care should be given to patients with hemostatic disorders, hypocoagulability, or severe anemia.

5.3 Mifepristone REMS Program

Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg is available only through a restricted program under a REMS called the Mifepristone REMS Program, because of the risks of serious complications [see Warnings and Precautions (5.1, 5.2)]

Notable requirements of the Mifepristone REMS Program include the following:

- Prescribers must be certified with the program by completing the Prescriber Agreement Form
- Patients must sign a Patient Agreement Form
- Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg must be dispensed to patients by or under the supervision of a certified prescriber, or by certified pharmacies on prescriptions issued by certified prescribers

Further information is available at 1-855-MIFEINFO (1-855-643-3463).

5.4 Ectopic Pregnancy

Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg is contraindicated in patients with a confirmed or suspected ectopic pregnancy because mifepristone is not effective for terminating ectopic pregnancies [see Contraindications (4)]. Healthcare providers should remain alert to the possibility that a patient who is undergoing a medical abortion could have an undiagnosed ectopic pregnancy because some of the expected symptoms experienced with a medical abortion (abdominal pain, uterine bleeding) may be similar to those of a ruptured ectopic pregnancy. The presence of an ectopic pregnancy may have been missed even if the patient underwent ultrasonography prior to being prescribed Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg.

Patients who became pregnant with an IUD in place should be assessed for ectopic pregnancy.

5.5 Rhesus Immunization

The use of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg is assumed to require the same preventive measures as those taken prior to and during surgical abortion to prevent rhesus immunization.

6 ADVERSE REACTIONS

The following adverse reactions are described in greater detail in other sections:

- Infection and sepsis [see Warnings and Precautions (5.1)]
- Uterine bleeding [see Warnings and Precautions (5.2)]

6.1 Clinical Trials Experience

Because clinical studies are conducted under widely varying conditions, adverse reaction rates observed in the clinical studies of a drug cannot be directly compared to rates in the clinical studies of another drug and may not reflect the rates observed in practice.

Information presented on common adverse reactions relies solely on data from US studies, because rates reported in non-US studies were markedly lower and are not likely generalizable to the US population. In three US clinical studies totaling 1,248 women through 70 days gestation who used mifepristone 200 mg orally followed 24-48 hours later by misoprostol 800mcg buccally, women reported adverse reactions in diaries and in interviews at the follow-up visit. These studies enrolled generally healthy women of reproductive age without contraindications to mifepristone or misoprostol use according to the Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg product label.Gestational age was assessed prior to study enrollment using the date of the woman's last menstrual period, clinical evaluation, and/or ultrasound examination.

About 85% of patients report at least one adverse reaction following administration of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol, and many can be expected to report more than one such reaction. The most commonly reported adverse reactions (>15%) were nausea, weakness, fever/chills, vomiting, headache, diarrhea, and dizziness (see Table 1). The frequency of adverse reactions varies between studies and may be dependent on many factors including the patient population and gestational age.

Abdominal pain/cramping is expected in all medical abortion patients and its incidence is not reported in clinical studies. Treatment with Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol is designed to induce uterine bleeding and cramping to cause termination of an intrauterine pregnancy. Uterine bleeding and cramping are expected consequences of the action of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol as used in the treatment procedure. Most patients can expect bleeding more heavily than they do during a heavy menstrual period [see Warnings and Precautions (5.2) ].

Table 1 lists the adverse reactions reported in US clinical studies with incidence >15% of women.

	# US	Number of	Range of	Upper Gestational

Headache	2	630	41-44%	63 days
Diarrhea	3	1,248	18-43%	70 days
Dizziness	2	630	39-41%	63 days

One study provided gestational-age stratified adverse reaction rates for women who were 57-63 and 64-70 days; there was little difference in frequency of the reported common adverse reactions by gestational age.

Information on serious adverse reactions was reported in six US and four non-US clinical studies, totaling 30,966 women through 70 days gestation who used mifepristone 200mg orally followed 24-48 hours later by misoprostol 800mcg buccally. Serious adverse reaction rates were similar between US and non-US studies, so rates from both US and non-US studies are presented. In the US studies, one studied women through 56 days gestation, four through 63 days gestation, and one through 70 days gestation, while in the non-US studies, two studied women through 63 days gestation, and two through 70 days gestation. Serious adverse reactions were reported in <0.5% of women. Information from the US and non-US studies is presented in Table 2.

6.2 Postmarketing Experience

The following adverse reactions have been identified during post approval use of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol. Because these reactions are reported voluntarily from a population of uncertain size, it is not always possible to reliably estimate their frequency or establish a causal relationship to drug exposure.

Infections and infestations: post-abortal infection (including endometritis, endomyometritis, parametritis, pelvic infection, pelvic inflammatory disease, salpingitis)

Blood and the lymphatic system disorders: anemia

Immune system disorders: allergic reaction (including anaphylaxis, angioedema, hives, rash, itching)

Psychiatric disorders: anxiety

Cardiac disorders: tachycardia (including racing pulse, heart palpitations, heart pounding)

Vascular disorders: syncope, fainting, loss of consciousness, hypotension (including orthostatic), light-headedness

Respiratory, thoracic and mediastinal disorders: shortness of breath

Gastrointestinal disorders: dyspepsia

Musculoskeletal, connective tissue and bone disorders: back pain, leg pain

Reproductive system and breast disorders: uterine rupture, ruptured ectopic pregnancy, hematometra, leukorrhea

7 DRUG INTERACTIONS

7.1 Drugs that May Reduce Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg Exposure (Effect of CYP 3A4 Inducers on Mifepristone tablets, 200mg)

CYP450 3A4 is primarily responsible for the metabolism of mifepristone. CYP3A4 inducers such as rifampin, dexamethasone, St. John's Wort, and certain anticonvulsants (such as phenytoin, phenobarbital, carbamazepine) may induce mifepristone metabolism (lowering serum concentrations of mifepristone). Whether this action has an impact on the efficacy of the dose regimen is unknown. Refer to the follow-up assessment [see Dosage and Administration (2.3)] to verify that treatment has been successful.

7.2 Drugs that May Increase Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg Exposure (Effect of CYP 3A4 Inhibitors on Mifepristone tablets, 200mg)

Although specific drug or food interactions with mifepristone have not been studied, on the basis of this drug's metabolism by CYP 3A4, it is possible that ketoconazole, itraconazole erythromycin, and grapefruit juice may inhibit its metabolism (increasing serum concentrations of mifepristone). Mifepristone tablets, 200mg should be used with caution in patients currently or recently treated with CYP 3A4 inhibitors.

7.3 Effects of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg on Other Drugs (Effect of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg on CYP 3A4Substrates)

Based on in vitro inhibition information, coadministration of mifepristone may lead to an increase in serum concentrations of drugs that are CYP 3A4 substrates. Due to the slow elimination of mifepristone from the body, such interaction may be observed for a prolonged period after its administration. Therefore, caution should be exercised when mifepristone is administered with drugs that are CYP 3A4 substrates and have a narrow therapeutic range.

8 USE IN SPECIFIC POPULATIONS

8.1 Pregnancy

Risk Summary

Mifepristone is indicated, in a regimen with misoprostol, for the medical termination of intrauterine pregnancy through 70 days gestation. Risks to pregnant patients are discussed throughout the labeling.

Refer to misoprostol labeling for risks to pregnant patients with the use of misoprostol.

Data

Animal Data

In teratology studies in mice, rats and rabbits at doses of 0.25 to 4.0mg/kg (less than 1/100 to approximately 1/3 the human exposure based on body surface area), because of the antiprogestational activity of mifepristone, fetal losses were much higher than in control animals. Skull deformities were detected in rabbit studies at approximately 1/6 the human exposure, although no teratogenic effects of mifepristone have been observed to date in rats or mice.

These deformities were most likely due to the mechanical effects of uterine contractions resulting from inhibition of progesterone action.

8.2 Lactation

Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg is present in human milk. Limited data demonstrate undetectable to low levels of the drug in human milk with the relative (weight-adjusted) infant dose 0.5% or less as compared to maternal dosing. There is no information on the effects of Mifepristone tablets, 200 use of misoprostol. The developmental and health benefits of breast-feeding should be considered along with any potential adverse effects on the breast-fed child from Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg in a regimen with misoprostol.

8.4 Pediatric Use

Safety and efficacy of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg have been established in pregnant females. Data from a clinical study of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg that included a subset of 322 females under age 17 demonstrated a safety and efficacy profile similar to that observed in adults.

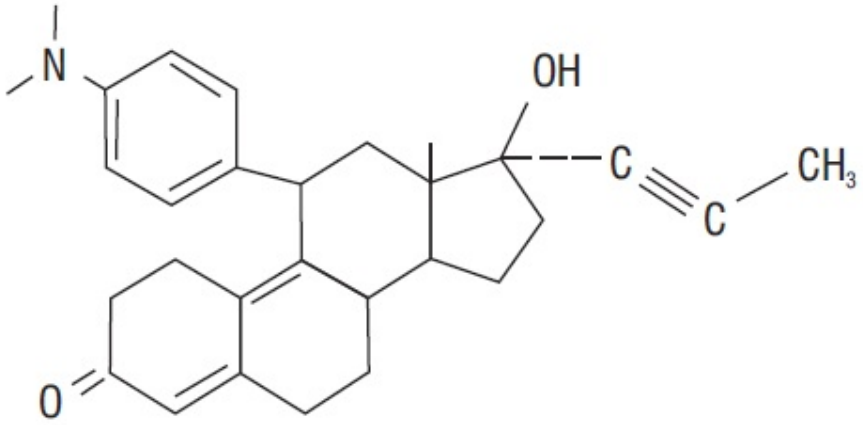

10 OVERDOSAGE

No serious adverse reactions were reported in tolerance studies in healthy non-pregnant female and healthy male subjects where mifepristone was administered in single doses greater than 1,800 mg (ninefold the recommended dose for medical abortion). If a patient ingests a massive overdose, the patient should be observed closely for signs of adrenal failure.

11 DESCRIPTION

Mifepristone tablets each contain 200 mg of mifepristone, a synthetic steroid with antiprogestational effects. The tablets are light yellow in color, circular, bi-convex, and are intended for oral administration only. The tablets include the inactive ingredients colloidal silicon dioxide, corn starch, povidone, microcrystalline cellulose, and magnesium stearate.

Mifepristone is a substituted 19-nor steroid compound chemically designated as 11ß-[p-(Dimethylamino) phenyl]-17ß-hydroxy- 17-(1-propynyl) estra-4,9-dien-3-one. Its empirical formula is $C_{29}H_{35}NO_2$. Its structural formula is:

The compound is a yellow powder with a molecular weight of 429.6 and a melting point of 192- 196°C. It is freely soluble in methanol, chloroform and acetone and poorly soluble in water, hexane and isopropyl ether.

12 CLINICAL PHARMACOLOGY

12.1 Mechanism of Action

The anti-progestational activity of mifepristone results from competitive interaction with progesterone at progesterone-receptor sites. Based on studies with various oral doses in several animal species (mouse, rat, rabbit, and monkey), the compound inhibits the activity of endogenous or exogenous progesterone, resulting in effects on the uterus and cervix that, when combined with misoprostol, result in termination of an intrauterine pregnancy.

During pregnancy, the compound sensitizes the myometrium to the contraction-inducing activity of prostaglandins.

12.2 Pharmacodynamics

Doses of 1mg/kg or greater of mifepristone have been shown to antagonize the endometrial and myometrial effects of progesterone in women.

Antiglucocorticoid and antiandrogenic activity: Mifepristone also exhibits antiglucocorticoid and weak antiandrogenic activity. The activity of the glucocorticoid dexamethasone in rats was inhibited following doses of 10 to 25 mg/kg of mifepristone. Doses of 4.5mg/kg or greater in human beings resulted in a compensatory elevation of adrenocorticotropic hormone (ACTH) and cortisol. Antiandrogenic activity was observed in rats following repeated administration of doses from 10 to 100 mg/kg.

12.3 Pharmacokinetics

Absorption

The absolute bioavailability of a 20 mg mifepristone oral dose in females of childbearing age is 69%. Following oral administration of a single dose of 600mg, mifepristone is rapidly absorbed, with a peak plasma concentration of 1.98 ± 1.0mg/L occurring approximately 90 minutes after ingestion.

Following oral administration of a single dose of 200 mg in healthy men (n=8), mean C_{max} was1.77 ± 0.7 mg/L occurring approximately 45 minutes after ingestion. Mean AUC0-∞ was 25.8± 6.2 mg*hr/L.

Distribution

Mifepristone is 98% bound to plasma proteins, albumin, and 1-acid glycoprotein. Binding to the latter protein is saturable, and the drug displays nonlinear kinetics with respect to plasma concentration and clearance.

Elimination

Following a distribution phase, elimination of mifepristone is slow at first (50% eliminated between 12 and 72 hours) and then becomes more rapid with a terminal elimination half-life of 18 hours.

Metabolism

Metabolism of mifepristone is primarily via pathways involving N-demethylation and terminal hydroxylation of the 17-propynyl chain. In vitro studies have shown that CYP450 3A4 is primarily responsible for the metabolism. The three major metabolites identified in humans are: (1) RU 42 633, the most widely found in plasma, is the N-monodemethylated metabolite; (2) RU 42 848, which results from the loss of two methyl groups from the 4-dimethylaminophenyl in position 11ß; and (3) RU 42 698, which results from terminal hydroxylation of the 17-propynyl chain.

Excretion

By 11 days after a 600mg dose of tritiated compound, 83% of the drug has been accounted for by the feces and 9% by the urine. Serum concentrations are undetectable by 11 days.

Specific Populations

The effects of age, hepatic disease and renal disease on the safety, efficacy and pharmacokinetics of mifepristone have not been investigated.

13 NONCLINICAL TOXICOLOGY

13.1 Carcinogenesis, Mutagenesis, Impairment of Fertility

Carcinogenesis

No long-term studies to evaluate the carcinogenic potential of mifepristone have been performed.

Mutagenesis

Results from studies conducted in vitro and in animals have revealed no genotoxic potential for mifepristone. Among the tests carried out were: Ames test with and without metabolic activation; gene conversion test in Saccharomyces cerevisiae D4 cells; forward mutation in Schizosaccharomyces pompe P1 cells; induction of unscheduled DNA synthesis in cultured HeLa cells; induction of chromosome aberrations in CHO cells; in vitro test for gene mutation in V79 Chinese hamster lung cells; and micronucleus test in mice.

Impairment of Fertility

In rats, administration of 0.3mg/kg mifepristone per day caused severe disruption of the estrus cycles for the three weeks of the treatment period. Following resumption of the estrus cycle, animals were mated and no effects on reproductive performance were observed.

14 CLINICAL STUDIES

Safety and efficacy data from clinical studies of mifepristone 200 mg orally followed 24-48 hours later by misoprostol 800 mcg buccally through 70 days gestation are reported below. Success was defined as the complete expulsion of the products of conception without the need for surgical intervention. The overall rates of success and failure, shown by reason for failure based on 22 worldwide clinical studies (including 7 US studies) appear in Table 3.

The demographics of women who participated in the US clinical studies varied depending on study location and represent the racial and ethnic variety of American females. Females of all reproductive ages were represented, including females less than 18 and more than 40 years of age; most were 27 years or younger.

* Reasons for surgical intervention include ongoing pregnancy, medical necessity, persistent or heavy bleeding after treatment, patient request, or incomplete expulsion.

 Ongoing pregnancy is a subcategory of surgical intervention, indicating the percent of women who have surgical intervention due to an ongoing pregnancy.

The results for clinical studies that reported outcomes, including failure rates for ongoing pregnancy, by gestational age are presented in Table 4.

MEDICATION GUIDE

Mifepristone (MIF-eh-pris-tone) tablets, 200 mg for oral use

Read this information carefully before taking Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol. It will help you understand how the treatment works. This Medication Guide does not take the place of talking with your healthcare provider.

What is the most important information I should know about Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg?

What symptoms should I be concerned with? Although cramping and bleeding are an expected part of ending a pregnancy, rarely, serious and potentially life-threatening bleeding, infections, or other problems can occur following a miscarriage, surgical abortion, medical abortion, or childbirth. Seeking medical attention as soon as possible is needed in these circumstances. Serious infection has resulted in death in a very small number of cases. There is no information that use of Mifepristone tablets, 200mg and misoprostol caused these deaths. If you have any questions, concerns, or problems, or if you are worried about any side effects or symptoms, you should contact your healthcare provider. You can write down your healthcare provider's telephone number here _____.

Be sure to contact your healthcare provider promptly if you have any of the following:

- Heavy Bleeding. Contact your healthcare provider right away if you bleed enough to soak through two thick full-size sanitary pads per hour for two consecutive hours or if you are concerned about heavy bleeding. In about 1 out of 100 women, bleeding can be so heavy that it requires a surgical procedure (surgical aspiration or D&C).
- Abdominal Pain or "Feeling Sick." If you have abdominal pain or discomfort, or you are "feeling sick," including weakness, nausea, vomiting, or diarrhea, with or without fever, more than 24 hours after taking misoprostol, you should contact your healthcare provider without delay. These symptoms may be a sign of a serious infection or another problem (including an ectopic pregnancy, a pregnancy outside the womb).
- Fever. In the days after treatment, if you have a fever of 100.4°F or higher that lasts for more than 4 hours, you should contact your healthcare provider right away. Fever may be a symptom of a serious infection or another problem.

If you cannot reach your healthcare provider, go to the nearest hospital emergency room.

What to do if you are still pregnant after Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg with misoprostol treatment. If you are still pregnant, your healthcare provider will talk with you about a surgical procedure to end your pregnancy. In many cases, this surgical procedure can be done in the office/clinic. The chance of birth defects if the pregnancy is not ended is unknown.

Talk with your healthcare provider. Before you take Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg you should read this Medication Guide and you and your healthcare provider should discuss the benefits and risks of your using Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg.

What is Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg?

Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg is used in a regimen with another prescription medicine called misoprostol, to end an early pregnancy. Early pregnancy means it is 70 days (10 weeks) or less since your last menstrual period began. Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg is not approved for ending pregnancies that are further along. Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg blocks a hormone needed for your pregnancy to continue. When you use Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg on Day 1, you also need to take another medicine called misoprostol 24 to 48 hours after you take Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg to cause the pregnancy to be passed from your uterus.

The pregnancy is likely to be passed from your uterus within 2 to 24 hours after taking Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol. When the pregnancy is passed from the uterus, you will have bleeding and cramping that will likely be heavier than your usual period. About 2 to 7 out of 100 women taking Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg will need a surgical procedure because the pregnancy did not completely pass from the uterus or to stop bleeding.

Who should not take Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg?

Some patients should not take Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg. Do not take Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg if you:

- Have a pregnancy that is more than 70 days (10 weeks). Your healthcare provider may do a clinical examination, an ultrasound examination, or other testing to determine how far along you are in pregnancy.
- Are using an IUD (intrauterine device or system). It must be taken out before you take Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg.
- Have been told by your healthcare provider that you have a pregnancy outside the uterus (ectopic pregnancy).
- Have problems with your adrenal glands (chronic adrenal failure).
- Take a medicine to thin your blood.
- Have a bleeding problem.
- Have porphyria.
- Take certain steroid medicines.
- Are allergic to mifepristone, misoprostol, or medicines that contain misoprostol, such as Cytotec or Arthrotec.

Ask your healthcare provider if you are not sure about all your medical conditions before taking this medicine to find out if you can take Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg.

What should I tell my healthcare provider before taking Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg? Before you take Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg, tell your healthcare provider if you:

- cannot follow-up within approximately 7 to 14 days of your first visit
- are breastfeeding. Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg can pass into your breast milk. The effect of the Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol regimen on the breastfed infant or on milk production is unknown.
- are taking medicines, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements.

Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and certain other medicines may affect each other if they are used together. This can cause side effects.

How should I take Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg?

- Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg will be given to you by a healthcare provider or pharmacy.
- You and your healthcare provider will plan the most appropriate location for you to take the misoprostol, because it may cause bleeding, cramps, nausea, diarrhea, and other symptoms that usually begin within 2 to 24 hours after taking it.

- Most women will pass the pregnancy within 2 to 24 hours after taking the misoprostol tablets.

Follow the instruction below on how to take Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol: Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg (1 tablet) orally + misoprostol (4 tablets) buccally

Day 1:
- Take 1 Mifepristone 200 mg tablet by mouth.

24 to 48 hours after taking Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg:
- Take 4 misoprostol tablets by placing 2 misoprostol tablets in each cheek pouch (the area between your teeth and cheek - see Figure A) for 30 minutes and then swallow anything left over with a drink of water or another liquid.
- The medicines may not work as well if you take misoprostol sooner than 24 hours after Mifepristone tablets, 200mg or later than 48 hours after Mifepristone tablets, 200mg.
- Misoprostol often causes cramps, nausea, diarrhea, and other symptoms. Your healthcare provider may send you home with medicines for these symptoms.

Follow-up Assessment at Day 7 to 14:
- This follow-up assessment is very important. You must follow-up with your healthcare provider about 7 to 14 days after you have taken Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg to be sure you are well and that you have had bleeding and the pregnancy has passed from your uterus.
- Your healthcare provider will assess whether your pregnancy has passed from your uterus. If your pregnancy continues, the chance that there may be birth defects is unknown. If you are still pregnant, your healthcare provider will talk with you about a surgical procedure to end your pregnancy.
- If your pregnancy has ended, but not yet completely passed from your uterus, your provider will talk with you about other choices you have, including waiting, taking another dose of misoprostol, or having surgical procedure to empty your uterus.

When should I begin birth control?

You can become pregnant again right after your pregnancy ends. If you do not want to become pregnant again, start using birth control as soon as your pregnancy ends or before you start having sexual intercourse again.

What should I avoid while taking Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol?

Do not take any other prescription or over-the-counter medicines (including herbal medicines or supplements) at any time during the treatment period without first asking your healthcare provider about them because they may interfere with the treatment. Ask your healthcare provider about what medicines you can take for pain and other side effects.

What are the possible side effects of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol?

Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg may cause serious side effects. See "What is the most important information I should know about Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg?"

Cramping and bleeding. Cramping and vaginal bleeding are expected with this treatment. Usually, these symptoms mean that the treatment is working. But sometimes you can get cramping and bleeding and still be pregnant. This is why you must follow-up with your healthcare provider approximately 7 to 14 days after taking Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg. See "How should I take Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg?" for more information on your follow-up assessment. If you are not already bleeding after taking Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg you probably will begin to bleed once you take misoprostol, the medicine you take 24 to 48 hours after Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg. Bleeding or spotting can be expected for an average of 9 to16 days and may last for up to 30 days. Your bleeding may be similar to, or greater than, a normal heavy period. You may see blood clots and tissue. This is an expected part of passing the pregnancy.

The most common side effects of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg treatment include: nausea, weakness, fever/chills, vomiting, headache, diarrhea and dizziness. Your provider will tell you how to manage any pain or other side effects. These are not all the possible side effects of Mifepristone tablets, 200 mg.

Call your healthcare provider for medical advice about any side effects that bother you or do not go away. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

FULL PRESCRIBING INFORMATION

WARNING: SERIOUS AND SOMETIMES FATAL INFECTIONS OR BLEEDING

Serious and sometimes fatal infections and bleeding occur very rarely following spontaneous, surgical, and medical abortions, including following Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg use. No causal relationship between the use of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol and these events has been established.

- Atypical Presentation of Infection. Patients with serious bacterial infections (e.g., Clostridium sordellii) and sepsis can present without fever, bacteremia, or significant findings on pelvic examination following an abortion. Very rarely, deaths have been reported in patients who presented without fever, with or without abdominal pain, but with leukocytosis with a marked left shift, tachycardia, hemoconcentration, and general malaise. A high index of suspicion is needed to rule out serious infection and sepsis *[see Warnings and Precautions (5.1)]
- Bleeding. Prolonged heavy bleeding may be a sign of incomplete abortion or other complications and prompt medical or surgical intervention may be needed. Advise patients to seek immediate medical attention if they experience prolonged heavy vaginal bleeding [see Warnings and Precautions (5.2)] .

Because of the risks of serious complications described above, Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg is available only through a restricted program under a Risk Evaluation and Mitigation Strategy (REMS) called the Mifepristone REMS Program [see Warnings and Precautions (5.3)] .

Before prescribing mifepristone tablets, inform the patient about the risk of these serious events. Ensure that the patient knows whom to call and what to do, including going to an Emergency Room if none of the provided contacts are reachable, if they experience sustained fever, severe abdominal pain, prolonged heavy bleeding, or syncope, or if they experience abdominal pain or discomfort, or general malaise (including weakness, nausea, vomiting, or diarrhea) for more than 24 hours after taking misoprostol.

1 INDICATIONS AND USAGE

2 DOSAGE AND ADMINISTRATION

2.1 Dosing Regimen

For purposes of this treatment, pregnancy is dated from the first day of the last menstrual period. The duration of pregnancy may be determined from menstrual history and clinical examination. Assess the pregnancy by ultrasonographic scan if the duration of pregnancy is uncertain or if ectopic pregnancy is suspected.

The dosing regimen for Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol is:

Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg orally + misoprostol 800 mcg buccally

• Day One: Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg Administration
One 200 mg tablets of Mifepristone is taken in a single oral dose.

• Day Two or Three: Misoprostol Administration (minimum 24-hour interval between, Mifepristone Tablet, 200 mg and misoprostol)

Four 200 mcg tablets (total dose 800 mcg) of misoprostol are taken by the buccal route.

Tell the patient to place two 200 mcg misoprostol tablets in each cheek pouch (the area between the cheek and gums) for 30 minutes and then swallow any remnants with water or another liquid (see Figure 1).

Patients taking Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg must take misoprostol within 24 to 48 hours after taking Mifepristone Tablets. The effectiveness of the regimen may be lower if misoprostol is administered less than 24 hours or more than 48 hours after mifepristone administration.

Because most women will expel the pregnancy within 2 to 24 hours of taking misoprostol [see Clinical Studies (14)], discuss with the patient an appropriate location for them to be when taking the misoprostol, taking into account that expulsion could begin within 2 hours of administration.

2.2 Patient Management Following Misoprostol Administration

During the period immediately following the administration of misoprostol, the patient may need medication for cramps or gastrointestinal symptoms [see Adverse Reactions (6)] .

Give the patient:

- Instructions on what to do if significant discomfort, excessive vaginal bleeding or other adverse reactions occur

- A phone number to call if the patient has questions following the administration of the misoprostol
- The name and phone number of the healthcare provider who will be handling emergencies.

2.3 Post-treatment Assessment: Day 7 to 14

Patients should follow-up with their healthcare provider approximately 7 to 14 days after the administration of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg. This assessment is very important to confirm that complete termination of pregnancy has occurred and to evaluate the degree of bleeding. Termination can be confirmed by medical history, clinical examination, human Chorionic Gonadotropin (hCG) testing, or ultrasonographic scan. Lack of bleeding following treatment usually indicates failure; however, prolonged or heavy bleeding is not proof of a complete abortion.

The existence of debris in the uterus (e.g., if seen on ultrasonography) following the treatment procedure will not necessarily require surgery for its removal.

Patients should expect to experience vaginal bleeding or spotting for an average of 9 to 16 days. Women report experiencing heavy bleeding for a median duration of 2 days. Up to 8% of women may experience some type of bleeding for more than 30 days. Persistence of heavy or moderate vaginal bleeding at the time of follow-up, however, could indicate an incomplete abortion.

If complete expulsion has not occurred, but the pregnancy is not ongoing, patients may be treated with another dose of misoprostol 800 mcg buccally. There have been rare reports of uterine rupture in women who took Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol, including women with prior uterine rupture or uterine scar and women who received multiple doses of misoprostol within 24 hours. Patients who choose to use a repeat dose of misoprostol should have a follow-up visit with their healthcare provider in approximately 7 days to assess for complete termination.

Surgical evacuation is recommended to manage ongoing pregnancies after medical abortion [see Use in Specific Populations (8.1)] . Advise the patient whether you will provide such care or will refer them to another provider as part of counseling prior to prescribing Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg.

3 DOSAGE FORMS AND STRENGTHS

Tablets containing 200 mg of mifepristone each, supplied as 1 tablet on one blister card. Mifepristone tablets are light yellow coloured, round, biconvex tablets debossed with “CC12” on one side and plain on other side and free from physical defects.

4 CONTRAINDICATIONS

- Administration of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol for the termination of pregnancy (the “treatment procedure”) is contraindicated in patients with any of the following conditions:
  - Confirmed or suspected ectopic pregnancy or undiagnosed adnexal mass (the treatment procedure will not be effective to terminate an ectopic pregnancy) [see

Warnings and Precautions (5.4)]
    - Chronic adrenal failure (risk of acute adrenal insufficiency)
    - Concurrent long-term corticosteroid therapy (risk of acute adrenal insufficiency)
    - History of allergy to mifepristone, misoprostol, or other prostaglandins (allergic reactions including anaphylaxis, angioedema, rash, hives, and itching have been reported [see Adverse Reactions (6.2)])
    - Hemorrhagic disorders or concurrent anticoagulant therapy (risk of heavy bleeding)
    - Inherited porphyrias (risk of worsening or of precipitation of attacks)
- Use of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol for termination of intrauterine pregnancy is contraindicated in patients with an intrauterine device (“IUD”) in place (the IUD might interfere with pregnancy termination). If the IUD is removed, Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg may be used.

5 WARNINGS AND PRECAUTIONS

5.1 Infection and Sepsis

As with other types of abortion, cases of serious bacterial infection, including very rare cases of fatal septic shock, have been reported following the use of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg [see Boxed Warning] . Healthcare providers evaluating a patient who is undergoing a medical abortion should be alert to the possibility of this rare event. A sustained (> 4 hours) fever of 100.4°F or higher, severe abdominal pain, or pelvic tenderness in the days after a medical abortion may be an indication of infection.

A high index of suspicion is needed to rule out sepsis (e.g., from Clostridium sordellii) if a patient reports abdominal pain or discomfort or general malaise (including weakness, nausea, vomiting or diarrhea) more than 24 hours after taking misoprostol. Very rarely, deaths have been reported in patients who presented without fever, with or without abdominal pain, but with leukocytosis with a marked left shift, tachycardia, hemoconcentration, and general malaise. No causal relationship between Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol use and an increased risk of infection or death has been established. *Clostridium sordellii*infections have also been reported very rarely following childbirth (vaginal delivery and caesarian section), and in other gynecologic and non-gynecologic conditions.

5.2 Uterine Bleeding

Uterine bleeding occurs in almost all patients during a medical abortion. Prolonged heavy bleeding (soaking through two thick full-size sanitary pads per hour for two consecutive hours) may be a sign of incomplete abortion or other complications and prompt medical or surgical intervention may be needed to prevent the development of hypovolemic shock. Counsel patients to seek immediate medical attention if they experience prolonged heavy vaginal bleeding following a medical abortion [see Boxed Warning] .

Women should expect to experience vaginal bleeding or spotting for an average of 9 to 16 days. Women report experiencing heavy bleeding for a median duration of 2 days. Up to 8% of all subjects may experience some type of bleeding for 30 days or more. In general, the duration of bleeding and spotting increased as the duration of the pregnancy increased.

Decreases in hemoglobin concentration, hematocrit, and red blood cell count may occur in patient who bleed heavily.

Excessive uterine bleeding usually requires treatment by uterotonics, vasoconstrictor drugs, surgical uterine evacuation, administration of saline infusions, and/or blood transfusions. Based on data from several large clinical trials, vasoconstrictor drugs were used in 4.3% of all subjects, there was a decrease in hemoglobin of more than 2 g/dL in 5.5% of subjects, and blood transfusions were administered to ≤0.1% of subjects. Because heavy bleeding requiring surgical uterine evacuation occurs in about 1% of patients, special care should be given to patients with hemostatic disorders, hypocoagulability, or severe anemia.

5.3 Mifepristone REMS Program

Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg is available only through a restricted program under a REMS called the Mifepristone REMS Program, because of the risks of serious complications [see Warnings and Precautions (5.1, 5.2)].

Notable requirements of the Mifepristone REMS Program include the following:

- Prescribers must be certified with the program by completing the Prescriber Agreement Form.
- Patients must sign a Patient Agreement Form.
- Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg must only be dispensed to patients by or under the supervision of a certified prescriber, or by certified pharmacies on prescriptions issued by certified prescribers.

Further information is available at 1-866-718-0098.

5.4 Ectopic Pregnancy

Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg is contraindicated in patients with a confirmed or suspected ectopic pregnancy because mifepristone tablets is not effective for terminating ectopic pregnancies [see Contraindications (4)] . Healthcare providers should remain alert to the possibility that a patient who is undergoing a medical abortion could have an undiagnosed ectopic pregnancy because some of the expected symptoms experienced with a medical abortion (abdominal pain, uterine bleeding) may be similar to those of a ruptured ectopic pregnancy. The presence of an ectopic pregnancy may have been missed even if the patient underwent ultrasonography prior to being prescribed mifepristone tablets, 200 mg.

Patients who became pregnant with an IUD in place should be assessed for ectopic pregnancy.

5.5 Rhesus Immunization

The use of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg is assumed to require the same preventive measures as those taken prior to and during surgical abortion to prevent rhesus immunization.

6 ADVERSE REACTIONS

The following adverse reactions are described in greater detail in other sections:

- Infection and sepsis [see Warnings and Precautions (5.1)]
- Uterine bleeding [see Warnings and Precautions (5.2)]

6.1 Clinical Trials Experience

Because clinical studies are conducted under widely varying conditions, adverse reaction rates observed in the clinical studies of a drug cannot be directly compared to rates in the clinical studies of another drug and may not reflect the rates observed in practice.

Information presented on common adverse reactions relies solely on data from U.S.

studies, because rates reported in non-U.S. studies were markedly lower and are not likely generalizable to the U.S. population. In three U.S. clinical studies totaling 1,248 women through 70 days gestation who used mifepristone 200 mg orally followed 24 to 48 hours later by misoprostol 800 mcg buccally, women reported adverse reactions in diaries and in interviews at the follow-up visit. These studies enrolled generally healthy women of reproductive age without contraindications to mifepristone or misoprostol use according to the Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg product label.Gestational age was assessed prior to study enrollment using the date of the woman's last menstrual period, clinical evaluation, and/or ultrasound examination.

About 85% of patients report at least one adverse reaction following administration of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol, and many can be expected to report more than one such reaction. The most commonly reported adverse reactions (>15%) were nausea, weakness, fever/chills, vomiting, headache, diarrhea, and dizziness (see Table 1). The frequency of adverse reactions varies between studies and may be dependent on many factors including the patient population and gestational age.

Abdominal pain/cramping is expected in all medical abortion patients and its incidence is not reported in clinical studies. Treatment with Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol is designed to induce uterine bleeding and cramping to cause termination of an intrauterine pregnancy. Uterine bleeding and cramping are expected consequences of the action of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol as used in the treatment procedure. Most patients can expect bleeding more heavily than they do during a heavy menstrual period [see Warnings and Precautions (5.2)] .

Adverse Reaction	# U.S. studies	Number of Evaluable Women	Range of frequency (%)	Upper Gestational Age of Studies Reporting Outcome
Nausea	3	1,248	51-75%	70 days
Weakness	2	630	55-58%	63 days

Vomiting	3	1,248	37-48%	70 days
Headache	2	630	41-44%	63 days
Diarrhea	3	1,248	18-43%	70 days
Dizziness	2	630	39-41%	63 days

One study provided gestational-age stratified adverse reaction rates for women who were 57 to 63 and 64 to 70 days; there was little difference in frequency of the reported common adverse reactions by gestational age.

Information on serious adverse reactions was reported in six U.S. and four non-U.S. clinical studies, totaling 30,966 women through 70 days gestation who used mifepristone 200 mg orally followed 24 to 48 hours later by misoprostol 800 mcg buccally. Serious adverse reaction rates were similar between U.S. and non-U.S. studies, so rates from both U.S. and non-U.S. studies are presented. In the U.S. studies, one studied women through 56 days gestation, four through 63 days gestation, and one through 70 days gestation, while in the non-U.S. studies, two studied women through 63 days gestation, and two through 70 days gestation. Serious adverse reactions were reported in <0.5% of women. Information from the U.S. and non-U.S. studies is presented in Table 2.

6.2 Postmarketing Experience

The following adverse reactions have been identified during post approval use of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol. Because these reactions are reported voluntarily from a population of uncertain size, it is not always possible to reliably estimate their frequency or establish a causal relationship to drug exposure.

*Infections and infestations:*post-abortal infection (including endometritis, endomyometritis, parametritis, pelvic infection, pelvic inflammatory disease, salpingitis)
*Blood and the lymphatic system disorders:*anemia
*Immune system disorders:*allergic reaction (including anaphylaxis, angioedema, hives, rash, itching)
*Psychiatric disorders:*anxiety
*Cardiac disorders:*tachycardia (including racing pulse, heart palpitations, heart pounding)
*Vascular disorders:*syncope, fainting, loss of consciousness, hypotension (including orthostatic), light-headedness
*Respiratory, thoracic and mediastinal disorders:*shortness of breath
*Gastrointestinal disorders:*dyspepsia
*Musculoskeletal, connective tissue and bone disorders:*back pain, leg pain
*Reproductive system and breast disorders:*uterine rupture, ruptured ectopic pregnancy, hematometra, leukorrhea
*General disorders and administration site conditions:*pain

7 DRUG INTERACTIONS

7.1 Drugs that May Reduce Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg Exposure (Effect of CYP 3A4 Inducers on Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg)

CYP450 3A4 is primarily responsible for the metabolism of mifepristone. CYP3A4 inducers such as rifampin, dexamethasone, St. John's Wort, and certain anticonvulsants (such as phenytoin, phenobarbital, carbamazepine) may induce mifepristone metabolism (lowering serum concentrations of mifepristone). Whether this action has an impact on the efficacy of the dose regimen is unknown. Refer to the follow-up assessment [see Dosage and Administration (2.3)] to verify that treatment has been successful.

7.2 Drugs that May Increase Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg Exposure (Effect of CYP 3A4 Inhibitors on Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg)

Although specific drug or food interactions with mifepristone have not been studied, on the basis of this drug's metabolism by CYP 3A4, it is possible that ketoconazole, itraconazole erythromycin, and grapefruit juice may inhibit its metabolism (increasing serum concentrations of mifepristone). Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg should be used with caution in patients currently or recently treated with CYP 3A4 inhibitors.

7.3 Effects of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg on Other Drugs (Effect of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg on CYP 3A4 Substrates)

Based on in vitro inhibition information, coadministration of mifepristone may lead to an increase in serum concentrations of drugs that are CYP 3A4 substrates. Due to the slow elimination of mifepristone from the body, such interaction may be observed for a prolonged period after its administration. Therefore, caution should be exercised when mifepristone is administered with drugs that are CYP 3A4 substrates and have a narrow therapeutic range.

8 USE IN SPECIFIC POPULATIONS

8.1 Pregnancy

Risk Summary

Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg is indicated, in a regimen with misoprostol, for the medical termination of intrauterine pregnancy through 70 days gestation. Risks to pregnant women are discussed throughout the labeling.

Refer to misoprostol labeling for risks to pregnant patients with the use of misoprostol.

The risk of adverse developmental outcomes with a continued pregnancy after a failed pregnancy termination with Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg in a regimen with misoprostol is unknown; however, the process of a failed pregnancy termination could disrupt normal embryo-fetal development and result in adverse developmental effects. Birth defects have been reported with a continued pregnancy after a failed pregnancy termination with Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg in a regimen with misoprostol. In animal reproduction studies, increased fetal losses were observed in mice, rats, and rabbits and skull deformities were observed in rabbits with administration of mifepristone at doses lower than the human exposure level based on body surface area.

Data

Animal Data

In teratology studies in mice, rats and rabbits at doses of 0.25 to 4.0mg/kg (less than 1/100 to approximately 1/3 the human exposure based on body surface area), because of the antiprogestational activity of mifepristone, fetal losses were much higher than in control animals. Skull deformities were detected in rabbit studies at approximately 1/6 the human exposure, although no teratogenic effects of mifepristone have been observed to date in rats or mice.

These deformities were most likely due to the mechanical effects of uterine contractions resulting from inhibition of progesterone action.

8.2 Lactation

Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg is present in human milk. Limited data demonstrate undetectable to low levels of the drug in human milk with the relative (weight-adjusted) infant dose 0.5% or less as compared to maternal dosing. There is no information on the effects of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg in a regimen with misoprostol in a breastfed infant or on milk production. Refer to misoprostol labeling for lactation information with the use of misoprostol. The developmental and health benefits of breast-feeding should be considered along with any potential adverse effects on the breast-fed child from Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg in a regimen with misoprostol.

8.4 Pediatric Use

Safety and efficacy of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg have been established in pregnant females. Data from a clinical study of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg that included a subset of 322 females under age 17 demonstrated a safety and efficacy profile similar to that observed in adults.

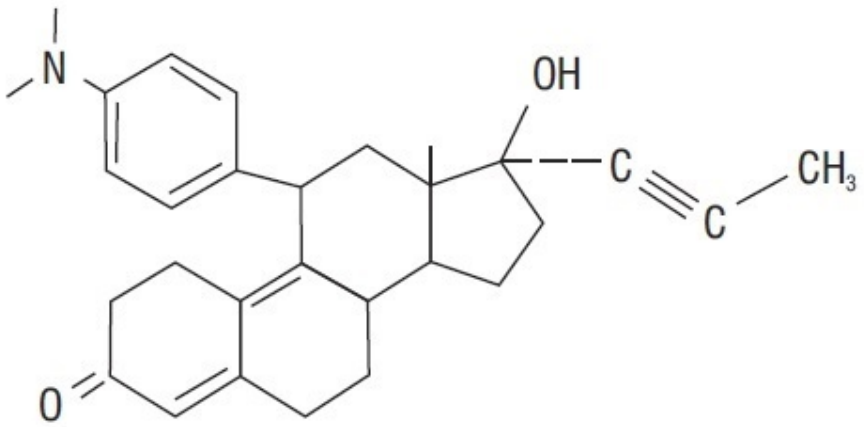

10 OVERDOSAGE

No serious adverse reactions were reported in tolerance studies in healthy non-pregnant female and healthy male subjects where mifepristone was administered in single doses greater than 1,800 mg (ninefold the recommended dose for medical abortion). If a patient ingests a massive overdose, the patient should be observed closely for signs of adrenal failure.

11 DESCRIPTION

Mifepristone tablets each contain 200 mg of mifepristone, a synthetic steroid with antiprogestational effects. The tablets are light yellow coloured, round, biconvex, debossed with “CC12” on one side, plain on other side and free from physical defects and are intended for oral administration only. The tablets include the inactive ingredients colloidal silicon dioxide, maize starch, povidone, microcrystalline cellulose, and magnesium stearate.

Mifepristone is a substituted 19-nor steroid compound chemically designated as 11ß-[p-(Dimethylamino) phenyl]-17ß-hydroxy- 17-(1-propynyl) estra-4,9-dien-3-one. Its empirical formula is $C_{29}H_{35}NO_2$. Its structural formula is:

The compound is a yellow powder with a molecular weight of 429.6 and a melting point of 192 to 196°C. It is very soluble in methanol, chloroform and acetone and poorly soluble in water, hexane and isopropyl ether.

12 CLINICAL PHARMACOLOGY

12.1 Mechanism of Action

The anti-progestational activity of mifepristone results from competitive interaction with progesterone at progesterone-receptor sites. Based on studies with various oral doses in several animal species (mouse, rat, rabbit, and monkey), the compound inhibits the activity of endogenous or exogenous progesterone, resulting in effects on the uterus and cervix that, when combined with misoprostol, result in termination of an intrauterine pregnancy.

During pregnancy, the compound sensitizes the myometrium to the contraction-inducing activity of prostaglandins.

12.2 Pharmacodynamics

Use of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg in a regimen with misoprostol disrupts pregnancy by causing decidual necrosis, myometrial contractions, and cervical softening, leading to the expulsion of the products of conception.

Doses of 1 mg/kg or greater of mifepristone have been shown to antagonize the endometrial and myometrial effects of progesterone in women.

Antiglucocorticoid and antiandrogenic activity: Mifepristone also exhibits antiglucocorticoid and weak antiandrogenic activity. The activity of the glucocorticoid dexamethasone in rats was inhibited following doses of 10 to 25 mg/kg of mifepristone. Doses of 4.5 mg/kg or greater in human beings resulted in a compensatory elevation of adrenocorticotropic hormone (ACTH) and cortisol. Antiandrogenic activity was observed in rats following repeated administration of doses from 10 to 100 mg/kg.

12.3 Pharmacokinetics

Absorption
The absolute bioavailability of a 200 mg mifepristone oral dose in females of childbearing age is 69%. Following oral administration of a single dose of 600 mg, mifepristone is rapidly absorbed, with a peak plasma concentration of 1.98 ± 1.0 mg/L occurring approximately 90 minutes after ingestion.

Following oral administration of a single dose of 200 mg in healthy men (n=8), mean C_{max} was 1.77 ± 0.7 mg/L occurring approximately 45 minutes after ingestion. Mean $AUC_{0-\infty}$ was 25.8 ± 6.2 mg*hr/L.

Distribution
Mifepristone is 98% bound to plasma proteins, albumin, and α_1-acid glycoprotein. Binding to the latter protein is saturable, and the drug displays nonlinear kinetics with respect to plasma concentration and clearance.

Elimination
Following a distribution phase, elimination of mifepristone is slow at first (50% eliminated between 12 and 72 hours) and then becomes more rapid with a terminal elimination half-life of 18 hours.

Metabolism

Metabolism of mifepristone is primarily via pathways involving N-demethylation and terminal hydroxylation of the 17-propynyl chain. *In vitro*studies have shown that CYP450 3A4 is primarily responsible for the metabolism. The three major metabolites identified in humans are: (1) RU 42 633, the most widely found in plasma, is the N-monodemethylated metabolite; (2) RU 42 848, which results from the loss of two methyl groups from the 4-dimethylaminophenyl in position 11ß; and (3) RU 42 698, which results from terminal hydroxylation of the 17-propynyl chain.

Excretion
By 11 days after a 600 mg dose of tritiated compound, 83% of the drug has been accounted for by the feces and 9% by the urine. Serum concentrations are undetectable by 11 days.

Specific Populations
The effects of age, hepatic disease and renal disease on the safety, efficacy and pharmacokinetics of mifepristone have not been investigated.

13 NONCLINICAL TOXICOLOGY

13.1 Carcinogenesis, Mutagenesis, Impairment of Fertility

Carcinogenesis
No long-term studies to evaluate the carcinogenic potential of mifepristone have been performed.

Mutagenesis
Results from studies conducted *in vitro*and in animals have revealed no genotoxic potential for mifepristone. Among the tests carried out were: Ames test with and without metabolic activation; gene conversion test in *Saccharomyces cerevisiae*D4 cells; forward mutation in *Schizosaccharomyces pompe*P1 cells; induction of unscheduled DNA synthesis in cultured HeLa cells; induction of chromosome aberrations in CHO cells; *in vitro*test for gene mutation in V79 Chinese hamster lung cells; and micronucleus test in mice.

Impairment of Fertility
In rats, administration of 0.3 mg/kg mifepristone per day caused severe disruption of the estrus cycles for the three weeks of the treatment period. Following resumption of the estrus cycle, animals were mated and no effects on reproductive performance were observed.

14 CLINICAL STUDIES

Safety and efficacy data from clinical studies of mifepristone 200 mg orally followed 24 to 48 hours later by misoprostol 800 mcg buccally through 70 days gestation are reported below. Success was defined as the complete expulsion of the products of conception without the need for surgical intervention. The overall rates of success and failure, shown by reason for failure based on 22 worldwide clinical studies (including 7 U.S. studies) appear in Table 3.

The demographics of women who participated in the U.S. clinical studies varied depending on study location and represent the racial and ethnic variety of American females. Females of all reproductive ages were represented, including females less than 18 and more than 40 years of age; most were 27 years or younger.

*Reasons for surgical intervention include ongoing pregnancy, medical necessity, persistent or heavy bleeding after treatment, patient request, or incomplete expulsion.

Ongoing pregnancy is a subcategory of surgical intervention, indicating the percent of women who have surgical intervention due to an ongoing pregnancy.

The results for clinical studies that reported outcomes, including failure rates for ongoing pregnancy, by gestational age are presented in Table 4.

Revised: 11/2025

to cause the pregnancy to be passed from your uterus.

The pregnancy is likely to be passed from your uterus within 2 to 24 hours after taking Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol. When the pregnancy is passed from the uterus, you will have bleeding and cramping that will likely be heavier than your usual period. About 2 to 7 out of 100 women taking Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg will need a surgical procedure because the pregnancy did not completely pass from the uterus or to stop bleeding.

Who should not take Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg?

Some patients should not take Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg. Do not take Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg if you:

- Have a pregnancy that is more than 70 days (10 weeks). Your healthcare provider may do a clinical examination, an ultrasound examination, or other testing to determine how far along you are in pregnancy.
- Are using an IUD (intrauterine device or system). It must be taken out before you take Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg.
- Have been told by your healthcare provider that you have a pregnancy outside the uterus (ectopic pregnancy).
- Have problems with your adrenal glands (chronic adrenal failure).
- Take a medicine to thin your blood.
- Have a bleeding problem.
- Have porphyria.
- Take certain steroid medicines.
- Are allergic to mifepristone, misoprostol, or medicines that contain misoprostol, such as Cytotec or Arthrotec.

Ask your healthcare provider if you are not sure about all your medical conditions before taking this medicine to find out if you can take Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg.

What should I tell my healthcare provider before taking Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg? Before you take Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg, tell your healthcare provider if you:

- cannot follow-up within approximately 7 to 14 days of your first visit
- are breastfeeding. Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg can pass into your breast milk. The effect of the Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol regimen on the breastfed infant or on milk production is unknown.
- are taking medicines, including prescription and over-the-counter medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements.

Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and certain other medicines may affect each other if they are used together. This can cause side effects.

How should I take Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg?

- Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg will be given to you by a healthcare provider in a pharmacy.
- You and your healthcare provider will plan the most appropriate location for you to take the misoprostol, because it may cause bleeding, cramps, nausea, diarrhea, and other symptoms that usually begin within 2 to 24 hours after taking it.
- Most women will pass the pregnancy within 2 to 24 hours after taking the misoprostol tablets.

Follow the instruction below on how to take Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol:

MEDICATION GUIDE

Mifepristone(MIF-eh-pris-tone) Tablets, 200 mg for oral use

Read this information carefully before taking Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol. It will help you understand how the treatment works. This Medication Guide does not take the place of talking with your healthcare provider.

What is the most important information I should know about Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg?

What symptoms should I be concerned with?Although cramping and bleeding are an expected part of ending a pregnancy, rarely, serious and potentially life-threatening bleeding, infections, or other problems can occur following a miscarriage, surgical abortion, medical abortion, or childbirth. Seeking medical attention as soon as possible is needed in these circumstances. Serious infection has resulted in death in a very small number of cases. There is no information that use of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol caused these deaths. If you have any questions, concerns, or problems, or if you are worried about any side effects or symptoms, you should contact your healthcare provider. You can write down your healthcare provider's telephone number here _____.

Be sure to contact your healthcare provider promptly if you have any of the following:

- Heavy Bleeding.Contact your healthcare provider right away if you bleed enough to soak through two thick full-size sanitary pads per hour for two consecutive hours or if you are concerned about heavy bleeding. In about 1 out of 100 women, bleeding can be so heavy that it requires a surgical procedure (surgical aspiration or D&C).
- Abdominal Pain or "Feeling Sick."If you have abdominal pain or discomfort, or you are "feeling sick," including weakness, nausea, vomiting, or diarrhea, with or without fever, more than 24 hours after taking misoprostol, you should contact your healthcare provider without delay. These symptoms may be a sign of a serious infection or another problem (including an ectopic pregnancy, a pregnancy outside the womb).
- Fever. In the days after treatment, if you have a fever of 100.4°F or higher that lasts for more than 4 hours, you should contact your healthcare provider right away. Fever may be a symptom of a serious infection or another problem.

If you cannot reach your healthcare provider, go to the nearest hospital emergency room.

What to do if you are still pregnant after Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg with misoprostol treatment. If you are still pregnant, your healthcare provider will talk with you about a surgical procedure to end your pregnancy. In many cases, this surgical procedure can be done in the office/clinic. The chance of birth defects if the pregnancy is not ended is unknown.

Talk with your healthcare provider. Before you take Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg you should read this Medication Guide and you and your healthcare provider should discuss the benefits and risks of your using Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg.

What is Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg?

Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg is used in a regimen with another prescription medicine called misoprostol, to end an early pregnancy. Early pregnancy means it is 70 days (10 weeks) or less since your last menstrual period began. Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg is not approved for ending pregnancies that are further along. Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg blocks a hormone needed for your pregnancy to continue. When you use Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg on Day 1, you also need to take another medicine called misoprostol 24 to 48 hours after you take Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg

buccally

Day 1:

- Take 1 Mifepristone 200 mg Tablet by mouth.

24 to 48 hours after taking Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg:

- Take 4 misoprostol tablets by placing 2 tablets in each cheek pouch (the area between your teeth and cheek - see Figure A) for 30 minutes and then swallow anything left over with a drink of water or another liquid.
- The medicines may not work as well if you take misoprostol sooner than 24 hours after Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg or later than 48 hours after Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg.
- Misoprostol often causes cramps, nausea, diarrhea, and other symptoms. Your healthcare provider may send you home with medicines for these symptoms.

Follow-up Assessment at Day 7 to 14:

- This follow-up assessment is very important. You must follow-up with your healthcare provider about 7 to 14 days after you have taken Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg to be sure you are well and that you have had bleeding and the pregnancy has passed from your uterus.
- Your healthcare provider will assess whether your pregnancy has passed from your uterus. If your pregnancy continues, the chance that there may be birth defects is unknown. If you are still pregnant, your healthcare provider will talk with you about a surgical procedure to end your pregnancy.
- If your pregnancy has ended, but has not yet completely passed from your uterus, your provider will talk with you about other choices you have, including waiting, taking another dose of misoprostol, or having a surgical procedure to empty your uterus.

When should I begin birth control?

You can become pregnant again right after your pregnancy ends. If you do not want to become pregnant again, start using birth control as soon as your pregnancy ends or before you start having sexual intercourse again.

What should I avoid while taking Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol?

Do not take any other prescription or over-the-counter medicines (including herbal medicines or supplements) at any time during the treatment period without first asking your healthcare provider about them because they may interfere with the treatment.

Ask your healthcare provider about what medicines you can take for pain and other side effects.

What are the possible side effects of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg and misoprostol?
Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg may cause serious side effects. See "What is the most important information I should know about Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg?"

Cramping and bleeding. Cramping and vaginal bleeding are expected with this treatment. Usually, these symptoms mean that the treatment is working. But sometimes you can get cramping and bleeding and still be pregnant. This is why you must follow-up with your healthcare provider approximately 7 to 14 days after taking Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg. See "How should I take Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg?" for more information on your follow-up assessment. If you are not already bleeding after taking Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg you probably will begin to bleed once you take misoprostol, the medicine you take 24 to 48 hours after Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg. Bleeding or spotting can be expected for an average of 9 to 16 days and may last for up to 30 days. Your bleeding may be similar to, or greater than, a normal heavy period. You may see blood clots and tissue. This is an expected part of passing the pregnancy.

The most common side effects of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg treatment include: nausea, weakness, fever/chills, vomiting, headache, diarrhea and dizziness. Your provider will tell you how to manage any pain or other side effects. These are not all the possible side effects of Mifepristone Tablets, 200 mg.

Call your healthcare provider for medical advice about any side effects that bother you or do not go away. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

Mifepristone U.S. Post-Marketing Adverse Events Summary through 12/31/2024

The following information is from United States (U.S.) post-marketing reports received by FDA of adverse events that occurred among patients who had taken mifepristone for medical termination of pregnancy. Because FDA has eliminated duplicate reports, and in some cases, reclassified the adverse event terms for individual cases after reviewing the narrative details, the numbers provided here may differ from the numbers of the reports that may be obtained through Freedom of Information Act requests. These events cannot with certainty be causally attributed to mifepristone because of information gaps about patient health status, clinical management of the patient, concurrent drug use, and other possible medical or surgical treatments and conditions. The estimated number of women who have used mifepristone in the U.S. for medical termination of pregnancy through the end of December 2024 is approximately 7.5 million women.

For informational purposes, fatal foreign cases that were reported after U.S. approval of mifepristone for medical termination of pregnancy are also included in a footnote in Table 1.

Table 1. Cumulative Post-Marketing Fatal and Ectopic Pregnancy Reports in U.S. Women Who Used Mifepristone for Medical Termination of Pregnancy

Date range of cumulative reports	09/28/00[†] - 12/31/24
Died [‡]	36
*Ectopic pregnancies [||]	97

[‡] The fatal cases are included regardless of causal attribution to mifepristone. Deaths were associated with sepsis in 13 of the 36 reported fatalities (9 cases tested positive for Clostridium sordellii, 1 case tested positive for Clostridium perfringens, 2 cases had negative blood cultures, and 1 case did not have blood culture data). Ten of the 13 fatal sepsis cases reported vaginal misoprostol use; 2 cases reported buccal misoprostol use; 1 case did not report the route of misoprostol use. Twenty-two of the 23 remaining U.S. deaths involved 2 cases of homicide, 2 cases of combined drug intoxication/overdose, 2 cases of ruptured ectopic pregnancy, 2 cases of drug intoxication, 2 cases of suicide, and 1 case each of the following: substance abuse/drug overdose; methadone overdose; suspected homicide; delayed onset toxic shock-like syndrome; hemorrhage; bilateral pulmonary thromboemboli; unintentional overdose resulting in liver failure; probable anaphylactic medication reaction; septic shock due to necrotizing fasciitis; sepsis with multiple complications possibly secondary to toxic shock syndrome 82 days after mifepristone; sudden death of undetermined etiology despite performance of an autopsy; and a case of natural death due to severe pulmonary emphysema. In the 23rd case, the cause of death could not be established despite performance of an autopsy; tissue samples were negative for Clostridium sordellii. There were 13 additional reported deaths in women in foreign countries who used mifepristone for medical termination of pregnancy. These fatal cases were associated with the following: sepsis (Clostridium sordellii identified in tissue samples) in a foreign clinical trial; sepsis (Group A Streptococcus pyogenes); a ruptured gastric ulcer; severe hemorrhage; severe hemorrhage and possible sepsis; "multivisceral failure;" thrombotic thrombocytopenic purpura leading to intracranial hemorrhage; toxic shock syndrome (Clostridium sordellii was identified through uterine biopsy cultures); sepsis (Enterococcus faecalis and Escherichia coli were identified in blood culture); asthma attack with cardiac arrest; thromboembolism; respiratory decompensation with secondary pulmonary infection 30 days after mifepristone in a patient on the lung transplant list with diabetes, a jejunostomy feeding tube, and severe cystic fibrosis; and a case of Clostridium septicum sepsis (from a published literature report).

[‡] FDA implemented the FDA Adverse Event Reporting System (FAERS) on September 10, 2012, and migrated all the data from the previous reporting system (AERS) to FAERS. Differences may exist when comparing case counts in AERS and FAERS. FDA validated and recoded product information as the AERS reports were migrated to FAERS. As a result of this change, it is not recommended to calculate a cumulative number when reviewing the data provided in Table 2.

* The majority of these women are included in the hospitalized category in Table 2.

[§] As stated in the approved labeling for Mifeprex (mifepristone) and its approved generic version, bleeding or spotting can be expected for an average of 9-16 days, and may last for up to 30 days. Excessive vaginal bleeding usually requires treatment by uterotonics, vasoconstrictor drugs, curettage, administration of saline infusions, and/or blood transfusions.

[‖] This category includes endometritis (inflammation resulting from an infection involving the lining of the womb), pelvic inflammatory disease (involving the nearby reproductive organs such as the fallopian tubes or ovaries), and pelvic infections with sepsis (a serious systemic infection that has spread beyond the reproductive organs). Not included are women with reported sexually transmitted infections such as chlamydia and gonorrhea, cystitis, and toxic shock syndrome not associated with a pelvic infection.

[¶] This subset of infections includes cases that were determined to be severe based on medical review of the available case details. Severe infections generally result in death or hospitalization for at least 2-3 days, require intravenous antibiotics for at least 24 hours and total antibiotic usage for at least 3 days, or have other physical or clinical findings, laboratory data, or surgery that suggest a severe infection.

[‡] The fatal cases are included regardless of causal attribution to mifepristone. Seven of the eight fatal sepsis cases reported vaginal misoprostol use; one case reported buccal misoprostol use. Seventeen of the 18 remaining U.S. deaths involved two cases of homicide, two cases of combined drug intoxication/overdose, two cases of ruptured ectopic pregnancy, two cases of drug intoxication, and one case each of the following: substance abuse/drug overdose; methadone overdose; suspected homicide; suicide; delayed onset toxic shock-like syndrome; hemorrhage; bilateral pulmonary thromboemboli; unintentional overdose resulting in liver failure; and a case of natural death due to severe pulmonary emphysema. There were 12 additional reported deaths in women in foreign countries who used mifepristone for medical termination of pregnancy.
